Chapter 1051

"It's none of your business." Anne reached the door of the room and said, "Come in and help me pack my things."

Mia followed and asked curiously, "Why are you packing?"

"I'm leaving the Royal Mansion, and I won't live here anymore. Just pack the clothes," Anne said.

"Oh...okay..." Mia obeyed and went to the closet to pack her clothes.

Anne sat on the edge of the bed, feeling physically and mentally exhausted, enveloped by anger and bitter emotions.

Anthony must have talked to Bianca about her loss of sight and recovery of memory. They really talked about everything!

She could not live under the same roof with someone like Anthony, could not share his bed with him, could not stay for a moment here anymore...

Feeling the danger in the air, she knew Anthony had entered.

Mia, who had packed up, came out carrying the suitcase and stood there, not knowing what to do for a moment.

Anne stood up. "Take it here to me."

Mia dared not do it in front of Mr. Marwood.

The atmosphere of the whole room made her hair stand on end.

"Get out." Anthony's voice was cold.

Mia put the suitcase down and went out.

Anne took the white cane to poke at the suitcase, pulled up the handle, and was about to leave.

A black shadow in front blocked her, as Anthony blocked her white cane.

She knew it was Anthony.

"Where are you going?" Anthony said in a deep voice.

"Back to my mother's mansion. I don't want to live here." Anne did not care whether Anthony agreed. She moved to the side, trying to walk past him.

Anne was eating at the dining table in the master bedroom with Anthony.

Anthony put food into her bowl.

Anne was not in the mood to eat at all. The suffering had almost overwhelmed her.

She poked at the food in her bowl. She barely ate at all.

"Want me to feed you?" Anthony took the fork in her hand and held the meat to her mouth.

Anne turned her face away without saying a word. Every cell in her body was rejecting him.

She felt down, sad, and hopeless...

"Under what conditions would you eat? Bringing Bianca to justice? I'll take care of it. You don't have to think about it," Anthony asked patiently.

Anne's face was expressionless, and she felt numb.

Yes, he already told her he was going to investigate.

The answer was already obvious though, so why waste time investigating?

She wanted the caterpillars to turn into butterflies!
Anne was not in the mood.
The sound of Anthony’s cell phone vibrating pulled her back to the present.
Anthony took out his phone, glanced at the incoming call, and pressed it.

Anne and the children were out in the garden in the morning.

The triplets were having fun, and Anne was sitting at the round table with fruits and snacks and a pot of scented tea, creating a particular mood in the garden.

Anne fumbled for the phone, found Ken's number, and called him. "Mr. Winston, please call Ashlynn, and ask her to call me."

"Okay."

Anne had saved Ashlynn's cell phone number, but when Anthony set the shortcut keys on the screen, she could contact only a few important people.

Ashlynn was not one of them.

Neither was Corentin.

Since Anthony was on Bianca's side, then she should check it herself.

If she found evidence against Bianca, she would retaliate, even if Anthony was standing in the way!

"Okay, I'll call Inspector York."

Ashlynn had just hung up the phone when the door of the emergency escape route was pushed open with a bang, which startled her.

It was a surprise to see that the person walking down was Gavin.

When she was considering whether to talk to him, Gavin gave her a USB drive. "This is a recording from the mobile phone. He was talking to me before going to see Salvatore, and he forgot to hang up. I listened to all of it. Here it is. Maybe you will find it useful."

After finishing speaking, he went straight down to the next floor without waiting for Ashlynn to speak.

Ashlynn stared blankly at the small USB drive in her hand. There was definitely something inside that she could use against Salvatore.

As long as it is handed over to Marco and exposed to the public, then Salvatore can no longer use his alias as Corentin and do whatever he wants...

After that? Ashlynn suppressed her unhappiness and said, "You don't have to keep me on such a tight watch, do you? I am your wife. Where else can I go?"

"I have a bit of time later. We can go to visit Anne together." Corentin said, and then he stood up, and went around the big working table to Ashlynn, "Now, I am thinking about being naughty to you."

Then, his hand reached out to her soft tiny waist and pulled her in his direction.

"No... This is the office," Ashlynn whimpered.

