Chapter 2775 Tina quivered as she stood outside the door eavesdropping on the conversation between Senior Howard and Mr. Zink.

'That old geezer! He wants to give everything to that bastard!'

After all these years she spent time together with him, she and her precious son ended with nothing!

She clenched her fists tightly and angrily.

'Why? Why did that old geezer leave everything to Thomas in the end? Is it just because he's Eanne's son? Because Eanne was the one who helped him become rich? What about the twenty years I spent with him? Are my twenty years incomparable to the few years Eanne spent with him?'

"Alright, Mr. Howard. Is there anything else you'd like to add?" asked Mr. Zink again. "Give it a good thought."

Senior Howard said again after remaining silent for a long time, "There are two mansions in South Hill of this city and a company..."

"Do you want to transfer those to Mr. Thomas Howard too?" Mr. Zink asked.

Tina could not bear to listen any further. She bit her lip angrily and left the door with her fists clenched tightly. 'It's all wrong! It's all wrong!'

She had been with that old geezer for so many years, and he had listened to everything she said and did as she pleased. He even sent Thomas away when she requested it. It never crossed her mind that he would suddenly think Thomas was better at such an age!

Was it because Thomas was better than Dan? Was that why he disliked her and her son?

No. She would never let him have his way! She would make everything in the family hers and Dan's! Thomas could spare himself the trouble from thinking he could get anything!

What Tina did not know was that after she left the door, Senior Howard sighed in the ward. "I secretly bought the mansions and the company. Give those to Tina and Dan. They had accompanied me for so many years. Even if they didn't achieve anything, they sacrificed their time, too."

He closed his eyes. "Give those two mansions and the company to them. Although it's just a small company, it's enough to provide for them. Tina can have one mansion, and the other can go to Dan. That'll be enough for the rest of their lives."

Mr. Zink lowered his head and recorded everything. He curled up his lips and smiled. "Senior Howard, I see that you're still physically capable. Is your injury severe this time? Why did you suddenly decide to write your will?"

Senior Howard smiled and opened his eyes to look at Mr. Zink. "What do you think?"

Mr Zink remained silent for a while. After that, he laughed. "Is there anything else you'd like to say?"

Senior furrowed his brow and thought. "I do."

He took out a name card and passed it to Mr. Zink. "Give this person a copy of the things I told you, and my will..."

Mr. Zink's eyebrows furrowed as he looked at the name card in his hand.

He nodded. "Alright. I'll do it tonight."

Senior Howard sighed and nodded. "Alright. That's all."

Mr. Zink nodded and chatted a while more before leaving the ward. However, as soon as he left the ward, two muscular guys stopped him before he could make it to the elevator.

"Mr. Zink." Tina crossed her arms and walked out from behind the two muscular guys. She gave him a cold look. "Leaving so soon? I have something that I'd like to ask you."

Chapter 2776

Just like that, Mr. Zink was brought to a storeroom at the end of the hallway by Tina and Dan.

"What did the old geezer say?" Dan pressed Mr. Zink onto a chair with a remote expression. "Spill, and my mother and I will spare your life. Otherwise..."

He smirked. "You know the drill."

This was the first time Mr. Zink had such an encounter. He was so scared that he stuttered, "What...do you guys want?"

“Tell us everything that old geezer told you!”

Dan and Tina were so fierce and cold blooded that they terrified Mr. Zink. He knew if he did not tell the truth, they would never let him go easily. Therefore, without any choice, he repeated the conversation between him and Senior Howard to them.

Nonetheless, he did not tell them everything. He did not tell them about the recording, nor did he tell them that Senior Howard had left two mansions and a company for them.

Once Mr. Zink finished, the mother-and-son pair exchanged looks with each other. Their eyes were filled with despair and anger. In the end, they threatened Mr. Zink with his family and his reputation, and they disallowed him to draft out the will.

Only when Mr. Zink promised to follow their instructions did they escort him out of the hospital.

“That old geezer!” Once Mr. Zink left, Dan slammed his hand angrily on the table. His eyes were filled with anger. “We’ve accompanied him for so many years, and now he wants to give everything to that bastard Thomas!”

Tina squinted and looked at the scene outside the window. Her tone was cold as she declared, “I think it’s about time we deal with that old geezer. We can’t let him live.”

She added, “Even if we used the safety of Mr. Zink’s family to threaten him, the old geezer will suspect something if the time drags on for too long. Who knows if he’ll change to other lawyers? We have to shut him up before his will is drafted.”

This evidently took Dan by surprise as he stared at his mother in shock. “Mom... What... do you mean? A—Are you going to kill that old geezer?”

Tina looked back at her son and sneered, “What do you think? Are you just going to watch Thomas inherit everything?”

