Chapter 2791 Massacre Of The Lab Of Gods

When the Archangels saw the arrival of the troops, their expressions turned grim, for they could somehow guess their impending fate.

Actually, from the moment they attacked the surface and realized what the material was, the truth had already dawned upon them.

No one knew how they were related to Zarain from behind the scenes.

Under the control of the Divinity Crushing Zone, the eighteen Archangels of Sacroria were heavily restrained.

The golden hue they previously emitted had already disappeared due to the effects of the zone.

Their weapons were equally useless after having been disabled.

Within Zarain's area of control, they were no different from lambs awaiting slaughter.

"Everyone, welcome to the Divinity Crushing Zone! The Godbusters are here to personally receive you!"

The Godbusters entered the battlefield and began massacring the troops from Diviniteria who couldn't move at all.

Naturally, they were unable to defend themselves and could only idly watch as their comrades were massacred.

Chapter 2792 Sudden Withdrawal

In the end, no one expected the Lab of Gods to be destroyed in such a pathetic manner.

How can it be that easy? Is this a dream or an illusion? There must be something suspicious going on!

Given how easily the Defenders of the Galaxy eliminated the Lab of Gods, everyone became wary.

No one could understand how it could've happened when the World Alliance was almost wiped out earlier.

Obviously, it wasn't as easy as it looked, for Zarain had to sacrifice a lot just to create the equipment in the first place.

It was a testament to how much preparation was needed behind the scenes just for a moment's success.

In fact, Zarain might have spent decades of effort to achieve such results in half a day.

However, upon the destruction of the Lab of Gods, the alliance began to worry.

What if the Defenders of the Galaxy attack us? Considering how strong they are, what should we do? Will we share the same fate as the Lab of Gods? Will we stand a chance? After all, their armaments are frighteningly powerful.

Nonetheless, Forlevia knitted her brows, as she believed that the equipment won't be able to restrain her.

The fighters from Sacroria relied on their bloodlines and talents, which were abilities they were born with. For that reason, they became easy targets.

Looking at it from Zarain's perspective, no one was willing to abandon such a wonderful chance.

Letting the enemy go would allow them to recover their strength.

Once the different nations were allowed to do that, it would be more difficult to go against them in the future.

Clearly, the best decision was to attack the alliance at once.

Therefore, everyone stared at Smythe and his officers and wondered why they withdrew.

Smythe replied with a smile, "I know what all of you are thinking about. But let me tell you, the situation is a lot more complex than you imagine. Do you really think we do not want to attack?"

His words stunned everyone.

“The Defenders of the Galaxy has only one clear objective, that is to destroy Diviniteria. We do not have any other missions other than that. Therefore, obey my instructions now and withdraw!”

Upon Smythe’s orders, the Defenders of the Galaxy’s fleet left.

The fact that they withdrew was so shocking that everyone suspected that there was something going on behind the scenes.

Why didn’t the Defenders of the Galaxy attack? Are they being held back, or are they feeling fearful of something that Erudia possesses?

Feeling nervous, Black Hawk stared blankly at Smythe.

“Actually, the Lab of Gods hasn’t been wiped out yet. There are nineteen members including an ordinary human named Dr. Erebus. He’s the one responsible for most of their biological engineering experiments. Also, there’s someone else who is supposed to be the brains of their operation, Digital God. He is the one behind all the advanced technology the Lab of Gods possesses. They and some of their subordinates have yet to appear.”

Smythe added with a stern expression, “Your mission is to find them. Even though there’s only a few of them left, the threat they pose is larger than that of the Lab of Gods!”

“Got it!” Black Hawk nodded in response.

“You have to find them as soon as possible, do you understand?” Smythe remarked with his voice lowered.

“Understood. I’ll definitely get it done!” Black Hawk declared.

At the same time, he was filled with excitement, for this was the first time he had access to all of Shield’s resources.

Moreover, he wondered if Dr. Erebus was the reason why the Defenders of the Galaxy withdrew.

I don’t think that’s the real reason. Despite them still being a threat, it still isn’t enough to cause the Defenders of the Galaxy to withdraw.

However, since Daxon trusted Levi, he chose to ignore them and left.

When Levi heard about it, he too wasn’t bothered at all.

After all, the crisis had been resolved and there was no longer any threat.

