Chapter 331

Chapter 331

Gina glanced at the nearest Bugatti LVN, noting a ten-centimeter scratch on the door.

On the opposite side, the Koenigsegg Golden Phoenix displayed a smashed headlight.

And a Pagani ZHB sat nearby with a deflated tire and puncture.

Observing her own collection of supercars destroyed. Gina seethed with anger. Colin lingered in the crowd, seemingly amused by the spectacle. Yet, he also offered a “kind” remark, saying. “Miss Miller, this man subdued by the security guards may be mentally challenged. He held a knife but did not harm anyone, only the cars. It’s really a pity about your car. You’d better call the police.”

Gina raised an eyebrow, looking at Colin and casting a sneer at him. “The damage seems to be exclusively to my cars, quite the coincidence. Mr. Barnes.

Colin grinned mischievously. “Who’s to say otherwise. Miss Miller! Looks like luck isn’t on your side today.”

Standing beside Colin. Olivia realized that all three of the top-of-the-line supercars destroyed belonged to Gina, a fact that stirred up bitterness and jealousy within her.

The manager, now composed, stepped forward and knelt before Gina. “Miss Miller. I apologize...

Gina hid her anger and instructed. “Stand up and speak.”

He rose and explained. “Miss Miller, this man purchased a ticket like any other guest to visit the exhibition. He went berserk with a knife, causing mayhem. Initially, we hesitated to intervene, fearing for safety, but then we only targeted cars, not people. We promptly restrained him”

She had no need for further explanation. Without much thinking, she had already realized that it was Colin who started the attack in retaliation for her previous assault on his wine warehouse.

referring not to vent her frustration on the innocent, Gina instructed the manager. "Call the police to handle this."

"Okay."

As Gina departed, the manager continued apologizing behind her. "Miss Miller, I'm truly sorry for what happened today..."

Colin watched Gina leave and smirked, turning to Olivia beside him. "Well, what do you say? You were embarrassed in front of everyone, kneeling and apologizing to her. Now, I've gotten someone to ruin her cars and have taken action to retaliate for you. Are you satisfied now?"

Olivia chuckled awkwardly. Colin did all this because he wanted to take revenge on Gina, but he actually framed it as a favor to Olivia and even wanted her to expect gratitude in return.

What a madman!

But Olivia really had to act like she was grateful to him. "Thank you, Mr. Barnes," she said.

Colin touched her face. "You don't have to say that. After all, you are my friend, aren't you? Besides, we've slept together, so of course, you're different to me."

Olivia laughed awkwardly and played along with his act.

Outside the exhibition hall, Gabriel sat in his car and answered David's call.

"Mr. Jackson, I've already contacted various media outlets and removed the negative news all over the internet. For the Gina happened to get into the car and noticed that Gabriel's serious face. "What's wrong?"

Gabriel showed Gina the news that he had just taken a screenshot of. "Earlier, I went to Star Entertainment Company to choose a game spokesperson. I met an artist, and now someone writing an article about her and me

Gina glanced at the screenshot, and the news headline was inded quite sensational.

The president of the Jackson Group was dating his artist lover when his girlfriend caught him in the act and beat his lover up!

Attached to it was the image of Nancy running out of the VIP lounge with her face covered.

It could be said that the article was entirely fabricated with only photo. The news originated from a very small media company, probably eager to make a name for itself and willing to take extreme measures to do so. This explained why they dared to report such baseless information Additionally, the new involved Gabriel Jackson. They might have felt emboldened because they had nothing to lose and were not intimidated by the prospect of being sued by Gabriel Jackson's legal team.

screenshot also captured a couple of related comments.

didn't realize that Miss Miller isn't even Mr. Jackson's fiancée yet, but she has to be busy catching adultery? If she really marries him, does she have to be busy beating up Mt. Jackson's mistresses every day?"

"The rich's world is so messy

"Star Entertainment Company got Nancy to clarity right away, saying that she just went to the wrong lounge that day. But obviously, the netizens don't believe it," Gabriel said.

