Chapter 2671 That Is Levi

Senior Disciple burst out laughing all of a sudden.

Daxon looked a little hurt as he shouted, "I told you to give up on seeking revenge, didn't I? His power is way beyond your imagination! No one can possibly hope to get revenge on him!"

I mean, that's Levi we're talking about!

"No, Lab of Gods can! They can help me get my revenge!" Senior Disciple argued.

"All right, that's enough! I'm going back to Erudia!"

Not wanting to waste any more time arguing with him, Daxon turned around and walked off after saying that.

"Don't even bother! There's no way they'd let you return to Erudia! Haha..." Senior Disciple said while laughing.

"What?"

The look on Daxon's face changed instantly.

He's right! They won't let me return to Erudia now that they've lured me out of there!

"It's time to activate the Death Harbingers that we've scattered all over Erudia!"

With the command being given, Death Harbingers began popping up all over Erudia.

"What about us? When do we make our move?"

Lucifer, Jester King, and the others were eager to get in on the action.

"Be patient. We'll get to make our move once the Gods are released from Restricted Area 76! Remember, we're either going against Erudia and Restricted Area 76 after they're both weakened from battle or those two mysterious entities from Erudia! Therefore, there is no need for us to participate until they engage in battle, regardless of how eager you guys are!" Mr. X reminded them.

Hell Witch couldn't help but ask, "You keep talking about two mysterious entities in Erudia, Mr. X. What on earth are they, actually? Are they really that powerful? Even Sacroria is afraid of them!"

"Actually, I'm not too sure if the two mysterious entities really do exist. They are merely the stuff of legend, you see. I've only heard rumors about them, so I'm not too sure about the details myself. Regardless, Sacroria must be really afraid of them if they refused to show up. While it's possible that those are just rumors, there's still a possibility of them being true. If the two mysterious entities are real, then this battle should force them out of hiding. If they aren't real, then all the better!" Mr. X replied with a chuckle.

Everyone was listening attentively and hoping that the rumors were false.

X continued, "Now, let me

Chapter 2673 Much Stronger Than They Can Imagine

Craig nearly broke down in tears from regret when he saw what was happening.

This is largely because of me! In fact, I'm almost directly responsible for this! I insisted that the speculations wouldn't happen and stubbornly refused to take action unless presented with evidence. I always believed that I was right, but now, I've been proven wrong. Damn it, I should've believed those guys! They're the ones who see the truth for what it is! I chose not to believe them, and that resulted in all these deaths and destruction...

He gasped in shock when he saw the Leviathans approaching.

They were exactly as described by Levi with their heights reaching several hundred feet.

Fortunately, the wall surrounding the city was a thousand feet tall, so it could keep them at bay since they were mostly similar in size and appearance.

As if they didn't look domineering enough, the scales on their bodies reflected the sunlight really well, making it difficult to look straight at them without being blinded.

It was obvious that they were a fusion of ancient creatures and modern technology.

On top of that, they were armed with all sorts of equipment and weaponry just like in Levi's descriptions.

However, Craig and the others didn't have time to lament in regret as the Leviathans pressed on with their attack.

The attack injured and killed quite a significant amount of soldiers, much to the horror of Craig and the others.

Before they could even respond, more Leviathans had shown up at the scene.

Lab of Gods had sent about seven to eight hundred Leviathans there because that location was their key target.

Meanwhile, the rest of the Leviathans were sent to attack other cities and bases in groups of hundreds.

At that moment, the Leviathans from all over the world had gathered in Erudia and slowly marched their way into the country.

Staring at the seemingly endless sea of Leviathans, Craig and the others were really starting to panic.

“Set up forward operating bases again! Provide covering fire with everything you’ve got! We need to call in air support! Also, get the civilians behind us to safety! The farther they are from us, the better! We must protect this defense barrier and hold out until backup arrives! If they get past this defense barrier, all of Erudia will be theirs to take! I want another base set up about sixty miles behind us! That’ll be our final line of defense!”

Realizing the importance of defending the area, Craig ordered his men to guard it with their lives.

Some of them were about seven hundred feet tall while others were about four hundred feet tall.

These were much stronger than the small and medium-sized mechas earlier.

As they charged at the Leviathans and engaged them in battle, the remaining units coordinated their efforts to support Mecha Corps the best they could.

