Chapter 1071

Ashlynn rubbed Chichi's head gently. Chichi was still lethargic and dangled on her arm.

It must have wished to stay by her side forever!

"Chichi is strong. We will go home now." Ashlynn kissed its head and then made the payment and left.

She did not keep Chichi in the kennel anymore.

If Corentin were unhappy about it, she would beg him.

Anyway, she would not allow Chichi to be handled by any other person.

She entered the hall and saw Tina sitting in the living room, watching TV. She even had snacks in her hands.

Tina saw Ashlynn hugging Chichi in her arms and asked, "You are back. Chichi is fine, isn't it?"

"No. Please do not feed Chichi anymore in the future. I will feed it," Ashlynn said.

One of them was the legally protected wife, while the other was the illegitimate woman being impregnated and brought back.

This was such an absurd combination.

“Are you done peeing? Let’s go back!” Chichi just recovered, and Ashlynn did not want to linger too long outside.

She then carried Chichi back into her room.

As soon as she returned to her room, she heard her phone ringing.

She placed Chichi down and picked up her phone.

It was Corentin. She answered, “What is up?”

“Have you had dinner?”

“Yes, I have,” Ashlynn said.

“I need to keep the old man company for a bit longer. Please take a shower and wait for me.”

Even though Ashlynn tried to convince herself to live in peace with Corentin before she managed to get hold of his flaws, she could no longer stand him. “Are you done?”

“I said it before, I want you to conceive my child. Right, I have arranged a doctor for you. Please get yourself checked.”

Ashlynn was walking toward Chichi when she paused.
It was because she suddenly saw waves appearing on the surface of the water.
She felt as though she had seen a pair of eyes appearing and approaching Chichi.
Chichi was still happily barking.
When Ashlynn realized what that was, she immediately ran forward, picked up Chichi, and ran.
The pair of eyes sank into the water again.
Ashlynn rubbed Chichi's furry head, and said, "You were almost eaten by the crocodile. This is a dangerous place. Who allowed you to come here? You are so tiny, and you are not even enough to be the crocodile's dinner."
"Woof!" Chichi squirmed in her arms.
Ashlynn knew that the surroundings were eerie, even though it was just a riverbank. She did not want to stay there for long.
Just when she was about to leave, she caught sight of the crocodile not too far away. It was slowly crawling its way across the ground.
It bared its sharp teeth at her.

There was also not just one of them!

Ashlynn turned and looked, only after making sure that there were no crocodiles behind her, then she backed away, holding her breath.

Corentin stood and stared at Ashlynn with a dark expression. "You came all the way here at night to feed yourself to the crocodiles?"

".."

Before she could explain, Corentin landed a kick on his subordinate's leg, and a sharp noise of bone cracking pierced through the air.

"Ugh!" The man wailed, not daring to protest.

"Do you want to be thrown into the river?" Corentin asked.

"Spare me, Mr. Lloyd!" the man begged.

Corentin crouched to check the wound on Ashlynn's ankle. Without sparing his subordinate another look, he lifted her up and said, "Someone has to pay for this mistake." Before turning to leave.

Ashlynn's eyes darted away from his face as she knew she was running after her dog by the river.

"The reason that I didn't kill this dog is because of you." He sat down by the bed and stared at her. "It's just a dog. Why is it so important?"

"I was mentally troubled, and it's this dog that kept me company until I got better," she said.

“You ought to keep a better eye on it, then, or I am going to have it made into a stew and serve it up to you!” He caressed her cheek. “Don’t forget that I was the one who saved you just now.”

“Be reasonable, Corentin Lloyd. Would that have happened if you didn’t bring me to this place against my will, to begin with? I won’t thank you!” she said while suppressing her anger, terrified that Corentin would kill her dog as he promised.

His expression darkened as he stood and kicked at the nightstand.

Baam!

The lamp on the nightstand fell onto the ground, and Ashlynn jolted in fear. By the time she looked up, Corentin had already left the room.

Tina could not hide how pleased she was. ‘Oh, my. Why did you send it here? What would Ashlynn think? I could have eaten this later.’”