After all, Nancy covered her face with her hand and ran out, which really looked like she had been beaten and cried,

Next, they could only wait for the frenzy among netizens to subside naturally. After all, reiterating their stance would likely not convince those who remained skeptical and would only persist in fueling the controversy.

Ignoring the matter was the best approach.

Gina wasn't concerned about how the public perceived the situation but rather about the ten-point drop in Jackson Group's stock price due to this trivial news.

"The stock price..." Gina trailed off, worried..

"It's not a big deal. I'll handle it, Gabriel reassured her, dismissing the matter. He took Gina's hand and suggested, "Today was meant for relaxation. Let's set aside everything else for now. Tonight, promise me you'll join me for dinner, then we can take a leisurely stroll before heading back to my place?"

"Okay" Gina nodded.

Chapter 332

As she thought about it, Nancy suddenly felt envious of Gina for having such a wonderful man who loved her deeply.

"Are you deaf?" Aria raised her voice at Nancy.

Aria looked at Nancy, who was lost in thought.

Nancy gathered her thoughts, rose, and courteously poured a glass of water for Aria, saying, "Miss Torres, please calm down first.

Aria sneered and said, "Nancy, if you were half as good at acting as you were that day, you'd already be a big star, wouldn't you? So, you went through the trouble of pretending to be an idiot to brazenly enter the lounge and seduce Gabriel in broad daylight. It's you who wanted to exploit the opportunity to stir up the scandal between you and Gabriel. You're quite something. I really underestimated you."

Nancy allowed Aria to vent her anger and scold herself. "Miss Torres, I understand you're angry right now. Part of your anger stems from being friends with Miss Miller, and my mistake that day has made you feel guilty about your friend. The other part is your concern that if Gabriel gets angry, he'll retaliate against the entire Star Entertainment Company. But don't worry. With you and Miss Miller being friends, I believe Mr. Jackson won't take any action against Star Entertainment Company? –

Aria grew angrier as she listened. "You're too scheming

Nancy nodded and admitted, "Yes, you're right about me. I'm indeed scheming, and that's all I have. Miss Torres. As you said. I'm not good at acting. I'm too replaceable in the entertainment industry. But it's different now, isn't it? And you have to acknowledge, at least I have some visibility now, even if it's negative. All my social media accounts have gained a million followers more. I've issued clarifications, stating that I have no involvement with Mr. Jackson, but the netizens don't believe me. I can't control their minds, can I?"

"You... Aria didn't know what to say now.

Aria took a deep breath, unable to retort.

"Miss Torres, you shouldn't be angry. Anger is bad for your health. Businesspeople prioritize profit, and you shouldn't dwell on the guilt of involving her in the bad news. This scandal can generate more revenue than you imagine. The name Gabriel carries more weight than any marketing campaign, right?"

Now, the public wouldn't overlook her as an unknown artist. She was the only one rumored to be involved with Gabriel.

Moreover, if I'm banned now, the next narrative will be that Mr. Jackson abused his to silence me. Then, I might transition from being a participant in the news to being a victim."

Harry curled his mouth into a slight smile with a cold face. "Maybe, but I'm not very sure about that Edward laughed. "It's normal for young people to want to get together during the passionate phase of love, but after such a dishonorable incident today that made the stock price drop, shouldn't Gabriel go back to the company to deal with it? If Gabriel weren't in a relationship, he'd be at the company like before right now, wouldn't he? Even though the buzz has died down after the news was suppressed, the stock price has really dropped. I'm not saying I don't believe Gabriel can get the stock price back up, but it feels like he's less focused on his career since he started dating. Am I the only one who feels this way?" Edward asked.

Harry sneered. "You're not the only one who feels that way. It's the truth.

Edward feigned surprise. "So. Harry, you also feel the same way too?"

"Looks like Gabriel is really caught up in this relationship, Edwal said and laughed.

"Relationship? Humph, what kind of person is Gina? She's just nothing."

Edward continued to act surprised. "Harry, it seems you're not very satisfied with your future niece-in-law, huh?"

