

Pursuing my ex-wife is not easy chapter 3094-At that, he looked at Gwen. "Actually..."

Steven found himself unable to finish his sentence. After a long while, he shook his head and smiled. "Forget about it."

"Steven..." Gwen looked at him, and her tears fell.

Her heart was not made of stone. How could she not know Steven's feelings toward her?

She was silent for a long while. In the end, she stood up and slowly walked over to Steven with arms opened wide. "Give me a hug."

Steven hesitated for a while, but he still stood up.

They hugged.

"Gwen." Steven hugged her tightly. "I have to meet you earlier in the next life so I can compete fairly with my brother."

Gwen nodded with tears streaming down her face. "Okay."

They thus hugged once more. Minutes later...

"He's gone," said Stefan.

Tears kept falling.

They hugged for a while longer before pulling apart. Gwen looked at Stefan with her tear-stricken face. He had tears on his face as well.

She bit her lips and reached out to wipe his tears. "A-Are these tears...yours or his?"

Stefan shut his eyes in pain. "Both."

Three months later, a grand multiple-couple wedding was held in Banyan City.

The newlyweds were Jim and Bonnie, Stefan and Gwen, Theo and Rachel, and Christian and Tara.

The four newlyweds walked in front with twelve flower girls and page boys trotting behind them.

Nellie, dressed in a princess gown, held Sammie's hand walking in front. Nigel, Neil, and Harvey were right behind them, looking suave and handsome.

"If I knew better, I wouldn't have gotten married so early. I could've had my wedding right now together with them.

How fun it would be," Anne, who was almost recovered in her wheelchair, said with a smile to Luna.

Luna smiled helplessly. "Didn't I ask you if you wanted to join when they were ordering their wedding gowns? You said that your child is already so big and that you wouldn't join them. What? Are you regretting it now?"

Anne pursed her lips. "Yes, a little."

Then, she realized something was wrong. She turned to Robyn behind her and said, "Where's your brother?"

Robyn could not help but smile. "He went to do something with Mr. Lynch." Then, she pointed nearby. "Over there."

Luna and Anne looked over together at the same time.

Two men, donned in black, were walking over to them with a bouquet in their hands.

Anne's tears fell immediately. Luna was also trying to hold back her tears.

Joshua, with a huge bouquet of roses, walked over to her. "Honey."

Luna bit her lip and lunged herself into his arms. "Hubby."

"We had such a tough life in the past. The future might be challenging, too."

Joshua looked at Luna and said solemnly, "But no matter what you become, no matter whether you love me or not, I will always love you."

Luna sobbed. She nodded fervently. "Me, too."

Their children, friends, and family around them cheered.

Joshua smiled. He lifted Luna's chin and kissed her on the lips deeply.
