Chapter 1041

“Forget it, don’t look for it,” Anne said, trying to change the subject.

However, Mia persisted. “Ma’am, there is something that I don’t know if I should tell you. I heard it from the other maids. I was very angry at the time and told them off....”

“What is it?” Anne asked, her curiosity piqued.

“They said... that the marriage certificate between Mrs. Marwood and Mr. Marwood is fake and that Mr. Marwood used it to deceive you. How could the marriage certificate be fake?” Mia said in a puzzled tone. She looked at Anne, her expression deep in thought.

Anne’s mind suddenly became clear.

That was why Anthony would get the marriage certificate with her.

His hatred for her and her mother was deep-rooted, and he married her in the blink of an eye.

It turned out that the marriage certificate was fake, only this made sense...

Chapter 1042

After taking a shower, Anne was carried into bed and lay down comfortably.

He did not move away from her after they had finished.

After kissing her on the lips, he said in an abnormal voice, "I'm going to take a shower, and I'll be right back."

Anthony went to the bathroom. Anne lay still on the bed, listening to the sound of water coming from the bathroom.

She wanted to fall asleep quickly so she did not have to feel the discomfort of sharing Anthony's bed.

However, the more anxious she became, the more awake she became. She was wide awake when Anthony came back from the shower.

The part of the bed beside her sank slightly, and his warm body approached. His domineering hand took hers.

Anne put her hands on his chest, feeling the firmness and hotness of his chest muscles. "Anthony, don't do this." Anne resisted.

Anthony saw that her reaction was extremely firm, and he did not force her. After letting go, Anne turned her back on him. "Anthony, when my eyesight returns, I will leave."

Anthony's face darkened. He got up and turned her over forcefully, with a smirk on his face. "Go? Do you think I would allow it?" Anne did not speak, and her pupils looked up with unfocused eyes.

Anthony's tough heart softened. "I'm at fault for the marriage certificate. Stop making more trouble for me."

Anne was surprised that the powerful Anthony would admit his mistake. She thought she could not get away with it this time.

However, what had he meant by being at fault?

Did he deceive her with a fake marriage certificate without her consent, or was that certificate authentic?

Anne felt that she was suffocating, she could hardly breathe, and her eyes were tearing up.

Before that, she resisted, turned her face away, and closed her eyes. "As long as you are obedient, I will give you whatever you want," Anthony said in a deep voice.

Anne knew that his face was very close to her, and the hot breath sprayed on her skin aggressively. "Let's sleep!" She did not want to tell Anthony anything else. It was useless to say anything, and it would only allow Anthony to control her more.

Chapter 1043

Anne's face moved slightly as she heard the television, her heart sinking. "How do you know?" she asked.

"I just heard as Mr. Marwood went to the study," Mia replied.

Anne said nothing, continuing to face the direction of the television, her expression unreadable.

"Ma'am, I think it was probably just a phone call. Mr. Marwood cares most about you," Mia said.

"I don't care. Leave," Anne said, her response surprising Mia. However, she supposed that her indifference was just a facade and that she must be feeling hurt inside.

No woman could accept her husband having a mistress, especially when that mistress was Mr. Marwood's former fiancée.

Anne, standing at the doorway to the bedroom, heard the faint footsteps and turned her face away from the television, looking toward the balcony.

The daylight outside seemed so bright, but it had nothing to do with her...

Was her life destined to be shrouded in darkness?

Anne did not want to admit that it bothered her, and she was unable to bear this changing self.

Mia placed the white cane in Anne's hand.

Anne used her mind to remember the bathroom location and leaned forward with her white cane.

She smoothly made her way into the bathroom.

Mia stood next to the beauty collagen drink, thinking that if she had known this, there would have been no hurry to administer the poison when she went upstairs.

Now there was only her and Anne. Even if she gave her the drug in front of her, she would not be able to see it.

She would take note of that next time.

"Ma'am, how are you feeling? The beauty collagen drink is getting cold," Mia said.

Anne opened the bathroom door, her cane leading the way, and walked out.

She also held a bath towel in her hand.

Mia said, "Ma'am, you're holding a bath towel. Do you need a normal towel?"

"No, I know it's a bath towel," Anne replied.

"Did you drink the beauty collagen drink?"

"I did," Anne lied smoothly.

"Did you answer the phone yourself?" Anthony queried.