"Niece-in-law? Edward, don't you think it's too early to say that. She's just Gabriel's girlfriend now. She hasn't married into the Jackson family yet. It's not like she can get in Edward felt a bit embarrassed. He didn't mean to talk about other people's family matters, and he also hadn't expected Harry to have such a strong opinion about Gina.

"But Harry, it seems like the chairman is quite satisfied with Gina, right?" Edward asked, still in a gossipy mood.

"My brother James is just blinded by her. Sooner or later, he'll see her true colors. Gabriel is messing around and not taking his work seriously because of her, It's just that there's no major problem with Jackson Group right now. If there is a big problem happening in the future..."

Harry paused and then suddenly said, "No, we can't wait for a big problem to arise. As an elder, I'll step in. Tonight, the Jackson family is having a dinner at the old mansion. Gabriel will bring that woman back for dinner, and I'll have a good talk with him. He can't neglect his work just because of a relationship. If necessary, I'll ask him to break up with Gina!"

Edward chuckled nonchalantly. "The principle that all medicines have some toxicity applies to regular drugs. Didn't I just tell you that this medicine is a secret formula by Dr. Genevieve, and it's sold in limited quantities every year? They only sell 3,000 bottles, and if you can't get one, you'll have to wait until next year. If you miss a year, the effect won't be as good. I'm really helping you as a friend by telling you this.

"Otherwise, why would I go out of my way to bring myself a competitor to buy this capsule?"

"Oh, right, Dr. Genevieve also said not to advertise this medicine, and it's not allowed to communicate between buyers to prevent reselling. If Dr. Genevieve finds out that I'm leaking this information to you, I'll be blacklisted and won't be allowed to buy it anymore. I've just started taking it for a year, and I don't want to stop. Dr. Genevieve said that one must persist in taking it for five years and living healthily up to 120 years old is not a problem. Just the other day, I went for a check-up, and the doctor also said that my condition is very good. Living up to 120 is indeed possible.

I've only been taking it for a year, Harry. I'm not lying to you.

"You will trust me, won't you? Oh, if I knew you wouldn't believe me, I wouldn't have told you."

Edward put on a regretful expression.

Genevieve?

Harry had heard of this name before, but wasn't Genevieve always very mysterious? The outside world didn't even know and whether Genevieve was a man or a woman. Some said it was a tall and strong man, others said it was an elegant woman, some even said it was a dignified old person.

They were all rumors, and it was hard to tell which one was true or false. Harry didn't bother to verify them.

However, he once suspected that Genevieve didn't exist and was a name made up by someone. Yet, there were people who claimed that they had been cured of difficult and miscellaneous diseases by Genevieve. Now, Edward was talking about a magical capsule called Milaper that Genevieve had launched, which could prolong life and achieve immortality.

Harry originally wanted to gloss over Edward and skip this boring topic, but he suddenly thought of something.

this medicine really that magical?" Harry pretended to be curious about Milaper.

Of course!" Edward answered with great certainty. "Old buddy, do you think I'm lying to you, trying to sell you something? I've taken it myself. Don't you think I would know? Besides, if there was a problem with this capsule, could I recommend it to you?"

I've really been taking it for over a year. If there were any issues, they would have shown up by now. I'm still standing here in front of you, full of life, aren't I?"

Harry put on an expression as if he had taken it all in. "Old buddy. I'm not saying I don't trust you. You just sprung this on me so suddenly. I mean, I need time to process it, right? But upon seeing how energetic you are, I indeed am intrigued by this capsule.

"But I don't want to keep this to myself. You know Neil's health isn't great. If this capsule is really that good, I want to try it out for him as well. How about this? Tonight you come back with me to our house, have dinner with Neil, and recommend this capsule to him. Then, could you get some for us?"

