Chapter 2391 Levi Is Marrying Me

What? Do you want to marry me to him? This loser is unworthy of me!

Queenie was flabbergasted, and so was everyone as well. They had never heard of the news before, but now the divine brigadier was announcing it out of the blue.

He looked at Levi and gushed, "Mr. Garrison said yes. Now all that's left is you. Just say the word and I'll make all the necessary arrangements."

If they thought the first announcement was shocking enough, the second one blew everyone's minds away, and a deafening silence fell across the manor. If they listened closely, they could even hear the gears in everyone's brains stop turning.

They were already numb from the shock, and they stared at the divine brigadier in utter disbelief. For a long, long while, not a single soul spoke.

But eventually, someone broke the silence, "What? The divine brigadier wants to marry his daughter off to Levi?"

Realization finally struck the audience after a long lag, and it sent ripples across everyone's souls. It was as unbelievable as saying Levi was the strongest person in the world, so everyone's jaw dropped.

Queenie was giving Levi a look of scorn and contempt. "He's dead last on the Divine Leaderboard, while I'm one of the top ten. I'm leagues above him. Besides, I'm young and single, while he's married. And his daughter's already grown up.

"I will never marry a taken man even if that's the last thing I do. And father, do you have any idea what everyone thinks of him? He's nothing but a baby making machine in their eyes. He's leagues beneath me in terms of strength, talent, age, and background! And you, Levi! I'm way out of your league, so you can forget about ever marrying me!"

Since her father himself said that Levi had agreed to the arrangement, and Queenie knew her father wouldn't lie, she thought Levi was the one who proposed the marriage in the first place.

However, everyone got it all wrong. The divine brigadier was the one who begged Levi to marry Queenie, but with how things were turning out, everyone thought Levi was the one who begged the divine brigadier to match him up with Queenie.

That perception was putting Levi in a bad spot, and Levi realized that from a mile away. If it weren't for the fact that there were too many people around, Levi would have started rampaging. Suddenly, he felt a chill running up his spine. For some reason, he felt death itself staring at him from behind. If he wasn't careful, he might just get killed right there and then.

He turned around and saw Levi glaring at him furiously, his eyes filled with murderous intent. A destructive force was brewing within Levi, and he could feel it. The energy was almost palpable, and it was crashing down on him. It was as if he was facing a force of nature, and he could do nothing about it.

In the end, he realized he had caused a lot of trouble for Levi, and he quickly excused himself lest Levi kills him. "Um, well... I'll leave you guys to it. I'll have to go now. I'm worried about Queenie."

Levi would tear me apart. Gotta skedaddle.

Levi noticed what the divine brigadier was trying to do, and he wanted to give chase, but everyone got in his way, stopping him.

"What are you doing? Trying to go to The Cardinal Hall so you can ask for her hand in marriage? You're a worthless piece of scum, Levi," Henry spat.

“Stop lying your way out of this. Leave everyone else out of it and just say you agreed to the deal! You’re not that kind of lying scumbag.”

Zoey was in tears, enraged by the ‘fact’ that Levi was lying through his teeth.

Everything turned out to be how Levi expected it to be. Once the divine brigadier made the announcement, not a soul in the world would think he was lying.

After all, he was the leader of an esteemed organization, so everyone would instinctively think a man like him would never make empty promises or tell a lie. Especially not for a guy like Levi.

To them, it was just a small matter, so there was no need for him to lie. But if he wasn’t lying, that automatically meant the liar was Levi.

Even if Levi told the divine brigadier to come back and tell everyone the truth, they would never believe it. The stereotype was already deeply entrenched within them, after all.

That was the first time someone ever challenged The Cardinal Hall on their turf. The Cardinal Hall was the strongest martial arts organization, and it housed countless powerful fighters.

With the divine brigadier's return and the divine generals finally coming out of their solitary training, all the top fighters of The Cardinal Hall were ready to fight at a moment's notice. Anyone who dared to cross them would be wiped out immediately.

Right after Levi's arrival, countless fighters came out and surrounded Levi. They were like angry predators that were ready to tear their prey apart.

Edmund was especially furious after Levi insulted his father. "Damn you, Levi! You think I wouldn't do anything to you? Kill him!"

He had tolerated Levi's insolence a few times now, but he couldn't take it anymore after Levi insulted his father.

