Chapter 1561

Many people snickered as they saw Levi and his family practicing Taichi together.

They felt that it was hilarious for the family members to train together regardless of age.

In particular, Shaun said it was embarrassing once he knew about it.

Despite their mockeries, Emma and the rest felt that their bodies became fitter over time.

Moreover, Emma even looked younger than before.

Since the beginning, Levi had been controlling their learning pace.

If they had some magical medicine to boost their energy and kept training, they could become strong fighters in a short time.

Soon, Levi realized that Forlevia was immensely talented in learning martial arts.

Levi was the one who selected and trained the Nine Lords from several hundred million people in Erudia.

In other words, Nine Lords represented the most talented people in Erudia.

But in comparison, Levi could tell that Forlevia was way more talented than them.

It appeared that she had a special knack for this and could connect the dots on her own.

Levi's battle prowess was unfathomable by most people, for only Supreme class fighters could probably kill him by now!

"In that case, let's hire Levi to become the instructor of the Hidden Dragon plan. After all, we have happened to find all of the talents we need!"

Levi never thought that the incident would lead to a chain of unexpected events.

At present, at least dozens of people from the Great Family of Westford wished to rope Forlevia in as their disciple.

Zoey and the other family members hoped that Forlevia could remain an ordinary lady; nonetheless, their wish was difficult to realize because Forlevia had showcased her enormous talent.

Besides, the entire Great Family of Westford wouldn't let this opportunity go!

Once Thierry and George heard about Forlevia, they immediately came from Westford to rope her in as their disciple.

Eventually, the council members of the Great Family of Westford had an intense dispute about it.

In the end, they unanimously decided to have a meeting.

Soon, Levi and Zoey received a notice stating that they had to bring Forlevia to attend the meeting.

"We shouldn't attend it. I mean, who are they to become Forlevia's master?"

A startling sentence from him.
The moment Levi's words left his lips, silence filled the air.
The most powerful seventeen members of Great Family of Westford aren't worthy?
Then who is?
Zoey, who was beside Levi, was shaking.
She never thought Levi would dare to say those words in front of mighty people like them.
We're doomed.
They're going to be furious!
George and the others were stunned.
In the past, Levi would have the right to say those words.
Yet, he was now only an ordinary person.
How dare he say we're not worthy?
"Levi, what are you trying to say? Are you provoking us, or are you looking down on the Great Family of Westford?"

The others were infuriated.

They were bewildered.

The ones who were there at Hidden Dragon were the elites selected from hundreds of millions of individuals.

Each and every one of them was a proud creature.

All of them were sure that they were the best in the world.

Thus, they were shocked to their cores when they saw that there was a young girl with them in the training.

Immediately, they started voicing their disagreements.

“We stayed silent when one of our instructors was an average person, but now there’s a little girl with us. Are you really asking us to train with her? Are you trying to pull our legs?”

Everyone was dissatisfied with the arrangement.

All of the geniuses came from either powerful families or mysterious organizations.

Most of them spent most of their lives in remote areas and only knew training.

Therefore, they had never heard of Levi’s name nor know anything about him.

Hence, to them, Levi’s child was just like any other child.

“He’s right. What’s with the kid? Give us an explanation!”

Training in combat was unlike doing sports.
All a basketball coach needed to do was strategize to be able to come up with many great basketball players; they needed not to play the sport themselves.
Other sports were the same.
However, combat was different.
Instructors were always the elite of the field.
That was the only way they would be able to train individuals into capable beings.
However, Levi was now an ordinary person.
He was incapable of showing his own technique, so how would he be able to teach the others, let alone make them understand that technique worked.
Therefore, no one was convinced by Levi's prowess.
Moreover, after what he had said with his daughter beside him, no one had any ounce of respect for him.
That was why they treated him differently from the other instructors.
In fact, even the instructors—other than Collin—scoffed at Levi.
Soon, Hidden Dragon's training began.
The first part of the training was choosing whether to train in Levi's technique.