Edward hesitated for a moment. "Alright, but don't be so polite. It's not much trouble. It's just that the selling period for the capsules has passed. If we want to buy more, we might have to find a way to get some from others. Although Dr. Genevieve doesn't allow reselling among buyers, it does happen in private,

"But the ones bought from others will be more expensive. 14 million dollars a bottle, and you need to take at least three bottles a year, all on specific dates and times. So, I've set an alarm to remind myself not to forget"

Harry was surprised. "There are even rules about when to take the medicine?"

Yes there are"" Edward nodded SEARCH the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

"Truth be told, it's been quite a while since I last met Neil. I heard he was hospitalized twice, and I didn't visit him, which I really should apologize for. It's a good opportunity to visit him this time, but as an outsider, would it be inappropriate for me to attend your family dinner?" Edward asked.

"You're being too formal. We're friends. What's the disturbance in having a meal together?"

"Alright. Edward laughed in response.

"I just found out when my dad called me a while ago. If I had known earlier that Harry insisted on being involved. I wouldn't have let you come back for dinner with me"

Gabriel didn't want to give Harry a chance to make trouble.

Gina didn't mind. After all Harry and Neil were family. What could she say about a family having a meal together?

Even if Harry deliberately chose this time to find faults with her, she wasn't afraid. She could handle Harry.

"It's okay," Gina said with a light and airy smile.

Gabriel, however, felt sorry for Gina. Blood ties and kinship weren't so easily severed, but he would never indulge Harry and let Gina be wronged.

"Let's go, and don't keep Mr. Neil waiting." Gina took the initiative to hold Gabriel's hand and said.

Gabriel squeezed Gina's hand and nodded.

Together, they walked into the old house.

Seeing Harry already seated at the dining table didn't surprise them, but seeing an unfamiliar face, Gina was curious and glanced at Gabriel, wanting to hear his explanation and introduction.

Edward, sitting next to Harry, took the initiative to greet them. "Hey, Gabriel, you're back. I guess this lady next to you must be Miss Miller. Miss Miller, you probably don't know me. Hello, my name is Edward Benderson, and I am one of the shareholders of Jackson Group.

Gabriel greeted Edward with an indifferent tone. "Nice to meet you, Mr. Benderson."

Gina then followed Gabriel's lead and greeted Edward in the same way. "Hello, Mr. Benderson."

Edward said with a beaming smile, "Hurry up and take your seat

Just meeting for a while, and the tension was already palpable

Edward, not wanting to incur Gabriels enmity, smiled and tried to defuse the situation. "I was just your just now I'm happy, and I don't consider myself an outsider. There are others here. The implication was that he wanted to have a good meal and leave without causing any trouble of Harry or anyone else in the Jackson family had many dissatisfactions with Gina, that was family business and he did not interfere or get involved.

He wanted Harry not to drag him

Harry temporarily calmed down

Neil stood up to greet Gina, which surprised Edward a bit. Neil seemed to be more than just said when Gina who had officially joined the family yet

"Gina, please have a seat. Have you been busy lately? Are you tired? No matter how busy you are you should pay attention to resting. If you're too tired, you don't stay alone." Neil chuckled and said.

Gina smiled. "Okay"

Gabriel was taken aback. Dad, what are you doing?

He barely had any time to begin with

I'm just worried that Gina is too tired Neil said with a smile.

Harry's annoyance with Gina grew with each passing moment. The sight of Gina seemingly integrating to the Jackson family only fueled the anger within him. Moreover, he had come to the mansion knowing that Gina would be joining Nel for dinner.

It was obvious that he was here to cause trouble for Gina. Unable to hold back. Harry interjected. "Neil is right. Don't go on too many dates and tire Miss Miller out. That wouldn't be good "Gabriel, when you're alone, you should deal with the company's work more and not fall behind.

Like today, when a not well-known minor celebrity used you for hype, the stock price was affected. Edward went to the company to ask you about the situation, but you weren't there, and he made a trip for nothing. The other shareholders are also very concerned about today's events due to the stock price drop, but they couldn't get in touch with you. As the person in charge of Jackson Group, can't such behavior be considered dereliction of duty?"