Queenie sneered. "Why did you come, Levi? Can't take it because I rejected you? Is that why you came here? To rile us up?"

The divine brigadier looked at him gleefully, waiting for Levi's answer. However, Levi was about to explode in fury. Is he really that dumb, or is he just playing dumb? Is he doing this on purpose?

Does he even get what I'm saying? Levi was truly enraged now after the divine brigadier crossed the final line.

The divine brigadier could feel the pressure and murderous intent coming from Levi, and he panicked.

He tried to explain, but Levi spared him no such mercy and sent him flying with a single punch.

The divine brigadier coughed up blood and toppled over from the enormous pressure Levi was emitting. His knees started paving their way into the soil, and he looked worse for wear.

If he hadn't set up the air wall, half of The Cardinal Hall would have been destroyed just from the impact of that punch. But there was no time to worry about that. At that moment, the divine brigadier could feel all his organs exploding into little pieces, and cracks were showing up on his body.

The divine brigadier's aura shot up into the heavens and threatened to rip it apart. It didn't take too long for the pill to fully heal him and raise his strength to unimaginable heights.

He was just like a living, breathing mountain right now. Every step he took rumbled the earth and shook the heavens. When he dispelled the air wall, the pressure coming off him slowly poured down on The Cardinal Hall.

Everyone felt it, of course, and it suffocated them.

"What power! That's the divine brigadier for you. That's the strongest man in the world."

"He probably didn't even do anything. All he had to do is just stand there and Levi's already learned his lesson. I bet he knows he got himself into big trouble now."

"Where's Levi? Bet he ran away with his tail between his legs. He probably won't come ever again."

"Are you sure you're not mad, father? You want me to charm him?" Queenie asked hesitantly.

"Yes, and this is your final chance. You need to get to it now! If you're even one step late, someone else is going to take him for herself," the divine brigadier urged.

"What? But father, what's so good about Levi? Why do you want to marry Queenie off to him? And on top of that, you want her to make the first move?" Edmund asked curiously.

"Alright, shut the f*ck up and get the f*ck out." The divine brigadier chased his stupid son out. He did not want to hear Edmund's voice anymore.

Edmund was flabbergasted. His father used to love him to bits, but he seemed to have changed a lot after he came back.

Queenie suggested, "Father, I know why you're doing this. You want me to marry him because he has great genes, right? You want to get more geniuses out of him, but won't this make us into a laughing stock? This is a stupid idea. If you really want more new blood, you can always ask Levi to get his wife pregnant again. You'll get more geniuses, and I won't have to marry him. That's two birds with one stone."

The divine brigadier let out a long sigh. The children aren't the ultimate goal here. "Queenie, you have no idea what's at stake. Just listen to me for once, will you?" the divine brigadier advised her.

And everyone took him up on his offer, "Fine. We'll see for ourselves then. Lead the way."

But nobody believed him of course. All they wanted to do was to expose his lies.

And then Mia came back in a hurry. "It's real, Zoey!" She panted. "Levi beat the divine brigadier. I saw it with my own eyes!"

Mia went after Levi the moment he left, but she didn't manage to stop him in time. When she arrived at The Cardinal Hall, the fight had already started.

Levi noticed her as well, but he paid no mind to her. And thus, she saw how Levi took the divine brigadier out with one punch.

“You mustn’t sign the papers, Zoey. Levi isn’t lying! This is all the divine brigadier’s plan! It has nothing to do with Levi!”

“Levi, why are you asking the obvious? Ms. Birmingham is here because of you!”

“What a joke. How could he ask her the reason for her presence on purpose?”

The crowd laughed mockingly.

“My father has asked me to observe you for a period of time, as he claims that you are extraordinary. Thus, I’m here to see what makes you so special. It’s also a good opportunity to stop my father from wanting me to marry you!” Queenie sneered.

“Everyone, don’t you worry. I will never marry Levi. Therefore, you don’t have to make a fuss over the divorce. Even if Levi wants to marry me, there’s no way I’ll agree. How can he be worthy of me?”

Queenie declared to Zoey and the rest that Levi and she stood no chance of being together at all.

Regardless of what Levi's opinion of the matter was, she would never agree to it.

However, the more she acted that way, the angrier everyone else got.

"Levi, we need a timeout. Since you no longer need our protection anymore, let's split up and train by ourselves for the time being," Zoey suggested.

"We support Zoey's idea. Everyone should just take a break."
