

Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy Chapter 2892

Chapter 2892

Joshua nodded. "Let's go."

John let out a sigh of relief, then walked over to Anne's side and took the child from her. "Let's go, everyone."

Anne murmured in response and snaked her arm around Luna's. "Let's go, then! The place that John and I have arranged for your stay is very private and exclusive; no one will be able to find you there!"

Luna frowned at this and turned to shoot Anne a dubious glance. "You arranged our accommodation?"

This was Banyan City-Joshua's territory, and he owned an array of property in this city, so why did Anne and John go to all the trouble of finding them a place to stay?

Not only that, but they even made the effort to find somewhere private and exclusive?

"I was the one who requested it." Joshua smiled when he saw Luna's puzzlement. "I contacted John before we left Saigen City because of this."

Luna's eyebrows furrowed in confusion. "Why?"

"Because I don't want anyone to know I returned." Joshua put on his face mask as he followed John out of the airport. "My identity is too obvious. Even if we come back in secret, everyone in Banyan City will know I've returned when they see us moving back into our house. It won't take long for Adrian to find out, too, and if he were to show up and cause some more drama, I'm worried that I won't be able to control myself and hold off until the wedding.

"Therefore, it would be better if we covered our tracks so that we don't stir up too much trouble."

Luna finally relaxed at this.

Joshua was right. If Adrian and the rest of their relatives found out about their return, they would not be able to spend their days in peace.

After all, Adrian had built his entire existence on the basis of being Joshua's father, so he would certainly come to visit once he found out about their return.

Luna finally understood why, despite having connections to many powerful people including Jude, Joshua had chosen to ask John to meet them at the airport instead.

John was her best friend Anne's husband, and despite owning a reputable business in Banyan City, he was not a member of the elite society. Therefore, the rest of the upper class would not take much notice of John's whereabouts, much less know about his connection to Joshua.

Asking John to help out was indeed the most sensible decision.

The four of them left the airport and got into the car that John had arranged for them.

Throughout the car ride, Luna remained seated next to Anne, playing with her daughter

Anne and John's daughter was named Samantha, or Sammie for short.

"Why is she named Samantha? Joshua asked nonchalantly as he stared out the front passenger window.

"That's because Anne explained, blushing. "That's because I was obsessed with samosas when I was pregnant with her Both John and I agreed that it must be because of the child, so we decided to call her Samantha-samosa, Samatha, samosa, Samantha.

"Besides, the word Samantha means to blossom, and we hope that that's what she'll turn out to be-a blossoming young girl

Luna curled her lips into a smile. "Well, you better drink more margaritas when you get pregnant with your second baby, then call her Marguerite-that's French for daisy. That way, both your children will have matching names."

Anne was amused by this and chuckled.

A split second later, Luna tucked her smile away and asked solemnly, "But your child's name is Sammie, whereas Bonnie's daughter is Shelly. Isn't this kind of confusing?"

Anne paused, then shot Luna a puzzled glance. "Do you...still not know about Shelly's true identity?"