"Harry!" Neil called out to Harry in a slightly scolding tone. He didn't expect Harry to take a words and say such outrageous things. He had been keeping an eye on the stock pride drop, but how could this be blamed on Gana?

Shouldn't the blame fall on that minor celebrity who deliberately hyped up this trivial matter?

"Neil, you don't need to remind me. Am I wrong about anything?" Harry retorted.

Edward also felt a bit awkward. He didn't come back with Harry to question Gabriel and Gina, but Harry insisted on dragging him into this conflict, and he had no choice. However, he couldn't say that Harry was wrong about anything. What Harry said were all facts

Now, Edward was a bit eurious about how Gina would counterattack.

"Regarding the stock price drop, I haven't ignored it. I've let David handle it and also received the shareholders. Mr. Benderson, do you have any other questions? Since we are face to face now, if you have any issues, just raise them directly."

Originally, Gabriel didn't want to talk about work matters when he came back for the family dinner, but since Harry insisted on bringing it up, he would deal with it immediately to shut Harry up,

Edward felt a wave of embarrassment. "Ah, well, I don't have any issues at the moment."

"Then that's settled. Let's eat, Gabriel said.

But Harry wouldn't let go and continued to make Gina uncomfortable. "That's it? Gabriel, as the person in charge, you know very well how much impact a bit of negative news can have on Jackson Group. Before Harry could finish his sentence, Neil lost his temper. "Harry! That's enough! I originally didn't want you to come to today's family dinner, but you insisted on coming I told you in advance that if you came, don't look for trouble. Our family) is sitting together to have a good meal. Did you really take my words as idle talk?"

Harry disagreed. "Neil, where am looking for trouble? Did I make up the news that broke out today? It's there for everyone! to see, right? Edward couldn't find Gabriel at the company, and because of the stock price drop, he was worried about the company's future. That's true, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's true, but what does this have to do with Ginu? It's just a piece of trash news. Just let it cool down. Spending time arguing over it just makes a joke out of it for netizens to see. Besides, when has Gabriel ever been careless about work? Are you kidding me? His abilities, are you unclear about them? Can't he balance love and career? Are you joking with me?" Neil argued rationally, and due to the excitement, his breathing became rapid.

Harry sulked and retorted. "Neil, I'm not doubting Gabriel's abilities, but the fact is that Jackson Group, which has never had any issues, is now facing problems. We must be vigilant

In reality, the reason why this baseless scandal had such a significant impact on Jackson Group's stock price was precisely that the company had always been very stable, with no negative news to exploit. Thus, when this incident emerged, it became a target for those who saw Jackson Group as a rival or were actual competitors, all contributing to the spread of the story, which escalated the situation.

Edward, at this moment a true outsider, was the one who really felt uncomfortable.

Harry put down his fork, paused for a moment, and began to play the family card. 'Neil, do you remember how many years it's been since we've had a disagreement?

Neil sighed in exasperation. "I don't want to argue with you, but you insist on causing trouble for Gina. She hasn't done anything wrong Why do you have to target her "Alright, she's not wrong, it's all my fault. I'm the one making a fuss for no reason."

Harry gave a bitter smile.

Edward felt he couldn't just sit there and do nothing. He spoke up, intending to ease the tension, "Afright, let's not discuss business matters during dinner, shall we?"

"Okay Neil replied.

Neil wanted to calm down, but after the argument with Harry, he felt his heart becoming uncomfortable, so he held his chest and frowned.

Seeing this, Harry changed his attitude and said with concern, "Neil, are you feeling unwell? If you're not feeling well. go back to your room and rest. You don't have to force yourself to stay here and have dinner with us."

But Neil waved his hand, indicating that he was not seriously affected.

Gina had come here for a rare visit. He could not leave in the middle.

Edward enthusiastically took out the small medicine bottle that he carried with him and said. "Neil, are you feeling discomfort in your heart? I have medicine here for you to take. It's the Milaper I was just telling you about. The effect is very good!

"It can cure all kinds of diseases. I assure you that you won't feel any discomfort in your heart after taking it. You can try it now and see if it has any effect, to see if what I'm saying is true!"

