Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy chapter 2221

After all, the doctors had failed to find a suitable match for Gwen's blood type despite scouring the entire blood bank, but as soon as Luke offered, it was found that he was a perfect match.

However...

Luke did not know how much time he and Gwen had left together.

At the thought of this, he turned to stare at Dr. Zachary. "Between Gwen and I, only one of us can live?"

Dr. Zachary fell silent for a moment, then glanced at Luke, frowning. "That's one way to put it.

"Your body won't be able to take these frequent blood transfusions any longer, and one day, you'll collapse.

"If you transplant your heart and transfuse your blood to her, she might be able to survive, but you'll unfortunately die.

"On the other hand, if you choose yourself, she won't have much time left."

Then, Dr. Zachary placed his pen in his coat pocket and added, "Whatever the case is, Mr. Jones, I have to advise you against this. It's not worth it to sacrifice your life for a woman. "Even though I pity her for contracting such a rare disease, I don't think you need to give up your own life to save her.

"You have so many friends and subordinates counting on you, so I don't think you should act rashly."

"When can we do the surgery?" Luke asked curtly after the doctor finished his sentence.

Dr. Zachary froze upon hearing this. "What surgery?"

"The heart transplant." Luke lifted his head to stare straight at Dr. Zachary. "Didn't you just say she can survive if I transplant my heart and donate my blood to her? I want to know when I can undergo the surgery. I want a date and time." Dr. Zachary's jaw dropped in disbelief.

For a moment, he thought he had misheard Luke.

This was Luke Jones, for God's sake! This was the man who ruled over the gangs in two cities!

He would willingly give his life to save a woman? This was the most shocking discovery he had ever made!

"Dr. Zachary?" Luke narrowed his eyes when the doctor did not reply, and there was a hint of malice in his gentle voice as he said, "What're you thinking?"

"No-nothing." Dr. Zachary let out a slight cough." We need about a month to prepare her for the surgery, B\{E-G.N if her mental condition remains stable during this time, we can perform the surgery next month, but I still think that you..."

"Speak no further." Luke narrowed his eyes as he watched the nurse bring out the blood transfusion needle. "No one can sway me once I've come to a decision."

Dr. Zachary sighed and was about to say something in reply when Gwen's voice rang out from outside the door, "Help! Help me! Stop chasing me, Luke!"

Luke's entire body froze when he heard this.

He remained motionless, and a small smile crept across his face as he watched Gwen toss and turn in her sleep.

What a dork.

He was keeping her alive with his very blood, but in her eyes, he was a monster chasing her in her nightmares.

Was he that terrifying?

Just as Luke was fixated on watching Gwen in her sleep, his phone rang. It was Joshua.

Luke glanced at the name on the screen, then gestured for Dr. Zachary to go ahead while shuffling to one side to pick up the call. "Why are you calling me at this time?"

"How're you doing?" asked Joshua in a low voice as soon as the call connected. Luke curled his lips into a small smile. "Bonnie got into a car accident, and your mother-in-law passed out. Shouldn't you be taking care of them now? "Or perhaps, you should be asking how Gwen is doing, not me."

Joshua sighed and replied, "Bonnie has Jim, Rosalyn has Charles, and even Luna is busy taking care of the two of them. Gwen...has you, but who do you have?"

Joshua's voice was calm as he added, "Who else is asking you how you're doing, if not me?"

There was a hint of helplessness in Joshua's voice. "Are you donating blood to her again?"

Luke lifted his head to glance at Gwen through the glass, who was receiving a blood transfusion, and chuckled. "There doesn't seem to be a better way. Her condition is deteriorating...and I don't have much time left either."

The usual tone of coldness and arrogance in his voice had disappeared and was, at this moment, had softened in vulnerability instead.

Joshua fell silent upon hearing this, then finally replied, "There must be some other way."

Rachel, Rosalyn, and Christopher were all greatly accomplished people in the field of medicine, and apart from them, Joshua had also contacted various prestigious medical institutions across the globe to help him.

He refused to believe that with so many great minds working together, they would not be able to think of a better way to cure Gwen's disease than a heart transplant.