This time, they were able to hold their ground instead of getting torn to shreds instantly like before.

With the aid from the other units, the large mechas and mechanical beasts were able to put up a fight and bring the advance of the Leviathans to a halt.

Everyone knew they wouldn't be able to stop the enemy forces completely, and that the Leviathans would break through their defenses soon enough.

As such, they had to make every second count and set up the defensive base as quickly as possible.

"Hurry up! We won't get another chance at this!"

Chapter 2676 The True Power Of The Leviathans

Craig ordered the units in other parts of Erudia to adopt that strategy as they had to keep the Leviathans at bay until reinforcements could arrive.

However, the casualties were building up everywhere as The Cardinal Hall and Eragon were still without their leaders.

Although Gabriel and Eustace could pull it off, the soldiers from The Cardinal Hall and Eragon refused to take orders from them as they were from the ancient Garrison clan.

That resulted in everyone acting independently.

The ancient Garrison clan teamed up with the other non-military forces in the country, whereas The Cardinal Hall teamed up with Eragon.

Those from Carigrey Academy were with The Cardinal Hall at first, but they split up in the end due to the lack of a proper leader.

The spies from Lab of Gods tried their best to convince everyone to stick together as it would allow them to maximize their strength.

"What is it?" Craig asked anxiously.

"We've completed our analysis on the Leviathans, but we weren't able to find any weaknesses whatsoever! It seems they knew we would analyze them, so they designed them with no weak spots at all. However, we did notice that they each have a core which we believe functions as its brain. The core is also the source of the Leviathan's power and is located in the middle of its body. Unfortunately, that is the most difficult spot to attack as we need to break through the energy barrier all over its body before we can get to the core. They must've deliberately positioned the core where it is hardest to hit. This is why I say they have no weakness at all," explained the scientist.

"Is there any weapon in our arsenal that can damage the core? Anything at all?" Craig asked.

"That would be insanely difficult, sir. In fact, I believe we would all have been wiped out by the time we manage to hit the core!"

Everyone in the command center had gloomy expressions on their faces when they heard that.

"All right, I understand. Come with me!" Craig said as he led his men out of the room.

"Oh, and one more thing! Strikes thrown on the Leviathan's body are useless because the core is capable of healing it at an insane rate! There are plenty of materials on its body that we've never seen. It's possible that those are the ones responsible for its regenerative ability!" someone added, but hardly anyone was paying attention to him at that point.

The Lab of Gods' invasion had finally broken through Erudia's frontline.

Numerous were injured and dead.

"Save Craig!"

Everyone quickly rushed to rescue Craig from the fire.

"Retreat! Retreat immediately!" Craig shouted.

Shoosh!

Leviathan's second wave of attack came.

The attacks were the same as the first wave.

Boom!

The second wave of the barrage had hit them before they could get a breather from the first attack.

It decimated the entire teeming city into a deadland. A huge crater appeared from the cloud of smoke instead of the bustling city it was.

The sight of the barren land was a huge blow to the spirits of the Erudian army. It was a heavy loss on their side.

The Divine Brigadier was losing his mind from the pressure.

Everything was progressing smoothly according to the Lab of Gods’ plan.

By then, the entire world had known about the Warmachine invading Erudia.

Pandemonium stirred in every corner of the world.

After all, it was merely a few days ago when Warmachines had attacked different parts of the world.

The citizens were stunned to hear the Leviathans had struck Erudia again with a stronger attack than the last.

Panic stirred everywhere, plunging the entire world into an abyss of dread and trepidation.

Black Hawk gulped as he stared at Smythe. "Are you saying it's..."

"Yes! You're exactly right!" the latter interrupted with a smile.

"The truth is, we had known about it ever since Lab of Gods disappeared. They were the ones responsible for all these years of turmoil! Haven't you noticed how Zarain has been lying low this whole time? It almost felt like we've isolated ourselves from the rest of the world."

Upon hearing that, Black Hawk finally started to connect the dots.

"That's because we were developing ourselves while monitoring Lab of Gods' activities! We've been lying in wait for them!" Smythe added.

"I got it," Black Hawk replied with a solemn nod. "It's all clear to me now!"

Smythe then leaned into his ear and whispered, "Well, let me tell you another secret about Zarain..."

"W-What?" Black Hawk sputtered, eyes wide with disbelief as he listened intently.
