Chapter 1031

"I'm not going to have a baby! I will not have your baby!"

Anthony smiled evilly and said, "You've given me three children. Don't you think it's too late to say that now?"

"I wouldn't have given birth to them if I knew the children were yours!" Anne could not suppress her anger.

"Do you want me to stuff them back into your stomach for you?"

Anne felt the anger being held in her chest. She could not see Anthony's expression, but she could still imagine his arrogance.

Stuff them back in? How?

He was just telling her that she could only accept whatever had happened!

There was a knock at the door, and Dr. Brown came in to help Anne change her drip.

As soon as she entered, she felt the abnormal atmosphere in the room.

She had to pretend she had not noticed anything.

She adjusted the speed of the drip and said, "I'll come back in about half an hour."

She would never consider him her husband!

“Is that so?” Anthony lowered his head and forcefully licked the blood from the corners of her mouth and face, tasting it. “I feel the complete opposite. With the marriage certificate, you are my wife. You will be my woman for the rest of your life, and it will never be changed.”

Anne was so angry that her face turned pale, but she could not do anything.

Yes, the oppression he put on her had always been the same!

The greatest wish in her life and all her efforts were placed into escaping from Anthony.

However, after a memory loss, she and Anthony got a marriage certificate. Such a sense of powerlessness deeply covered her, making her feel desperate and broken...

Half an hour later, Dr. Brown came over to remove the needle.

Anne was half-leaning on the bed. Anthony was sitting on the sofa, looking calm.

Dr. Brown placed a pendulum clock on the bedside table and said softly, “You can’t see with your eyes. You might be frightened by a sudden noise if the room is too quiet. Will this help?”

When Dr. Brown turned around, she found that Anthony had a deep cut on his lips.

As she was at a loss for words, Anthony's thin lips approached hers, kissed her all over, and licked her small mouth.

Anne turned her face away in panic. She controlled her tumbling emotions and said fiercely, "Do you want me to bite your lips off?"

"You want to bite me? Hmm?" Anthony wrapped his arms around her waist, not letting her out of his arms.

"Anthony, I'm begging you. Do you really have to torture me like this?" Anne almost broke down.

Anthony gazed at her painful expression, and his sight seemed to sink slightly. His face did not get closer anymore, stopping at a distance.

An extra bed was placed in the ward. Anthony stayed in the hospital, resting on that bed at night.

Anne lay in bed, listening to the rhythmic sound of the pendulum clock swinging, and drifted into sleep.

Anthony sat on the sofa. He did not want to sleep so soon.

He gazed at her peaceful sleeping face quietly.

When Anne opened her eyes the next morning, all she could see was still pitch black.

She had gone to sleep, hoping that she would regain her sight in the morning so that she could see her lovely triplets.

Then she heard footsteps approaching the bed. "You're awake?"

Anne heard Anthony's voice and asked, "What time is it now?"

"Seven o'clock."

"Are the triplets coming soon?"

"They'll be here in a while. Let's go to the bathroom first," Anthony said and lifted the covers off her body.

Anne thought she would get out of bed by herself with Anthony leading her.

Instead, she felt herself getting lifted up. She felt panic and clutched the shirt on Anthony's broad shoulders in a helpless manner."

"Don't be afraid."

"Who's afraid?" Anne spoke back defiantly.

Anthony smirked, looking at her with his black eyes.

Once they got in the bathroom, Anthony placed her on the toilet.

After she said that, Charlie, who just finished eating, ran toward Anne excitedly. "Mama, Mama, let me show you the self-defense skills that I've practiced!"

Chris held his laptop. "I now know... how to buy stocks!"

Chloe came over as well. "Mama! Draw with me!"

"Okay..." Anne was a little underwhelmed by what she had just said.

If Anthony was not around and she was left to face the triplets and problems, could she solve them herself?

She kept wanting to keep her distance from Anthony, which made her forget the fact that she had lost her sight...

She was defeated without Anthony having to say anything.

"Papa hasn't eaten yet! Papa, go and eat breakfast!" Chloe was like her Papa's little lover when she noticed he did not eat his breakfast. Her big cute eyes were then filled with surprise. "What's wrong with Papa's mouth?"