Subsequently, the crowd began to discuss how to deal with the Leviathans.

Even though the fighters from Sacroria defeated the upgraded Leviathans easily, it was still close to impossible for the Dragonites.

Once they were back in Erudia, the Dragonites announced their decisions.

Firstly, Levi was still the Crown King and was given the authority to deploy forces. After all, he had proven himself in the recent battle where no one was his match when it came to formulating strategies.

Secondly, they were not only going to continue with Levi’s Shelter project but also increase investments in it.

Furthermore, many allies and neighbors of Erudia wanted to collaborate with Erudia on the project.

Levi’s initial plan was for a hundred shelters. But with the additional investments from Erudia and the allied countries, the plan was expanded to at least five hundred shelters.

With that many Shelters, they were no longer afraid of any future crises.

"What the f*ck? This..." someone swore from the shock.

"My God! What am I looking at?"

"T-This..."

Zephyr and his men felt as if their minds were blown when they saw traces of dead Leviathans.

Even though the Leviathans' bodies were blown into pieces and had sunk into the depths of the ocean, they were still easily recognizable due to their size.

Furthermore, there were three thousands of them that had now been slaughtered.

Consequently, everyone was shocked by the discovery and wondered who it was that was powerful enough to do such a thing.

Moreover, Atlantis' underwater facility didn't suffer any damage at all, other than for its main door.

On it, the giant print of a fist greeted everyone's sight.

Evidently, it was left behind by whoever killed the Leviathans.

They figured that he might have been trapped inside and smashed the door to get out.

Moreover, the reason would likely be one that would shock the entire world.

Holding that thought, everyone stared ahead with a solemn expression.

Zephyr remarked grimly, "It's a pity that I only managed to skim through the top-secret file. As I have never heard the other leaders mention the reason, I have no idea what it is."

"In that case, let's just quickly leave this place and report the situation to the leaders."

Sensing the horror that surrounded the place, Zephyr quickly left with his men.

"What? The Leviathans have all been eliminated? That's impossible!"

When the leaders of the Dragonites heard the news, they were filled with disbelief.

"It's true..." Zephyr related everything he saw.

That wasn't all. The scariest part of it was that the entrance of the private domain was in a morgue.

Obviously, nobody would've thought of that since no one would dare to step into the morgue except for specified staff or those who knew what lay behind it.

Besides, when the main hospital in Norham was first built, the private property was built as well. Even after so many years, no one knew what the wall at the deepest part of the morgue was connected to on the other side.

There, he carried out all sorts of terrifying experiments which shook the world.

Otherwise, he would've been overwhelmed by exhaustion since he had to pretend to be a good doctor and be in charge of the research of the Lab of Gods at the same time.

Speaking of hiding in plain sight, Dr. Erebus had truly hidden his true self well.

After carrying out a surgery, Dr. Erebus went to the morgue and entered the space beyond the wall.

Digital God seemed to understand what Dr. Erebus was saying because he started to tremble.

He fixed his gaze at Dr. Erebus and asked nervously, "Isn't this too much? Are you sure you want to do this?"

Digital God began to feel unsure once he knew what Dr. Erebus meant, which was completely out of his expectation.

"Why are you still worried about using extreme means when things had come to this? Do you think we can get our revenge on Zarain if we don't use extreme measures? You saw how tough they were! Normal strategies won't work against them! We can only do this if we want to get our revenge against them and the rest of the world! I've already made up my mind! We have to execute it before they find us! Even if we are to die, we shall die without regrets! We have to move immediately because Shield acts faster than we think!" Dr. Erebus announced with a serious expression on his face.

"Understood! Let's unleash our wrath on the world!" everyone yelled in unison.

Shield was indeed speedy.

With Black Hawk leading them, they had spread out and did their best to search all the training bases of the Lab of Gods, including the old ones and the one which was still developing at Erudia. They refused to let off any corner.

"Are you looking for Dr. Erebus too?" Black Hawk asked.

"Of course. His existence is a huge threat to everyone. I cannot rest assured until the day I locate him," Levi answered.

Black Hawk nodded. "That's right, but this is close to being an impossible mission. Do you have any suggestions?"

"That's true. We've searched for him all over the globe in the past two days, but our effort was in vain," Scindere added.

Polar handed a document to Levi. "This is all the information we managed to gather. There's no way we can find him with so little clue!"