"It doesn't matter." Luke sighed. "She hates me now anyway, and I was kind of hoping I'd be able to save her with my life. "I've committed many sins throughout my lifetime, and God is punishing me by inflicting disease on the woman I love the most. If giving up my life means that she'll be able to live the rest of her life happily and healthily, it doesn't seem like a bad trade."

Joshua did not know how to respond to this. "Luke..."

"Do you know what's going on now? I've climbed to the top of the ladder, E]{F*B&N there's no way I'd be able to wash my hands of this. Even if I retire, someone will come for my life eventually. "Even if I live, I'll be putting Gwen in danger because of her proximity to me, and besides..." He glanced in Gwen's direction, smiling bitterly. "She doesn't like being with me anyway. She likes peace and tranquility."

Then, he let out a sigh. "Alright, Joshua, I know you care about me, but you know better than anyone how stubborn I am. Once I come to a decision, there's nothing you can do to change my mind.

"You should take care of business on your end."

Then, he hung up the phone. Joshua furrowed his brows when he heard the dial tone.

"Joshua," all of a sudden, Luna's anxious voice rang out from behind him. "Have you found out where Luke brought Gwen? Why had she vomited blood all of a sudden?"

Luna had just returned from taking care of Rosalyn and was relieved to know that both Bonnie and Rosalyn were going to be okay. However, she heard Charles mention that Gwen, too, had been sent to a hospital, so she wanted Joshua to contact Luke for more details.

Luna's impression of Luke had turned sour ever since Gwen was recaptured after her attempt to escape Luke, and she knew that even if she asked him directly, he would not tell her the truth about Gwen's condition.

This was why Luna had asked Joshua to contact Luke instead. "She's fine." Joshua regained his composure and replied impassively, "Gwen vomited blood because of an old stomach ulcer. You know she's been having gastric problems since a long time ago.

"She got a nasty shock when she saw what happened to Bonnie and your mother, and this triggered her old problem. Luke said that she's fine now and just needs to rest."

Luna felt the weight lift off her shoulders. She sighed and said, "Thank God she's okay."

It was exhausting enough having to care for both Bonnie and Rosalyn, and if anything bad happened to Gwen, too... Luna did not know how she could possibly split herself into three parts so she could look after all three of them.

"How's Rosalyn now?" Joshua quickly changed the topic as soon as he noticed that Luna did not suspect a thing "She's awake now, and my father is bringing her over to visit Bonnie." Luna could not help lamenting, "As soon as she woke up, the first person she asked about was Bonnie, and the second was Gwen.

“After finding out that Bonnie was fine despite her miscarriage, she kept asking questions about Gwen, and some were oddly specific. Judging by how worried she seemed, I would’ve thought Gwen was gravely ill or something…” Joshua narrowed his eyes. “Perhaps in her eyes, vomiting blood is something far more serious than suffering a miscarriage.”

Then, he reached out to hold Luna’s arm and said, “ We should go visit her, too.”

Luna nodded and followed Joshua to Bonnie’s room.

They had just taken a few steps when they bumped into a doctor in a white coat.

The doctor greeted Joshua enthusiastically when he saw him, “Mr. Lynch! I’ve managed to find some information about that heart transplant you were asking me about, and”

Before he could finish his sentence, Joshua shot him a cold look, and he immediately clamped his mouth shut.

The doctor had not seen Luna walking behind Joshua and, thus, thought he was here alone.

The moment he spotted Luna, the doctor knew he had made a mistake by bringing up the heart transplant in front of her. He mustered an awkward smile. “Pardon me; I’ve mistaken you for someone else.”

Then, he turned DAGSASM scampered away as fast as his feet could bring him.

Luna remained motionless, frowning as she watched the doctor leave.

She turned to glance at Joshua. “What heart transplant was he talking about?”

Joshua, however, pretended not to have noticed and pulled her toward Bonnie’s room. “Didn’t he say he. mistook me for someone else?”

An uneasy feeling arose in Luna’s heart as she stared at Joshua’s tall, broad back.

Her gut feeling was telling her that the doctor had not been mistaken at all.