"Told you I am naughty." Corentin pushed her to the couch.

"Ah!" Ashlynn fell onto the couch, her two legs dangling on the armrest of the couch.

Then, Corentin pounced on her like a wolf.

Ashlynn's high heels shoes dropped onto the floor with a soft thud. Her shiny toes were revealed and were curling because of the discomfort.

Corentin's behavior revealed the true colors of Salvatore.

If this were the real Corentin, he would not have done something like this in broad daylight at the office!

The books, which were a few centimeters behind her, slammed onto the door and dropped to the ground.

If they had landed on Ashlynn's head, she would probably be on the ground, unconscious, by now.

"I said it before. I am taking a nap, can't you understand?"

Ashlynn looked toward the sound and found Jeremy howling furiously.

“Mr. Hilton, I am Ashlynn... I will follow you to outstation at three in the afternoon. today,” Ashlynn said.

Even though he was throwing a tantrum and his clothes were a mess with his necktie slanted, he still looked rather elegant. He was indeed born with a silver spoon.

When Jeremy heard her self-introduction, he stopped throwing his tantrum and then looked at her intensely. “Oh, so you are Ashlynn.”

He sounded as though he had long heard about her impressive background.

Jeremy walked to her and then looked at her with his judgemental gaze. “Of course, you are somewhat pretty to be Corentin’s lover. However...”

Ashlynn wanted to see Anne because she had already called her.

However, she was dragged by Jeremy and Xander to the bar.

This kind of place must cost an arm and a leg to be frequented by the rich.

Ashlynn was just tagging along.

Jeremy was carefree. He ordered more than ten female models to the room, wishing to give each of them at least three escorts for company.

The girls were experienced and were really good at sweet talking.

Jeremy even wanted to order a male escort for Ashlynn, but she declined.

If Corentin knew about it, Jeremy would be doomed.

Luckily, a phone call came in, and Ashlynn used it as an excuse to go pick up the call.

It was Anne. "What's up?"

Ashlynn’s appearance forced him to hand over the audio.

After that, Ashlynn asked, “How is it? Can we prosecute Salvatore?”

“No.”

“Why not? I can identify which was Salvatore and which one was Corentin,” Ashlynn said.

“They had never mentioned each other’s name from the beginning to the end. This audio can only tell that they were brothers with a pretty bad relationship, but it cannot be the crucial evidence to prosecute Salvatore. I have met the current Corentin, and I think he is much more ruthless than the real Corentin and much smarter.” Marco shook his head.

Ashlynn was disappointed.

In fact, she understood it deep down. How would it be so easily solved?

She only wanted to escape her nightmare desperately, and so she was full of anticipation.

Would Corentin suspect her if she were not pregnant the first month, but not for the second too, nor the third?

Ashlynn panicked and explained, “I think you misunderstood. I said that I don’t know him.”

“Who would believe you?” Owen looked as though he had done something rewarding. “I had already informed Mr. Lloyd about this, and he is on his way now.” Ashlynn was stunned.

Corentin was rushing here in the middle of the night, and that only explained something. He was here to ‘take care’ of her!

What should she do...

Owen pushed her into the car and brought her to a mansion.

Ashlynn got out of the car and looked at the strange place, not moving an inch.

Owen said, “Mr. Lloyd bought this place not too long ago. It is useful now. After all, it is not convenient for him to make too much noise at the hotel.”

She was shaken by the word ‘noise’. He meant Corentin was about to do something very bad to her.

Ashlynn knew how twisted Corentin could be and could not help but start to freak out.

“Go inside!” Owen pushed her hard.

Ashlynn almost slammed onto the ground.

Owen looked at Ashlynn inside the house with his ferocious gaze.

He really wanted to destroy this woman and leave no trace of her!

Keeping this woman around was such a disaster!

She framed Mr. Lloyd again, and she was obviously testing Mr. Lloyd’s limits!

What other reasons were there for Mr. Lloyd to keep her!

Therefore, he needed not to lift a single finger and would leave her to Mr. Lloyd instead.

Ashlynn entered the mansion, and there was not a single soul inside.
