Pursuing My Ex-Wife Is not Easy chapter 2946–The video on the screen made Luna's eyes widen in horror and her blood run cold.

The scene projected on the white screen was that of Anne being stabbed by Willow that afternoon.

Willow did not know of the vengeance between Luna and Jacqueline at all. All she knew was that Luna had crossed Jacqueline in the past, which was why she ordered Willow to kidnap Anne for revenge.

All she knew was that Jacqueline wanted Anne to be kidnapped and that she was not to walk out of the dungeon alive.

Not only that, but Jacqueline even told her that she would video call her at night so that everyone would be able to see the live stream of Anne being killed because of Luna. Because of this, Willow thought that all Jacqueline wanted was to see Anne dead.

Therefore, when Vanessa requested to meet up with her that afternoon, Willow was worried that Anne would find a way to escape while she was gone, and she would get in trouble with Jacqueline for failing to complete her task, which was why she had killed Anne right on the spot and even recorded a video for Jacqueline's sake.

Therefore, when Jacqueline dialed her number for a video call, Willow proudly presented the video recording of her killing Anne on the screen.

The image of Anne widening her eyes in shock as blood spurted from her wound and oozed out onto the floor shook everyone to the core.

Everyone stared in horror at the sight before them, utterly stunned and speechless.

Even Jacqueline was dumbstruck by this and widened her eyes in shock. How could this be?

Although she had told Willow before that she would eventually kill Anne by forcing Luna to watch her being killed, she never thought Willow would do it from the start!

Jacqueline took a step back as she watched the life drain from Anne's eyes until her limp, lifeless body finally slumped onto the ground.

She turned to glance in Luna's direction.

She had kidnapped Anne to hold her hostage and use her to threaten and humiliate Luna, but since Willow killed her, what was she supposed to do?

Jacqueline's gaze met Luna's glassy, bloodshot eyes.

All of a sudden, the memories of that afternoon surged into her mind as she stared at the screen.

She remembered! She finally remembered!

Anne...Anne had been killed that afternoon...

Not only that, but she was the reason Anne had gotten kidnapped in the first place! If she had not dragged Anne out to shop, and if she had not let Anne eavesdrop on Jacqueline and James' conversation...

If she had insisted on staying home; if she had been more alert; if she had chosen to contact Joshua earlier the moment she and Vanessa managed to get in touch with Willow, none of this would have happened.

Anne would not have died if only she had been more alert!

The irony was, she had lost this utmost important snippet of her memory out of distress when it was her that had led to Anne's death in the first place. If the scene before her had not jogged her memory, Luna would still be in an ignorant trance about what had happened.

At the thought of this, Luna turned to meet Jacqueline's gaze.

"I thought you kidnapped Anne just to teach me a lesson and that you'd never truly hurt her. I thought you had some sense in you, and I was even willing to sacrifice myself in exchange for hers, but Jacqueline, you don't deserve any mercy!

"You don't deserve to be a human!"

Luna let out an exhale, tightened her grip around the dagger's handle, and lunged straight toward Jacqueline
