Chapter 2811

The Last Three Days

Since Levi had personally hinted about the four targets, Black Hawk naturally did not have any doubts about it due to his immense trust in the former.

It might have been an entirely different story if Shield was the one who made the discovery. Nonetheless, since the lead was from Levi and coupled with how the search results had matched well, Black Hawk had no reservations about its authenticity.

Needless to say, the information of the four targets would obviously fit in well with Dr. Erebus since he had specially enlisted them as his substitutes.

There was no way Shield could grow suspicious.

What followed was for them to track down that four targets.

Meanwhile, a hype resulted shortly after Death Fiend put the information up for sale.

Countless people were fighting to lay their fingers on it.

Major forces also began searching based on the four targets.

Upon learning about the reactions of the various forces and Shield, Dr. Erebus was on cloud nine.

Even at this point, Dr. Erebus remained calm and collected. It seemed like it did not cross his mind that someone would advance that quickly in their investigations.

“Two days! I’ll be done with

“Let’s fight against them and wipe them out! How could they have the gut to get under our skin! D*mn it!”

“How could Xyperia took Idrae’s side?”

Troy and the others flared up. They could barely wait to strike against Idrae and Xyperia, and skin them alive.

“Not only that, even the mysterious force is going after those who dare to take up the bounty! Not to mention, there is more than one mysterious force. I have a hunch their subordinates might even outnumber those assigned by Idrae! Thus, all those thinking of taking up the bounty are eradicated. As a result, it scares the wits out of the others,” Digital God explained further.

Only then did they realize that the current circumstance was a lot worse than expected. Idrae, Xperia, and the mysterious forces were seemingly in sync with each other, leaving no stones unturned.

They joined hands to ensure whoever tended to take up the bounty would be gotten rid of. In the worst-case scenario, anyone who was able to cure Evie’s poison would be killed sooner or later.

Before that, Idrae and the others were not worried if they did not manage to stop anyone who proclaimed they could cure Forlevia’s poison. After all, her poison was too strong, and it was almost impossible to be expelled. Hence, they only needed to eliminate the possibility of anyone trying to cure her poison by all means.

However, things were different since half of Forlevia’s poison was expelled. They foresaw it would not be long before her poison was completely cured if Levi carried on with the bounty.

Thus, Idrae, Hydron, and the mysterious forces made a deal and tried to stop anyone from curing Forlevia’s poison at all costs.

Even if any fighters from Erudia decided to take up the bounty, they would not hesitate to fight against the former too. It was as though the persistence to eliminate any possibilities had driven Idrae and the others insane.

As for Levi, he was not the slightest bit astounded by the current hiccup.

In fact, he had been scheming to set up the masterminds in the dark with the announcement of the bounty. He intended to lure them into stopping anyone who tried to do so.

With that, they would indirectly give themselves away. Subsequently, Levi would be able to trace the identities of the forces destroying the blood alteration records, snatching his resources by deceiving him with the so-called Ten Millenium Snow Lotus, and manipulating Miracle Doctor.

Joy and delight filled the air of the entire secret lab. Everyone was ecstatic to learn that they had finally succeeded.

Everything about that lab had been assembled at the last minute.

Since Zarain had control of everything that Lab of Gods had left behind, they could not use any of their technology or equipment. Not even a fragment!

Alternatively, Dr. Erebus' lab was more inclined toward biological sciences, so there was no equipment or materials to manufacture transportation.

As the journey to the spiritual ley line was extremely complex, it goes without saying that they needed the best tool to build the most advanced transportation.

It had to be the best in every aspect.

Therefore, they could only rely on Digital God to put together the equipment and facility for the production of the transportation.

With the extra workload, the time they required had a multifold increase.

If they had the equipment in the first place, it would only take Digital God three to four days.

Yet, they had taken such a long time this round mainly because of the last-minute work.

Fortunately, Digital God, being the genius among geniuses, could complete the design and construction of the aircraft within a short time. It was indeed a mind-blowing feat!