Dan bit his lip and looked troubled. “But...”

His voice trembled, “But that old geezer... He’s my father! I heard that you’ll receive divine judgment for hurting and killing your own father...”

Tina sneered and was disappointed with her cowardly imbecile son. “You treat him as a father, but has he treated you as his own? If he truly cares for you, why doesn’t he leave anything for you?”

Dan’s face flushed pale and said nothing.

“If there’s truly such judgment in this world, those women you raped and all those aborted children of yours will come looking for you by now.”

Upon receiving no response from her son, Tina snorted coldly and indifferently added, “Do you seriously think I don’t know all the things you did? It was I who cleaned up after your mess and troubles. Think about why those women never come and bother you.

“You’re not afraid of judgment when you toyed with women and force them to have abortions, but it concerns you when it comes to killing that old geezer?”

Chapter 2777

After scolding Dan, Tine left the storeroom. As she was at the end of the hallway, she tried calling Denise again.

Like before, she thought no one would pick up the phone. However, the call strangely got through this time.

Finally, there was a place for Tina to vent her anger.

“Denise, why didn’t you pick up my calls? The maid in the mansion had told me that everything went as planned. Why—”

“This is Steven.”

A low, deep male voice rang out before Tina could continue. “Denise is asleep. I’ll be keeping her phone from now on. Mrs. Howard, I already know everything that happened today.”

He paused for a while before continuing to talk remotely, “Denise is my sister, not a tool for you to use to fight for your games. She’ll no longer contact you or be related to you from now on. I also hope that you’ll never contact her anymore. She’s a pure-hearted girl that’ll trust everything you say, so I’ll never let her contact you people anymore.”

After that, Steven hung up the phone.

As Tina listened to the busy dial tone from her phone, she squinted her eyes. ‘So Steven had stuck his nose in this matter. That explains it.’

No wonder Denise did not contact her even after the plan succeeded.

Tina paused and thought for a while. After that, she made another call. This time, the person she called was Kate.

Truth be told, she had another plan today. To avoid attention, she looked for Kate to help her.

“Hello.” The call got through.

“Did you succeed, Ms. Miller?” asked Tina hastily. “Is Riley—”

“No.” Kate’s voice was cold. “When we got to the hospital, the child was gone.”

Tina was disappointed to hear that, her eyebrows furrowed at the news. However, she was relentless. “Are you pulling my leg now, Ms. Miller? Isn’t the doctor of the kid a member of your medical organization? With that doctor around, how could that child go missing? She’s just a few months old, and she can’t run off on her own.”

The child was her last resort to fight with Thomas. Originally, she thought Denise had succeeded, so she did not need to lay her hand on the child.

The current predicament, however, made her turn to her last resort.

Her surprise was imminent when she was informed the child was gone.

“Well, of course the child can’t walk on her own, but someone else can carry her,” Kate answered without caring much about it. “Aunt Tina, I’ll find out who took the child away as soon as I’m free, but you know I’m currently very busy. I still don’t know how to settle Steven yet, so please stop bugging me about this.”

After that, Kate hung up the phone apathetically.

Tina furrowed her brow vehemently as she listened to the busy dial tone on the phone. Before her plan took place today, Kate had always been very supportive to the point that she was the one who arranged for the doctor from her family’s medical organization to treat Riley so they could monitor the infant all the time.

Tina would have never thought about using Riley to threaten Thomas and Yannie had Kate not brought it up. However...

Tina closed her eyes. It seemed that even Kate knew that the person the old geezer cared about the most was Thomas.

She needed to prioritize killing the old geezer into her agenda. It could not be delayed any longer.

After Kate hung up the phone, she cocked up her head and looked at Steven who was sitting in the chair in front of her. “Happy?”

Steven lowered his head and toyed with Denise's phone. He raised his head and looked at Kate's face with an indifferent expression. "I'm doing this for your own good; Tina and Dan can never outdo Thomas. Furthermore, he has Joshua helping him now."

He curled up his lips into a smile and added, "I don't know Joshua that well, but I'm sure you do. If you truly help Tina to hurt Thomas' daughter, which is the child Joshua used to take care of...I'm sure you know what the consequences will be."

Kate furrowed her brow vehemently. She narrowed her eyes and said, "Yes, you're right, but that doesn't mean Tina and I don't have any chance of winning. If we really do something to the child, I know Thomas and Joshua will cave in."

Steven merely squinted at this and said nothing.

Kate leaned back and switched to a more comfortable posture. She looked at Steven plainly." Well, I kinda help you this time so Joshua and Thomas would be indebted to you, so you owe me one."

She curled up her lips and raised her brow. "How are you going to repay me?"