"Yes. I'm fine, you go do your stuff." Anne concurred.

If Anthony was free, he would just appear before her instantly instead of calling her.

"Don't disconnect the phone." Anthony was commanding.

"...Is there anything else you want?" Anne inquired.

"No."

"Just to let you know, I've already eaten." Anne hung up the phone promptly.

Anthony was in the lavatory adjacent to the conference room at the moment.

There was a one-way mirror in the center, and only the people in the lounge could view the scene in the conference room.

The triplets lead Mama for a walk outside the Royal Mansion.

Chris saw a small stone in front of him, hurried forward to pick it up, and threw it into the grass beside him.

"Hey! What is this? Why are there small stones on the road? What if Mama trips over it? I don't want to take any risks, no matter how small it is!" Charlie pointed at the servants fiercely.

"I'm sorry, Master Charlie. We will pay attention to it in the future." The servant was so frightened that he bent down, not daring to raise his head.

Anne gently touched Charlie's little head. "It's okay. Keep going."

The three little ones continued walking with Mama, carefully guarding the road in front of her.

There was a gentle smile on Anne's face. Although they were only two years old, she felt safe with them.

It was like she had three guard dogs, who were fierce yet cute.

Hayden came over in a hurry. "Ma'am, the road ahead is cleared. It was our negligence. Sorry about that."

"It's okay. The path isn't always flat. There will always be bumps on the road, and I'll just have to test out my reflexes," Anne said indifferently.

Anthony rubbed her little head and put her down. "Go and play!"

"Well, with Papa taking care of Mama, we can go play!" After the triplets finished speaking, they ran to play football.

They were running around chasing the football happily.

Anne listened to the children's voices in the distance, but she felt awkward with Anthony around.

No one spoke, and she could feel his sharp gaze falling on her face.

“Haven’t you got anything to say to me?”

“What?” Anne looked cold.

“Tell me why you hung up on me.” Anthony put his hand on the edge of the table, tapping his fingers against the table.

It was very slight, but Anne could hear it.

“I asked you if there was anything you wanted to tell me, and you said no, so I figured I could save some money by hanging up,” Anne said.

“This is how you save money? Huh?” Anthony stuffed some food into his mouth, his expression turning cold. “Why is the food the same as yesterday? Doesn’t the chef want his job anymore?”

Anne lost her mobile phone, but she had the same number.

That was why Ken knew it was her.

"It's me, Ken. What's going on at the factory?" Anne asked.

"The machines are already being tested. Some of our technicians and Mr. Lloyd's technicians are working on it together. It's going well so far," Ken said.

"Xander is Anthony's man. You had better do everything by yourself," Anne said.

Ken heard that Anne's tone was different from before, "Ms. Vallois?"

"I recovered my memory." Anne did not hide it from him.

"That's great! But, will Mr. Marwood do anything to hurt the company?"

"No. I'm just upset," Anne said.

"Okay."

When Mia heard Anne mention her memory was back, she was about to step forward, but she stopped herself.

Not long after, the proud sound of someone in high heels came to her ears.

Anne could picture Bianca walking arrogantly toward her.

Bianca always had real class, especially when she was playing the piano. No wonder Anthony was attracted to her.

No one could resist her!

The sound of high heels came to a stop in front of her, but she did not hear Bianca speak.

"Are you here to laugh at me? Why don't you speak?" Anne asked.

"No, I have nothing but sympathy for you," Bianca said.

"Sympathy? For my blindness? Yes, you totally should. I live in a mansion as big as a castle, with hundreds of rooms to choose from, food and clothing at my fingertips, and three lively and lovely triplets. You should definitely take pity on me!" Anne said sarcastically.

Mia said, "Yes, Ma'am told me to allow Ms. Blanca to enter,"
"Anthony, I'm sorry. I disobeyed you and ran over here without permission. I knew you were not here, so I came here deliberately to avoid you..." Bianca figured her actions were justifiable.
Anne heard it and fully understood Bianca's intentions. She was avoiding Anthony because she was having an affair with him so as not to make people suspicious!
"Go back!" Anthony said coldly.
As soon as Anne heard him say this, she stopped immediately. "No! She can't leave! She has to explain herself. Bianca killed my father, and she needs to pay!"
As she said that, she was about to go forward to take hold of Bianca. She must not let her go!
However, she could not see anything and lost her footing, her left foot tripping over her right foot.

She was about to fall!