Edward then poured out two capsules from the medicine bottle. Gina's attention fell on Edward's medicine. Seeing the medicine bottle with no markings, she thought of having seen the same bottle in Isabella's hand before.

When Edward handed the two capsules to Neil, Gina asked, "What kind of medicine is this?"

Edward glanced at Gina and said with a smile. "Miss Miller, since you asked and I don't consider you outsiders, I'll tell you. This medicine is a miraculous drug that can cure all kinds of diseases. Healthy people who take it can also live longer. It's very magical!!

Gina's eyebrows furrowed deeply. "Cure all kinds of diseases? There is no such miraculous capsule in this world."

Seeing Gina's disbelief, Edward was not surprised. "Hey, Miss Miller, I know that you must not believe it when I say this. At first, when I heard about this capsule, I also thought it was very mysterious and didn't seem real. But I've been taking it for a year, and whether it's effective or not, my body has shown the results. I'm really not deceiving you.

I might as well tell you that this medicine was developed by Dr. Genevieve, secretly sold, and limited edition. It's not something ordinary people can get

Gina was extremely shocked. "Developed by Dr. Genevieve?"

She was Genevieve, but Gina didn't want to reveal her identity.

Edward was speechless for a moment. Then why was she interjecting?

He was starting to feel as annoyed with Gina as Harry was.

"Then, Miss Miller, you shouldn't make arbitrary judgments. Whether Dr. Genevieve developed this capsule or not, I know better than you do. Edward's face turned cold. "Neil, you should try it. The effect is very good."

“Yes, Neil, Edward used to have a headache problem, and it was this capsule that helped him the most. Now he’s also taking this capsule to maintain his health. I saw him take two capsules with my own eyes before coming to the mansion just now. You can rest assured. Edward is not deceiving you.”

Chapter 337

Ned, you’re too polite. How many years have we known each other? Don’t be so formal

As Neil was about to take the capsules from Jodward’s hand, Gina raised her hand and grasped Neil’s wrist. “Mr. Neil, these Capsules are of unknown origin. They cannot be consumed, absolutely not Upon hearing the phrase of unknown origin, Edward instantly became furious. “Miss Miller, what do you mean? What’s this about being of unknown origin? Didn’t I just say that these capsilles were developed by Dr. Genevieve? How are they of unknown origin? Do you think I’m deliberately trying to harm Neil with this medicine?

I didn’t mean that Gina calmly explained.

Edward was still angry, “Then why are you stopping? I said the capsules are fine, and they are fine!”

With that, Edward swallowed the two capsules on the spot. "Now can this prove that the capsules are not a problem? I dare to eat them myself!"

Neil didn't expect Edward to be so agitated. "Edward, calm down first, Gina means no harm. She's concerned about me..."

Edward snarled "Miss Miller, you are really considerate. Neil, was also concerned about you just now. Miss Miller's outburst makes it seem like I'm trying to poison and harm you. Could I possibly have any ill intentions?"

Gina wasn't angered by Edward's words. This certified capsule was being sold under her name, Genevieve, and she had to figure out what was going on. Gina said, "Mr. Henderson, please let me inspect the capsules to see what ingredients they contain and whether there are any harmful substances"

Edward became even more upset. "What are you implying, Gina? If there were harmful substances in these capsules, would I recommend them to Neil? What kind of person do you take me for? We have no grudges against each other, right? Why are you making malicious assumptions about me?"

Neil didn't expect a family dinner to turn the house into such a chaotic scene and was speechless. However, he noticed that Edward kept mentioning Genevieve, trying to divert the topic and stop the argument. "Edward, you said your capsules were developed by Dr. Genevieve. Speaking of which, can you get in touch with Dr. Genevieve? I want to find her."

"So, you're trying to say that you're genuinely trying to help?" Edward said scornfully.

Edward sneered. "I think Miss Miller, you have a problem with me, don't you? Alright, you insist on investigating this capsule today, I'll let you investigate it so you won't think I have a guilty conscience. Take it."

