Chapter 8: Are they that close already?

-Leo, what is it?

Andrea noticed something and looked up to see her expression, followed her gaze and soon saw Mariana still standing in the doorway.

-Mariana?

The female voice behind her caught her attention, Mariana had to stop her step and turned around, not expecting to meet the man's cold and deep gaze.

His whole body froze, he just felt that this was simply fate.

Leopoldo's gaze rested on her, Mariana's back shivered for a moment, and she stared at the man for a few seconds before realizing she had to withdraw her gaze.

But this scene, Andrea already saw clearly, her delicate face lost its smile, but she soon raised her red lips again,

-Miss Ortiz, is that really you? So you like this restaurant too.

-It turns out that Leopoldo and I like this place too.

Andrea smiled wider and leaned her delicate body against Leopoldo:

-The owner here is a wine lover and has a collection of excellent red wines, but the owner only serves them to VIPs.

His words revealed a feeling of superiority.

Mariana ignored him, and with a complicated glance at the delicate ring on her hand, forced a smile:

-Mr. Durán, Miss Solís, what a coincidence.

-Miss Ortiz, are you leaving?

Andrea feigned enthusiasm, smiling:

-Leo and I are leaving too, why don't we send you back by the way?

After finishing, he pouted and tugged on Leopoldo's hand:

-Leo, just for the sake of Miss helped me a lot today, okay?

"Leo?"

"Is it really that close between them?"

Mariana lowered her eyes, silently pulled her best friend, who was obviously already angry, and calmly turned Andrea away:

-Thank you Miss, we still want to go for a walk around, so we won't disturb you.

He said and they were about to leave, but just as they pushed open the restaurant door, a cool breeze came in with a fine rain that stopped them.

As soon as she saw this, Andrea couldn't help but smile, elegantly and proudly lifting her hair from her ears:

-Miss, it is really unfortunate that it is raining outside. There is no need to insist any further.

Mariana frowned, she really didn't know why this woman had to show off in front of her.

-This rain is not going to stop for a while, you can't get a cab, so it's better to go back together – Leopoldo said suddenly as if he was tired of waiting, with a tone as cold as always, only his deep gaze was still on Mariana.

Without waiting for her to respond, he headed straight for the door.

Mariana bit her lip, but she could do nothing but follow him. And Ana followed him from behind with a slightly shadowed face.

Andrea, who had stayed behind, squeezed her hand and watched Mariana's back with a chilling look, her heart pounding with anger.

"Why is Leo taking the initiative to send this woman back?"

"What kind of relationship do you have?"

Andrea suppressed her emotions and took a step.