Steven did not expect her to ask this question. He curled up his lips and glanced at her plainly." I thought that not going through the things you lied to me is repaying you."

Kate averted her gaze guiltily upon hearing this, not daring to make eye contact. "When did I ever lie to you?"

"Many times." Steven stared at Kate frostily. "Should I list them down for you? You kept talking bad about Gwen in front of me and then went and told her how much I dislike her. I know everything."

Kate's face turned pale instantly. She pursed her lips and wanted to say something but failed to say anything.

"I'll remember your kindness. I'll no doubt do my best to assist you should you ever face difficulties in the future. However, t I will never get back with you," Steven said.

After that, he stood up and left. Kate remained in the chair as she watched Thomas leave. She bit her lip quietly. When the sound of the engine started from downstairs, she swiped everything on the table to the floor angrily. Cling! Clank! Crash!

Everything on the table fell to the floor. The glasses, decorations—everything was shattered into pieces.

Kate sat back in the chair as her gaze burned with malice.

Sooner or later, she was going to kill that bitch Gwen. She would have been Steven's wife had that whore not come to Saigen City!

Once again, she threw everything within her reach to the floor.

At that moment, her phone rang. It was an unknown number. She glanced at that number and sneered coldly. 'How dare he call me now?'

She answered the call coldly.

"Ms. Miller, I'm in danger now! Can you please..."

Kate raised her brow coldly. "When are you going to kill Gwen?"

The man on the other side of the phone was stunned. After that, he lowered his voice, "I just went out. When I got her, I noticed Joshua's men were everywhere around the house. I—I think they know I'm here now.

"Ms. Miller, could you...please get another place for me to stay?"

Kate curled up her lips and sneered. "I'll settle everything for you after you kill Gwen. For now ...settle it yourself, Malcolm. If you can't avoid and get caught by Joshua and Thomas' men, I have plenty of people to do the dirty work for me. I don't necessarily need you."

Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy chapter 2779

Chapter 2779 Malcolm panicked on the other side of the phone as he heard what Kate said. "Ms. Miller. please...I beg you! Please save me!"

He was squatting among the bushes behind the street while wearing a thin trench coat. He looked at the people going in and out of the mansion he lived in as his gaze frantically darted around.

There was once a time he used to be a famous and influential person in Merchant City. After he conspired against Luna and Joshua, his family degenerated to the point he had to flee to Saigen City and became a no-name man.

He regretted it deeply, but most importantly, he was scared. At this moment, he finally knew what he did wrong. Other than Kate who did not give a shit about him, there was no one else he could get help from.

He bit his lip and spoke humbly, "Ms. Miller, I...I'll do anything that you request, so please help me. I can't let Joshua and Thomas catch me. After all the things I did in the past...they'll kill me!"

Kate cackled upon hearing the evidently afraid Malcolm. "You know this would happen, so why did you do it? If you weren't cruel to them, they wouldn't have attempted to find you and kill you when you ran away here. You asked for this."

Malcolm was stunned. After a while, he curled up his lips and smiled.

"That's right, I ask for this myself. However... Ms. Miller, I hope you think about it for yourself too. You also did many things to Joshua, Luke, and the others...so your ending won't be any better than mine."

From their conversation and Kate's tone, Malcolm could tell Kate did not care about him at all. She never treated him as a partner. To her, he was not even worthy to be her subordinate or her dog.

At this rate, he did not need to please her anymore.

"I had only offended Joshua, Luna, and perhaps Thomas too, but you, Kate Miller? You offended Luke, Joshua, and everyone else. I'm eager to see your ending."

After that, he hung up the phone.

"You're right," a deep voice sounded from behind him when the phone was disconnected.

"This voice..." Malcolm felt chills all over his body. He looked up.

The man before him was none other than Joshua dressed in all black. There was snow on his shoulder which showed he had been standing there for a long time.

Malcolm had been monitoring the movement at the mansion. Never once had he thought about looking back

"JO...Joshua..." His face turned pale.

He stood up as his survival instinct kicked in.

He tried to run away, but after squatting in the snow for too long, his legs were stiff and cold. There was no escaping for him.

Thump! He fell into the snow.

"You shouldn't have come here," Joshua said.

Looking at how rugged and pitiful Malcolm was, Joshua smirked and looked at the man from a condescending angle. "Kate is a cold-blooded person. After accompanying Luke for more than a year, she could still do such a cruel thing to him when she liked him so much. Do you think she'd pity you and treasure you?"

His eyes gleamed as he ordered the people beside him, "Take him away."

"Sir." Lucas furrowed his brow. "He had just planned an accident to kill Ms. Larson. We can totally report him to the police!" Joshua waved his hand and left. "No. Don't send him to the police yet. I still need him."
