Chapter 2641 Bleeding Heart

After hearing what Daxon said, Death Fiend and the lot sensed that something was amiss.

They had complete trust in anything Levi said, and Levi told them that the Warmachines' attack would bring about a catastrophe.

Hence, seeing The Cardinal Hall and Dragonites handling the Warmachines with ease and complaining about wasting resources deploying fighters from The Cardinal Hall felt off to Death Fiend.

What went wrong? Did Levi make a mistake?

They still trusted Levi wholeheartedly and believed that he was telling the truth.

If that's the case, things might not be over just yet.

Especially Gary, who was giving it his all, handed over all the properties he had.

He believed in Levi, and wanted to take a chance.

Even though they hadn't used the entire nation's power this time, they had still used one-fourth of the power in the National Treasury.

That was a massive blow to the country.

It was especially so as they weren't able to use any of the power they had now.

Things were not looking good, and they were suffering quite a loss.

Playvolume00:00/00:44TruvidfullScreen

It was a grave problem now that Erudia had been weakened indirectly.

"Now, we'll have to minimize Erudia's losses as much as we can. You'll have to stop whatever plans to build Shelter. Sell the materials you haven't used, or you can use them somewhere else. Anyway, just do whatever you can to minimize the losses. You've been scammed by Levi, so now you have to clean up his mess," Donald said.

Craig and the rest looked conflicted.

The man had made a point.

None of them had thought of these problems at all.

They just thought that they wouldn't have to do anything else now that they had won the battle.

Mr. X laughed out loud when he heard what was said. "Hahaha! Did Maya Industries and Sacred Organization really send their backup? Is it true?" he questioned cautiously.

A few of them nodded. "Of course. They even showed their trump cards. They brought along the divine tools with them. I'm sure that they had prepared to attack Erudia, but had no chance to do so."

Hearing that, the former nodded and said, "Their goal is actually the same as ours, to find out Dragonites' trump cards and their firepower configuration. It's too bad Erudia won this time. If the Warmachines could threaten the country, Maya Industries and Sacred Organization would have attacked them long ago."

The others started chiming in, "I supposed those in Restricted Area 76 can't wait to fight already."

"Though they didn't attack this time, it is still beneficial for them. At least they have an idea of what Erudia's firepower configuration is now. They will have the upper hand the next time they attack."

"Erudia is finished. Hahahaha..."

This was the quickest Craig had given an order to his subordinates, and it was also one that he wanted to give out the most.

His men acted on it the moment they received the order.

"Also, stop the construction of Shelter immediately. We have to cut back our losses as much as possible. Get Gary here immediately. Go quickly!"

The order soon reached the frontline.

The soldiers standing guard had not gotten any sleep over the past few days.

They had been tense all this time, waiting for another battle to happen.

But it never came. Instead, an order to withdraw arrived.

"That's wonderful! We won!"

The construction workers began voicing their dissatisfaction after receiving the order to return home.

They had been raring to return.

All this while, almost everyone felt that it was useless to build the shelters.

Playvolume00:00/00:44TruvidfullScreen

Erudia had only kicked up a fuss because of what Levi had said.

"Erudia's defense team had retreated!"

"Did they really think this is the end? But I guess they had no choice but to accept it!"

"Mr. X's plan is indeed brilliant!"

Everyone in Lab of Gods exclaimed with joy when they received the news.

So far, everything went according to their plan.

Black Hawk tried to escape but to no avail, as Mr. X had locked him up in a secluded place.

At this point, Mr. X would not allow anyone to ruin his plan. He said to Black Hawk, "Thanks to you, our plan has finally come to fruition! In two days, you shall witness the fall of a powerful nation!"

Mr. X mimicked an explosion with his hands.

That gesture sent chills down the Black Hawk's spine.

It's finally happening. The Lab of Gods is indeed a terrifying organization.

Since Levi has started his solitary training, he had no clue what their plan was.

Black Hawk broke out in a cold sweat.

He had no clue what to do anymore since Mr. X had tightened the security.

Black Hawk had no choice but to give up, and he prayed that Levi would notice something was amiss when the latter failed to contact him.

He would be able to prepare in advance if suspicion is aroused.

Now, he could only wait and pray.

Mr. X let out a cold snort when he left. "So it's really him."

Chapter 2650 One More Day To Go

There was still one more day to go.

Yet, Levi had not returned from his solitary training.

No one knew where Levi was either.

They would have panicked had they known they were about to face a sudden attack in an hour.

At this point, everyone in Erudia had let their guard down.

Some even began to express their dissatisfaction about Levi.

Playvolume00:00/00:44TruvidfullScreen

They believed Erudia had suffered a significant loss because Levi had given them false information.

Based on someone's calculation, Erudia had lost about fourteen percent of its resources even if they were to stop the Shelter project and sell off the remaining raw materials.