Chapter 1566

Levi finally knew why the Hidden Dragon's first batch had failed.
Destroying to rebuild had been the right move.
The Hidden Dragon plan had been fine.
However, crippling the body did not seem to reach actual "destruction."
The multiple times that Levi managed to improve his technique was when he was nearing death.
In a way, he was remolded into an even greater being after toeing the line of life and death.
Every time, Levi was confident that he would win.
He had to live.

He could not die.

Therefore, the technique always pleasantly surprised Levi.

In a way, he was reborn every time after his near-death incidents.

With that rebirth came the increase of his powers.

However, the Hidden Dragon's plan was different.

The destruction was intentional.

It was a forced stage.

Therefore, they had not truly felt desperation.

The moment Levi's words left his mouth, everyone gasped.

His technique had destroyed their future.

Yet, it now presented an opportunity for them to return to the prime of their states and even more.

How can this be true?

"Levi, you're doing this on purpose, aren't you? We're already in this state, but you had to rub salt on our wounds, don't you?"

None of them believed that the technique would be able to give them hope after destroying it.

"Listen to me. The technique wasn't wrong, but the destruction was not enough. It's only now then have you reached true desperation," Levi explained.

The crowd fell silent, finding reason in Levi's words.

"Heed my words and start training yourself in the technique now. I've already fixed the flaws in the technique, so I'm sure that your training will be much quicker than before," Levi continued.

However, most were still doubtful.

Right then, Floyd voiced, "We're already in this state. How much worse can it get? We might as well try our luck! Do you really want others to look down on you for the rest of your life? Do you want to be the vermin of others' eyes until you die?"

"Of course not!"

"Darn it, let's just try it."

They wanted to force Levi to leave at the start.

However, they realized they would not have sufficient excuse to get rid of him.

The Dragonites were sure to reject them.

Hence, the best way was to learn from Levi first.

After a while, if nothing useful came out of their training, they would then have the excuse to kick him out.

Everyone was sure that learning Taichi from Levi was a complete waste of time, for it was equivalent to playing house.

However, no one said anything. Instead, they seemingly enthusiastically joined Levi's training.

Meanwhile, Levi had realized what they were planning early on, but he made no comments about it; he only started training them as according to their needs.

Nevertheless, the customized training seemed useless to the others.

For example, one of the students, Archie, had to continuously run with water buckets in his hands while another student had to keep jumping past over a tall obstacle.

When their training schedule came out, everyone was stunned.

They had been yearning for the day to recover.

They wanted to tell the rest that they were still gifted individuals.

That day had finally come.

It was all thanks to Levi.

“We have to work harder. We can’t let our savior down! Do you all understand?” Floyd shouted to the others.

After the Hidden Dragon’s plan failed, they had been abandoned by the Dragonites.

They had been abandoned by their mentors.

They had been abandoned by their families.

All they could do was wait for the day they would rise again.

Looking at the successful ones, a bright smile grew on Levi’s face.

He was genuinely happy that his disciples had achieved well in the training.

Hidden Dragon’s students came to attend Levi’s training

Levi's remark infuriated them, making their blood boil.

What? We're not even comparable to a bunch of cripples? Argh! This is an intolerable insult!

"You'll have an opportunity for a match, but not now," Levi drawled.

"Haha..." Peals of laughter echoed in the air.

"What a blatant lie!"

"That group of cripples can't practice martial arts for the rest of their lives, and that's an irreversible fact. Thus, improvement is impossible!"

"You should find a better excuse even if you wanted to demoralize us, Levi!"

When they heard that Levi couldn't arrange for a match, they all cracked up.

All of them felt that he was undoubtedly joking.

"Levi, you must apologize to us and Mr. Jourdain!" Xaire Severin—the strongest among the disciples—thundered.

"Exactly! You owe Mr. Jourdain and us an apology!" everyone roared, persistent and determined.