"He was bitten!" Charlie pointed his finger to the sky as if he had discovered something incredible.

She was not sure anymore.

Anne reassured herself again by thinking that perhaps this was the after-effects of recovering her memory. She was just overthinking.

She touched the ring on her ring finger and lingered on it for a few seconds before removing it...

All her subtle emotions, annoyance, cluelessness, and uneasiness, as she took the ring off, were all noticed by Anthony, who was silently sitting on the sofa.

Yes, he had not left the room this whole time.

When Anne called out to him, he kept his aura down to keep her from noticing.

What was she thinking about? Was she thinking of getting a divorce?

It was useless for her to have such thoughts, as they could not divorce.

Just as Anne turned over to sit up and get out of bed, she heard the sound of papers turning over. Her body froze.

"I found her," Anthony said.

"Really? That's great, I'm still worried," Bianca replied.

She paused for a moment before continuing, "Anthony, can I go and see Anne? Just to see if she's okay, nothing else. I want to apologize to her for what happened last time..."

Anthony turned to the side, his eyes seeming to pass through the door of the ward and fall on Anne's body. "Come," he said.

"Okay, I'll be right there," Bianca said, happy at the prospect of seeing Anne.

After hanging up the phone, Bianca began to get dressed. She did not expect Anthony to agree to her request, and it seemed that he did not take Anne's feelings seriously.

"We wait for Bianca to come over," Anthony said after sitting down.

Anne's hand on her side twitched convulsively, trying to ignore the discomfort in her heart.

"You just wait, Anne. I don't think you can be so lucky again and again," said Bianca.

"Are you in a better mood now?" Anthony asked.

"What?" Anne was surprised by his question. "Because of her apology? Do I need it? Anthony, you don't have to invite her here to insult me!"

Anthony's face turned cold, and he stood up, storming out of the room. The door slammed shut behind him.

Anne was clearly in a bad mood.

When she saw who was beside the bed, she stopped getting up and pretended to be dead.

Anne was in a deep sleep and did not notice anything unusual. The moonlight shining on her face made her look peaceful and soft, without a trace of her rebelliousness during the day.

Anthony stood by the bed, looking down at her with his black eyes, which were deeper than the night.

The tight lines on his face showed his displeasure. She looked cute when she had amnesia instead of always disobeying him as she did now.

Anne woke up, rolled over, and asked, "What time is it?" The nurse walked over and said, "Mrs. Marwood, you're awake. It's only seven o'clock."

As soon as Anne heard the time, she knew that her eyes were still bad, and she could not help feeling disappointed.

"Help me get my white cane," Anne said as she stood up. The nurse helped her get her cane, and Anne walked forward, using the white cane to guide her.

"You are Mrs. Marwood now. You can live in the apartment if you want," Anthony reminded her without hesitation.

The apartment where Julie lived... If that was the case, Anne might as well stay in the Royal Mansion. She could not resist Anthony when she was healthy, let alone now that she was disabled.

Anne did not say anything else, and she was picked up by Anthony and taken to the Royal Mansion.

Anne sat in the car, facing the window, unable to see anything, but she looked no different from a normal person.

"How did you fall into the river?" Anthony asked.

Anne paused when she heard Anthony's question and thought back. "It seems like... I misstepped."

Chapter 1040

Just because Anne was able to leave the hospital did not mean her body was completely healed. She still needed to take care of herself.

After sitting in the hall for a while, Anthony carried her back to her room.

Anne leaned against the headboard and touched the pillow next to her, knowing that this was the master bedroom. This was the room where she and Anthony shared a bed during her amnesia.

"You can put the white cane on the side. I sometimes want to get up and walk around," Anne said.

"Alright," Anthony said.

The triplets ran into the room, surrounding Mama on the bed. Anthony simply gave them a menacing reminder, "It's okay to get on the bed, but don't step on Mama."

“We know that!” Charlie furiously exclaimed, believing the reminder was unnecessary as he already knew it!

“Mama, can I sing a song for you?” Chloe asked, sweetly leaning on Mama’s hand.

“Sis sings very well!” Charlie said, clearly impressed.