He had greeted Joshua as “Mr. Lynch” and trotted toward him excitedly Could there be another man in Merchant City who resembled Joshua and possessed the same surname? However, before she could ponder the details, they arrived at Bonnie’s room.

Bonnie was still unconscious.

Jim was sitting next to her bed, holding her hand in silence.

Charles was helping Rosalyn into another chair, and Rosalyn was weeping. "Jim, don't you know how bad Bonnie's health was? She suffered severe health consequences when she gave birth to Harvey due to the negligence of the doctor at that illegitimate clinic.

"It's extremely difficult for her to get pregnant now, much less keep a baby in her belly for two months! But you... "You killed your second child yourself!"

Jim sat in silence and did not say anything in response. Instead, he clutched Bonnie's hand tightly in his.

However, the quieter he was, the more outraged Rosalyn became..

She bit her lip and glared at him. "Jim, I don't know what happened that put you in such a terrible mood.

"Even if she wasn't pregnant with your child, how can you possibly allow her to chase after you on the highway like that? Don't you have any basic respect for her? Weren't you at all concerned about her safety? Weren't you worried that she couldn't keep up with you and something bad would happen?

"Thank heavens that the airbag in her car managed to save her life. Otherwise, she would be dead by now!"

Jim lowered his head and gripped Bonnie's hand tightly. "I already told her not to chase after me."

Bonnie had been following him ever since he left Quinn Mansion. Not only did she follow him in her car, but she even rang his phone.

Initially, he had refused to pick up, but in the end... he could not stop himself from taking her call.

The first thing he said to her was warn her not to continue chasing after him, but she had told him she would not give up. She wanted him to know that even if everyone in the world turned their backs on him, she would not give up on him.

If she had said this to him on a regular day, he would have been touched by this, but...

All Jim could think of at this moment was how he had been abandoned by his birth mother.

Bonnie's words only served as a reminder of this cold, harsh truth.

Therefore, Jim hung up the phone and immediately stepped on the gas. Then, this happened... "So what if you told her not to chase you?" Rosalyn was furious. "She loves you so much that she'll never give up on you! But you're blinded to this!"

Rosalyn started patting her chest in an attempt to soothe her anger. "Just because she loves you doesn't mean you can abuse this! Mickey and the butler have already filled us in on what happened while we were away in Lincoln City after you lost your memories!

"You've crossed the line, Jim. Even if you didn't remember her G}E!B%M no longer had the memories you shared, it doesn't justify you treating her like that. You've never been that cruel!"

Jim remained silent.

It was Charles who finally spoke. "A few hours ago, Harvey got in touch with me and told me that Jim has agreed to marry Bonnie. I guess... Jim isn't as cruel as we think he is."

Rosalyn rolled her eyes at this. "If he's not as cruel as we think, would he have sped on the highway with Bonnie following him?"

"Perhaps Jim was indeed in a horrible mood and was doing this to release his pent-up emotions, and Bonnie shouldn't have followed him...but what could have caused this?"

"Now that Charlotte has been captured and they're already searching for the real Number -9, Landry Group is no longer being targeted by Lynch Group. What could possibly have affected Jim's mood so much that he neglected Bonnie's feelings and safety?"

Jim paused for a moment and was about to say something when he caught sight of Charles and Rosalyn's expressions.

Perhaps these two still had no idea that Lucy had managed to survive that incident many years ago.

Jim knew better than anyone about the relationship between Charles and Rosalyn.

Rosalyn had sacrificed and given up everything for Charles and the Landry family, but Charles had been oblivious to this.

If Rosalyn had not ended up in a coma after almost being killed by Heather a year ago, Charles would not have realized his true feelings toward her.

Rosalyn had always treated Jim like her own, and oftentimes, she treated him better than Heather, who she thought was her real daughter. No matter what happened, Jim would never forget Rosalyn's kindness toward him.

Nonetheless...

Rosalyn's sacrifice had finally earned herself Charles 'love.

Was he going to tell them the truth about Lucy at a time like this?

Charles had finally let go of Lucy, and if he were to bring her up at this moment...