With his eyes on the aircraft before him, Digital God chuckled. "For double protection, I've added an automation system. That means even if we got caught in the midst, the aircraft would still travel to the location of the spiritual ley line by itself as long as I activate the automation system. It'll then activate its weapon system and accomplish its mission of destroying the spiritual ley line."

At that, the rest could not hide their excitement and were all beaming with delight.

He's truly very reliable.

Before long, Digital God added, "I've also added the map of the route to the spiritual ley line in the self-destruction program. Once the aircraft is under attack or sabotage and reaches a certain limit, it'll automatically activate the program and head toward the destination on its own to execute its self-destruction. You can consider this as the third layer of protection."

Hearing those words, Dr. Erebus broke into a gleeful grin. "You're extremely attentive! Nothing can possibly go wrong this way!"

Suddenly, a voice sounded in the eerily empty morgue, shocking Dr. Erebus and Digital God.
"Oh yeah! How's Hydron doing at the moment? Why haven't they made any move even after assembling for quite a while? They haven't even sought Idrae for payback, have they?" Levi asked in bafflement when he suddenly remembered the organization taking the same stance as them.
"We're clueless about that as we haven't gotten any news from them," someone replied Levi.
On the other hand, Hydron had a conflict among themselves.
As the whole organization was targeting to stop anyone from curing Forlevia's poison, they assigned assassins to get rid of everyone taking up Levi's bounty.
On top of that, they were in sync with Idrae and the mysterious forces discreetly. At the same time, their organization was gradually expanding.

As time elapsed, some of the members started to voice their doubts. They had joined the organization with the intention of seeking vengeance against Idrae. Nevertheless, they found out the organization had not mentioned a single word about it.

The higher-ups of the organization used to assign assassins to assassinate the members of Idrae, but they had stopped doing so for quite a while.

Not to mention, none of them brought up the topic of taking revenge against Idrae again.

For the time being, the few higher-ups were solely thinking of obtaining more resources to strengthen themselves, expand the scale of the organization, increase the numbers of Deities, and even attract more avengers to join them.

Blinded by their greed, they had been exploited by others and tended to put the matter of taking revenge against Idrae out of their minds.

No doubt, the members understood their need for resources and Deities to expand the organization.

Undeniably, it was highly challenging to get rid of the mighty Idrae. Thus, they could accept that the higher-ups had no choice but to give in to Idrae temporarily while trying to strengthen their capability through strong resilience.

However, they could not fathom why the higher-ups not only held their tongue about taking revenge against Idrae but also joined hands with them!

They would not question if the higher-ups intended to teach Levi a lesson by stirring up troubles so his daughter's poison could not be cured. After all, he should not have rejected to join their organization and seek vengeance against Idrae together with them.

Chapter 2815

Things Became Interesting

Dr. Erebus had uttered those words to make Digital God realize that it was impossible for them to escape once they had fallen into Levi's hands. Since Levi came alone, it meant that he had prepared a flawless plan.

Hence, Dr. Erebus was hinting at Digital God to activate the automation system for the aircraft.

Once the latter understood it, he immediately activated the automation system and instructed the aircraft to head to the spiritual ley line.

In another passage, two aircraft that had just been transported out were suddenly activated.

With rumbling sounds, they flew out and disappeared in an instant, surprising the others.

Digital God had designed the two aircraft specifically. They were even installed with stealth technology to avoid being detected by Zarain.

Hence, they left Zarain silently.

Even if they were discovered, it would be too late.

Furthermore, even if that were to happen and the aircraft got shot at, they would still be fine.

By then, the self-destruction program would be automatically activated.

Later, they would follow a predetermined route and head to the spiritual ley line, where they would undergo self-destruction.

There were two aircraft because one of them was a substitute to increase the chances of success.

More terrifyingly, once the automation system or the self-destruct program was activated, no one could stop it, not even Dr. Erebus or Digital God.

It was a one-sided and extreme method.

Since they had fallen into Levi's flawless trap, it was impossible for them to head to the spiritual ley line themselves.

Hence, they had no choice but to activate the automation system.

Once that was done, Digital God heaved a long sigh of relief.

You didn't take me seriously even though you knew my prowess. You're just wary of the traps I've set."