Ashlynn could tell that she was showing off and simply focused on the television, all the while thinking to herself, Corentin said that he doesn't care about this baby, but this doesn't look that way.'

Even if Tina did not show off in front of her, she knew that the maids were ordered to deliver a beauty collagen drink to her every single day and to make sure that she finished it.

The maid did not leave the room until Tina had finished the drink.

"Hang on." Tina stopped the maid and said, "Bring some for Ashlynn as well."

"That's all of it," the maid said.

Tina fell into silence awkwardly.

Anne was still his granddaughter by blood, and they could be closer.

Whenever Cory thought of Anne, he would be reminded of Nigel, his eldest son, who did not care for him at all, and would often be overwhelmed by sorrow.

"Yes, ma'am."

Ashlynn finished watching a movie and started to feel hungry. She turned to check the time and realized that it was almost noon.

'Why hasn't anyone sent me lunch? Did they forget about it?' she wondered.

Ashlynn glanced at her dog and got out of bed to carry it into the washroom before placing it on the toilet.

The next morning, breakfast did not come, and lunch was skipped as well.

At five in the afternoon, Ashlynn stumbled down the stairs to grab food on her own. She was exhausted and drenched in sweat when she was on the first floor.

“Why are you down here, Ashlynn? I thought your leg was injured.” Tina walked over.

“I’m worried that the servants will forget about delivering food to me again, so I came down to eat.” Ashlynn turned toward the dining room.

“Hang on.” Tina blocked her way. “You should head back upstairs, Ashlynn! If something happens to your leg, you are going to cause Mr. Lloyd more trouble, and he will be upset.”

“He’s the one who’s going to be upset. Who are you to say anything about this?”

“Why you...” Upset, Tina continued, ‘Ashlynn, you have no power here, and you won’t get anywhere with just a pretty little face. I advise that you stay out of my way, or I will make Mr. Lloyd chase you out.”

“Impressive. Why don’t you try? I’m excited to see how it turns out.” Ashlynn shoved her aside.

“Ah!” Tina was startled as she had not expected Ashlynn to push her. Thankfully, the maid behind steadied her. “How dare you push me, Ashlynn? Don’t you know that I’m pregnant with Mr. Lloyd’s child? If something happens to the future heir of the Lloyd Family, you will suffer for it!”

Ashlynn ignored her and continued to move toward the dining room.

Enraged from being ignored, Tina reached out to grab Ashlynn’s hair, but before she could touch Ashlynn...

“What are you doing?”

The dark voice startled Tina, and she immediately dropped her hand.

Ashlynn turned around in confusion and looked at Corentin, who appeared furious. She glanced at the terrified look on Tina’s face and realized that Tina must have been trying to do something to her when she was not looking.

Corentin held her and placed a hand over her stomach. "Once your ankle is better, I'll take you to the hospital for a check-up."

She panicked and said, "Tina is already pregnant with your child. What's the hurry?"

He chuckled. "Go to sleep."

The next morning, Ashlynn noticed that her breakfast had resumed to the luxurious version it was before.

'Why, though?' she thought. She knew that Tina was the reason behind her missing meals. The maids had failed to deliver breakfast to her the day before, and Ashlynn was prepared to experience worse.

At noon, lunch was as rich as ever; the plates were piled up with a big amount of food that she would not be able to finish even if she ate consistently for three days. Feeling more and more suspicious, she asked, "Is Tina eating downstairs?"

The maid hesitated to answer.

"What did he do to you?"

Terror filled Tina's face when she thought back to the night before. "I was asleep. when I felt a sharp pain in my stomach. I was bleeding, but even when I called out for help, no one came. Mr. Lloyd came inside the room afterward and stepped on my stomach until I lost my baby... How is this not your fault?"

Ashlynn held her breath and felt her blood running cold as she pictured the scene. It was so gory and cruel, and she could never imagine how Corentin was capable of such an act.

Tina rubbed her stomach sorrowfully. "I didn't know whose child this was and thought that I would just give birth to it anyway. After all, it's mine, but I underestimated the cost of having a child, and I soon ran out of options. I returned to the bar to find out who the man was because I wanted to protect my child..."
