Chapter 911

“Beat them up! I don’t want to see them standing anymore!”

Levi took a puff of his cigarette.

White Tiger and the rest of the Five Great Wars Regiment clashed against the eighty skilled fighters.

As expected, these people were more challenging, and taking them down required more energy.

Levi understood why Peace Hotel could protect all of their guests with the bold claim that once they stepped into the hotel, they would be safe.

With so many powerful fighters guarding this place, who could possibly lay a finger on them?

Forget about eighty of them. Even the eight men guarding the entrance would scare anyone in South Hampton from breaking in.

Unfortunately, they were up against Levi Garrison this time!

The battle grew more intense.

All the staff at Peace Hotel were dumbstruck.

The walkie-talkie in Herman’s hand had even fallen to the ground.

Sweat covered his whole body, not from heat but from fear, because the security guards of Peace Hotel were incapacitated one after the other.

A group of people poured out of the hotel.

In the middle of the crowd stood an old man in traditional clothing.

He was none other than the owner of Peace Hotel, Osborn St-Jacques.

When he had first heard about someone causing a scene at Peace Hotel, he paid it no heed.

After all, who would dare to cause trouble here?

However, he had no choice but to show up after receiving the latest news about it.

"Young man, I am Osborn St-Jacques, the owner of Peace Hotel! I'm sure that you know the rules here. Do you have an explanation for all of this?"

Although Osborn's tone sounded amiable, it had an edge to it at the same time.

Levi chuckled and uttered, "Oh, my apologies, but I've always been a rule-breaker. And today, I've broken the rules of your hotel!"

"You..." Osborn's anger skyrocketed.

Osborn was smiling broadly when he continued, “I’ve treasured peace my entire life. Making one more friend is better than one more enemy. What do you say, young man?”

“Let him go on my account. Just take it as me owing you a favor!”

The crowd was shocked.

They could hardly believe that Osborn had lowered his ego as he offered to befriend Levi.

This was an extremely rare occurrence.

People had always owed Osborn favors, not the other way around.

It wouldn’t make sense for Levi to turn him down!

This involved Peace Hotel’s reputation as well!

Out of everyone’s expectations, Levi sneered in return. “Your friendship means nothing to me!”

“Nonetheless, after I’ve settled my matters, perhaps we can still talk about being friends!”

Klaus became a bundle of nerves when he heard what Levi had uttered.

Levi's question stunned Osborn.

Stop him?

It would take a whole lot more to be able to stop him.

All of my top fighters are incapacitated, so who's going to stop him for me?

"I can't stop you, but you'd do well to remember this! Since you've broken the rules of Peace Hotel and humiliated me, from today onwards, I, Osborn St-Jacques, will use all of my connections and power to come after you! I will make your life a living hell!" Osborn yelled at Levi.

"Sure. I'll be waiting for you, then!"

With that, Levi turned on his heels and left.

Thump!

Osborn stumbled back and fell on his bum.

He was on the brink of tears.

From this day onwards, Peace Hotel would cease to exist.

He seems to match the details of this incident.

Nonetheless, how could it have been Levi?

How could he have turned the whole of South Hampton upside down by himself?

He had even trampled all over the powerful families there?

That's rather impossible.

Meredith was green with envy when she uttered, "If only there was someone like that amongst our younger generation. Not to mention, turning South Hampton upside down is equivalent to turning South City upside down. If we had a descendant of such caliber, I'd be so happy that I wouldn't be able to sleep."

She sighed before continuing, "The Black family can only rely on..."

As one, everyone's gazes fell on Zoey.

Amongst the younger generation in their family, she possessed the most potential.

If it weren't for Levi's appearance, the Black family would probably have risen through the ranks by now.

"But..." Zoey blushed because this meant that she was going to meet her mother-in-law. Seeing as such, she was nervous about it. "Okay. I'll accompany you."

Levi nodded as he smiled. "Get ready then. We'll be setting off tomorrow."

Phoenix was able to deduce where Emma was currently being held; she was in Margo City, a small city located in the center of North Hampton, South City, and South Hampton.

Having never thought of such a place, Klaus and the Joneses were brought to shame, in view of the fact that the woman they had wanted to kill lived just less than an hour's drive away from them.

Levi was equally as surprised to discover that his biological mother had been nearby all along.

Upon stepping out of the car, Levi took a deep breath as he looked at the word "Oakland" that was engraved on a stone monument beside the road.

At that point, the furious man mumbled to himself, "So, this is where my mother has been imprisoned for nearly thirty years?" What a cruel thing it is to have imprisoned someone here for the rest of their life. It's almost like binding a person by invisible shackles, forever reminding them that they're incarcerated and that they would rather die. How could the Garrisons have been this ruthless? How could my biological father have married another woman while his wife was suffering in such a place? Does the man not have a conscience? Heck, is he even a man at all?

Conscious of the fact that Levi was rather tempted to smash the stone monument, Zoey soon uttered, "Don't overthink it. I know that it's unfortunate that Emma met a scumbag, but we can give her a better life from now on. We'll make it up to her."

"Okay, but he won't be getting away with this! I shall find him!" promised Levi angrily, causing Zoey to be frightened by his response.

It would have been hard for anyone to have missed the tombstone in such a small yard; hence, Emma was constantly reminded not to leave Margo City.

The tombstone was not just a reminder of the Garrisons' threat. To Emma, seeing the tombstone was like seeing Levi, so nothing made her happier than spending her time thinking about her son in front of it.

Hence, Levi felt infuriated as he gazed upon the tombstone along with his mother's prison.

Zoey and Sylas shivered when they sensed that Levi was about to explode with rage.

As a member of royalty in South Hampton, my mother was supposed to enjoy a luxurious life! Nonetheless, she was imprisoned here by that scumbag! Seeing as such, how could I not be furious about it?

Chapter 919 Meeting His Biological Mother

Wishing for her son to gain control over the Garrison family, Emma hoped that her son would make something out of himself. Hence, she gave Levi his first name. Unfortunately, the Garrisons forbade him from carrying their family name because they saw him as a bastard who did not deserve it.

Levi was supposed to be a Jones, but Emma begged once more for her son to be able to keep his biological family's last name, and at long last, the biological father agreed.

This was the only request from Emma that the man had ever agreed to.

A sharp glint flashed across Levi's eyes; he swore to avenge his mother, uninformed of the fact that he had almost lost the right to become a Garrison.

"It seems that Emma was sick," stated Zoey. She had found some medication in the cabinet.

That's Emma? The two turned to gaze at the woman in shock. Soon, Levi received a message from Phoenix: Emma Jones has been working as a sanitation worker.

The hacker even sent him a photo, to which Levi compared to the woman across from him. It's the same person. That is my mother, Emma Jones!

Emma was only in her fifties, but her hair had already turned gray. Her face was as wrinkled as a seventy-year-old woman.

She was so skinny that it looked as though a gust of wind could blow her away.

Time and illness had not been kind to Levi's mother.

Looking at Emma's miserable state, Zoey could not help but cry.

Levi was not faring any better either, for tears had started to flow down his face.

As a man, it was only natural for him to have cried over someone whom he held so dear to him.