Dr. Erebus paled upon hearing that.

Even Digital God was stunned.

“You pretended to give up. But in actual reality, you’re making a last-ditch effort to kill me, or at least go down with me. After all, you’re dead either way. You’re thinking of taking me down with you in an attempt to break out of here.”

Levi guessed right.

Dr. Erebus never thought of giving up. He wanted to make a last-ditch effort.

Not only was he planning to make Digital God activate the automation system to open up the spiritual ley line, but also to kill Levi.

He wasn’t taking Levi seriously even though he admitted Levi was strong.

What he truly feared was Levi’s strategies and traps.

He believed that Levi wasn’t alone and had brought a lot of fighters along.

Moreover, Shield and forces from all over the world would come after him if he exposed himself during the fight.

That was what he was most afraid of.

However, he decided to make a last-ditch effort.

He would take Levi out first before forcing his way out to see if he could make it.

Of course, no one would leave this place alive once Digital God opens the spiritual ley line.

He was going to die sooner or later anyway.

Nonetheless, he wanted to see everything destroyed before his eyes to feel a sense of accomplishment.

That was Dr. Erebus’s and Digital God’s shared objective.

It felt really peculiar to Digital God.

Why does it feel like these two men are stronger than the gods I know? What did I miss?

Moreover, he had a feeling that it would be an earth-shattering fierce battle.

At that moment, he was hoping that a fight would ensue between those two to see who the best of the two was.

Tension was thick in the air.

Just then, Levi laughed. "But I never thought of killing you. That's not why I'm here!"

"Huh?"

Dr. Erebus and Digital God were stunned.

"Or else why would I put so much effort into diverting everyone else away and find you before they did? I could have just teamed up with Shield if I wanted to kill you, right? That would have been much easier," Levi explained.

Dr. Erebus frowned and nodded his head instinctively.

"Shield did want to kill me since they don't see value in the Lab of Gods' testing ground. You're right. You would have teamed up with them if you wanted me dead."

Levi smiled. "Or perhaps you can sense if you're being ambushed."

Dr. Erebus realized he was being too nervous upon hearing Levi's words.

Indeed, he didn't sense any danger in his surroundings.

Anyways, they can't all be better than Levi. Or else, Sacroria would have turned into a laughing stock.

That meant Levi never arranged for an ambush.

"Then what are you here for?" Dr. Erebus asked.

"Follow me! I won't kill you! Let's talk after we leave this place!" Levi replied.

"Okay. Let's see what you have in store for me."

After all, the aircraft's automation system had been activated. He had nothing left to do with the mission anymore. Hence, he didn't see the harm in following Levi to see what was going on. It was better to leave with him rather than wait for Shield.

Just like that, all three of them left the hospital.

Digital God smiled gleefully.

Suddenly, Levi returned. “I won’t kill you. Instead, I will offer you a chance to join me.”

Levi’s words shocked Dr. Erebus.

Numerous organizations were searching for Dr. Erebus to get him to join them. They wanted to utilize what he knew about the Lab of Gods.

However, Dr. Erebus never expected Levi to want this too.

It was completely unexpected.

“Of course, joining me doesn’t mean that you have to submit to me. You can continue to carry out your experiments. If I am not mistaken, you are not interested in the power struggle in this world. Instead, your interest and goal lie in biological research. Previously, you joined the Lab of Gods because they provided you with a better environment and resources for research, isn't it?" Levi said.

His words stunned Dr. Erebus.

Then, Levi continued, "I've looked through many of your researches. It seems you have devoted yourself to researching the bloodline of every species in the world to create the perfect being you desired. You probably want something like the Doomsday Seed Vault in Archulea."

The ever increasing energy shook the earth.

It seemed as if the earth was on the verge of cracking under the immense pressure.

The sky looked on the verge of bursting from the intensity of this energy.

Only Dr. Erebus understood the intensity of that energy.

Veins bulged all over his body from exertion, and his expression was ferocious.

He was using all the strength he could muster to resist it.

However, his body was at its breaking point.

He could not hold on much longer.