Because he was angry, Edward directly took out the small bottle from his pocket and threw it onto the table, causing the bottle to roll onto the floor.

The atmosphere became somewhat awkward.

Gabriel saw this and bent down to pick up the bottle for Gina, handing it to her.

Gina looked at Gabriel and smiled. "Thank you."

Gabriel smiled and said nothing.

Gina opened the bottle and poured out the capsules.

Then Edward said again, "Pour out less, will you? This bottle costs 10 million dollars and is very expensive, you know? Do you think it's an ordinary capsule? Also, I'm telling you. If you make up nonsense today about harmful substances inside, I won't let you off the hook! I've checked the ingredients of the capsule myself, and I know exactly what's in it!

And Gina, I only know that you are the dean of Prover Hospital, but I haven't heard that you are also a doctor. Do you understand medicine?"

Neil stood up to speak for Gina. "Gina does understand medicine.

"The last time I had a severe heart attack, it was Gina who saved me. Gina is my savior."

After hearing what Neil said, Edward was speechless for a moment. However, he wanted to see if Gina was pretending to be mysterious. If she couldn't correctly say what was inside the capsule, he would not let her go.

Gina calmly opened the capsule and checked the ingredients inside.

How about it? Am I wrong?" Gina asked calmly.

Edward was somewhat embarrassed. "No, it's right."

"Mr. Benderson, why don't you remind me? It seems I've missed one ingredient, haven't I?"

“Did you? Really? I don’t think so.” Edward pretended not to know. “Miss Miller, I underestimated you just now, and I’m really sorry. The ingredients you mentioned are indeed all there, and they are all very precious and nourishing herbs, not Seeing that he was an elder, Gabriel kindly reminded him, “Mr. Benderson, it’s better to stop taking this capsule. You believe it’s beneficial to your body, perhaps because it indeed contains some beneficial supplements, but it definitely doesn’t have the effect of curing all illnesses and prolonging your life.”

Gina interrupted and said, “Those expensive medicinal ingredients actually account for very little. It was mainly made up of human ashes” SEAR*ch the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

After hearing Gina’s words, Neil’s expression changed again. It sounded too scary.

Edward didn’t want to be treated as a freak. He was still stubborn, but he had to win back his self-esteem. “It’s your business if you don’t believe it. Anyway, I have a clear conscience. I feel good after taking these pills. Also, don’t talk about this capsule outside. I shouldn’t have come today I’m leaving!” After saying that, Edward left in a hurry.

Harry felt frustrated and stood up. "Neil, I don't have an appetite for this banquet. We can have a good gathering next time. I'll leave first"

Neil did not say anything and watched Harry leave.

The atmosphere at the dining table became much more harmonious.

Gina asked. "Neil, why are you looking for Dr. Genevieve? There's no need. You're recovering very well now."

After all, she was Genevieve and she had been treating Neil. But she did not want to reveal her identity, so she could only use other methods to persuade Neil not to waste his effort.

Neil was silent for a moment before he explained, "Gina, I'm sorry. Actually, there's something that we haven't told you. Gabriel was diagnosed with congenital diseases in his early years. The doctor said that he would die of organ failure when he was about 30 years old. Now that he's 26, he's also showing preliminary symptoms of organ failure. Therefore, we want to find Dr. Genevieve to treat him.

"Gina, we're not deliberate. Only Gabriel and I know about this. It has to be a secret, or it will have a huge impact. I've always wanted to find a suitable time to tell you about it. I think today is time

Gina was slightly surprised.

Gabriel said, "Dad, I forgot to tell you something too. Gina gave me the medicinal herb she planted. My body recovered gradually. The initial symptoms of organ failure have also disappeared. It's been a long time since I went to Prover Hospital for secret treatment."

Neil was shocked. "So there's no need to look for Dr. Genevieve anymore?"

"Yes." Gabriel nodded.

Neil was overjoyed. After all, Dr. Genevieve was too mysterious to find.

