

Read Please behave My Lord novel Chapter 6 online free

Chapter 6: Leopoldo is already married

Mariana could feel the gaze that had been behind her turn away at this moment, and just as her nerves relaxed, she heard Leopoldo's indifferent voice,

-Not bad.

It was the first time in his memory that Leopold praised a person, a woman. There was also an imperceptible tenderness in his tone.....

Andrea really deserved to be the only woman who had had rumors with him so far, their relationship was not simple. A smirk appeared on Mariana's face, and the strength of her fingertips couldn't help but increase a little.

-I also think this set looks good.

Andrea smiled like a flower and reached over and took Leopoldo's arm:

-Sir, let's go, if we delay any longer, we will be late.

-Okay.

Leopoldo nodded and, out of the corner of his eye, casually glanced at the woman standing there silently, her eyebrows slightly furrowed.

He then turned away and left the studio with Andrea.

The bodyguards waiting on either side followed them, not forgetting to close the door behind them.

-Oh, you scared me!

Ana finally breathed a sigh of relief and patted her chest with lingering fears:

-I was really surprised at this moment! Mr. Duran's aura is really scary, I didn't even dare to speak when he came!

-But, Mariana, I really didn't expect Mr. Durán to actually come to Andrea in person, aren't they afraid of being seen by journalists?

The surrounding staff heard her and couldn't help but come over to gossip:

-Maybe they are planning to go public?

-Yes, this rumor has been around for a long time, besides, there are many female artists under Grupo Durán, but Señor Durán is the only one who treats Andrea differently, and never gives explanations, who in this industry doesn't know about their relationship?

***

These tidbits are always able to arouse the interest of passers-by.

Ana felt bored after listening for a while, she leaned over and pulled Mariana, who was still lost in thought:

-Mariana, what are you thinking about? Let's eat!

-Yesterday I asked someone, there is a famous restaurant near here, do you want to go? You're on me.

Mariana came to her senses and hid her hand without a trace, trying to hide the marks of the nails that dug between her palms.

-Well, let's go.

They packed their bags and headed for the restaurant Ana had mentioned.

The interior of the restaurant was elegantly decorated and very exotic. We each ordered a menu of the day and ended up ordering a bottle of red wine.

-The foie gras here is so delicious! Take a bite and be filled with happiness!

-Health.

Mariana raised the glass next to her hand, with the delicious wine swirling gently in the glass.

-Health.

Ana smiled brightly and picked up the wine glass to clink with it.

Mariana took a sip and picked up the knife and fork.

-Hey, Mariana, look, there really are more and more rumors of all kinds in the entertainment industry these days, I don't even know who I should believe.

Anne was of such an active nature that she simply could not remain quiet, and began to gossip again about the day's events after a few mouthfuls.

As he still had something in his mouth, his words could not be heard well:

-But, Mariana... actually I have heard the gossip before, in fact, Mr. Durán....

She cautiously looked around and approached for fear of being overheard:

-Actually, Mr. Durán got married a long time ago, he just doesn't know who the bride is at all.

Mariana paused in her meal, a strange excitement crossed her eyes, then she quickly calmed down again,

-Really?

In the past, when Ana talked to her about this gossip, she was not very interested, only her response this time made Ana more energetic and mysteriously approached:

-Mariana, you have to believe me!