He stood up excitedly and grabbed Gina's hand. "Gina, you're really our the Jackson family's savior! Thank you so much You're amazing"

Gina smiled calmly. "It's just a coincidence that I can treat your illness. As for Gabriel, it's completely by luck."

However, Gina still looked at Gabriel in surprise. "You've been secretly treated in Prover Hospital?"

The corners of Gabriel's lips curled up. "Yeah, it looks like I made the right choice back then. Even the director didn't know that her boyfriend had undergone secret treatment in her hospital. So this treatment was indeed a secret."

Gina was amused. Anyway, it was fine as long as the people she cared about were healthy.

Gina still didn’t want to be seen when doing this.

Gabriel leaned close to Gina’s car and asked, “Does that mean that I can enter your room now?”

“Will you leave soon?” Gina teased him.

Gabriel seemed to be deep in thought. “I’ll stay for one night. I’m afraid of darkness. I can’t sleep alone,” Gabriel said shamelessly.

Isabella watched as Gina walked to her seat and said excitedly, "Miss Miller, actually, you don't have to be in such a hurry to return the clothes to me. I'm not in a hurry to wear them!"

Gina handed the clothes in the bag to Isabella. "Thank you for the clothes."

Gina asked Isabella out for a meeting not just to return the clothes. She had an important question to ask her.

"Miss Presley, are you still taking that medicine?"

Gina opened the bottle and took out a capsule. She asked Isabella, "I need to open it to check the ingredients"

Although Isabella did not know what Gina was up to, since she wanted to be friends with Gina, she would be willing to make some minor sacrifices if necessary.

But she still took a deep breath when she saw such an expensive capsule being opened

Gina checked the ingredients, which were no different from the capsule provided by Edward.

It seemed that when selling the products, the so-called Dr. Genevieve also had a sales pitch for different customers. It was indeed a successful strategy.

"Gina, what's wrong with this capsule?" Isabella felt somehow uneasy.

Gina looked into Isabella's eyes and said, "Don't take in this capsule again, let alone buy it."

"Why?" Isabella asked.

"How's your mental fitness?" Gina asked.

Isabella was stunned by the question. "My mental fitness? It should be alright. What's wrong? Gina, if you have something to say, just tell me. Don't be so mysterious. You make me quite nervous

Isabella smiled in embarrassment.

"The main ingredient in this capsule is human ashes, Gina said.

Isabella felt as if she had been struck by lightning. For a moment she could not accept this reality. Her face turned pale and her entire body began to weaken. She fell to the ground uncontrollably. Then she felt a lump in her throat and could on help but retch.

She had a mental breakdown and kept vomiting. She covered her head and burst into tears. "How could this be? Why? could it be ashes? Help! It's so disgusting. I've been eating ashes for more than half a year. Gross

Gina squatted down and tried to help Isabella up from the ground.

However, Isabella's body was out of her control. She was trembling and could not get up at all.

Gina held her arm and comforted her patiently. "It's okay, it's okay. Just stop taking these pills." Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

"Gina, I... I can't calm down now. I feel like vomiting. It's so disgusting. Help me." Her tears streamed down endlessly

Gina agreed. "Alright, I'll take you to the washroom. You'll be fine after vomiting, okay?"

Isabella nodded and trembled as Gina helped her to the washroom. As soon as she reached the door. Isabella quickly ran in Then, she held the toilet and vomited.

Cina waited silently at the sink.

After about five minutes, Isabella called out to Gina in a weak and sobbing voice. "Gina...

Isabella cried out loud again.

Gina remained patient. She planned to talk to Isabella when she calmed down. Isabella also found it improper to forget herself. Soon she stopped crying and composed herself.

"Gina, you just asked me how I got these pills, right?"

"My uncle recommended it to me. He said that girls like to do cosmetology. Then he gave me this thing. He said after taking it, I wouldn't have to do so many complicated beauty projects and could also maintain my youth. I trusted him. I really didn't expect my uncle to lie to me!

Speaking of ashes, Isabella felt like vomiting again.
