Chapter 1151

There was a refrigerator in the room, which was full of crushed ice. There were boxes lined up with ice filled with frozen fish.

There was an indoor thermometer hanging on the wall, and it read 'negative 20 degrees'. However, it still could not mask the fishy smell in the room.

Anne was wearing a white shirt, a gray hip-wrapping skirt underneath, and flat shoes on her feet. She was going to go shopping with the children and change her dressing in the car.

Even in winter, temperatures were not as low as negative 20 degrees. Anne, who was so cold that she could not bear it, crossed her arms and rubbed her arms, her breath forming clouds of white mist.

When she took two steps to find the exit, she felt movement behind her.

As soon as she turned her head, she was kicked in her stomach fiercely...

"Ah!" Anne fell to the ground. Her stomach ached for a long time before she recovered.

"I thought you wouldn't be able to wake up!" Lilian was murderous, holding the cold knife in her hand.

When she saw the knife, the wound on her neck began

Anne was beaten until her bones ached.

She dared not move due to the knife pressing against her face.

She really did not expect to see Lilian so confident in herself.

“Lilian, you haven’t been loved before, have you?”

Lilian was taken aback by Anne’s sudden question. “What did you say?”

“No one loves you, and suddenly you have someone you like, but you don’t know how to show it. You can’t tell what’s true and what isn’t. If someone treats you better, you feel warm, like a pitiful child.”

“You... you’re courting death!” Lilian just slapped Anne in the face.

Anne was slapped to the ground and saw stars. Blood overflowed from the corner of her mouth again, and she lay on the ground without even moving.

This was a frozen storage by the sea, where fishermen would store fish after they caught them.

Anthony would not find it so quickly.

Lilian picked up another box of fish and easily dumped it on Anne's body.

The frozen fish and ice cubes hit her body, making it unbearable for the already injured body.

There was still water on the ground. As Anne crawled on the ground, she felt that her body was unconscious, her blood was cold, and she could hardly breathe.

She looked forward in a daze and saw a finger-thick bamboo stick between the crushed ice and frozen fish, which should have been poured out of the fish box.

"Why aren't you talking? Why don't you beg me for mercy?" Lilian kicked Anne's waist, one kick after another.

Lilian was on the side admiring her painful expression.

After recovering a little from the pain, Anne said, "Even so, I won't tell you where Tommy is."

When Lilian heard this, she became anxious. "Where is Tommy?"

"Why should I tell a murderer? In Tommy's eyes, you are disgusting trash..." Anne provoked her.

"Nonsense!" Lilian slapped her in the face. Lilian grabbed her by her neck, picking her up abruptly.

Anne took advantage of the force of being yanked away, coupled with the remaining strength in her body, to plunge the bamboo stick into Lilian's aorta forcefully!

"Ugh!" Lilian's whole body froze, and her eyes widened from the sudden fatal blow. The blood seemed to find an outlet, rushing to her neck and trickling down.

Anne gritted her teeth, grasping the bamboo stick tightly, her strength gradually draining from her body.

Anne stepped back in a panic and tripped over something. "Ah!"

Looking back, it was the body of a man who seemed to be the driver of the car. He was also killed by Lilian.

Anne wanted to get up, but she was too weak. She was anxious and afraid. Seeing Lilian's persistent step forward, step by step, she did not know what to do.

Why was Lilian still not down?

Why...

Then, she saw the knife in Lilian's hand fall to the ground. Trembling, Lilian touched her waist and took out a gun.

Anne stared with eyes full of horror. She watched as the black muzzle of the gun aimed at her.

The muzzle of the gun was trembling, and Lilian tried her best to aim at Anne, and the next step was to pull the trigger...

Anne shook her head. Who would save her? Why was there no one here?

Help... She did not want to die...

Lilian squeezed the trigger, and in the next second, there was a bang...

"Ah!" Anne flinched, but she did not feel any pain in her body, as if the bullet did not hit her.

Perhaps, at least, she knew that Anthony was not the person that wanted to murder her.

The helicopter was much faster than the car. After some ten minutes, it arrived at the rooftop of the hospital. Anthony carried Anne and left the helicopter straight to the emergency department.

Anne was beaten up for over twenty minutes, but she did not have signs of bone fractures.

She knew that if she did not protect her belly back then, she would have all her rib bones snapped by now.

She felt a little pathetic when Kathryn was treating her wounds on her.

She was even experienced in being beaten up now.

Her lips curved up in a super slight manner, but Anthony still noticed it.

His dark and deep eyes looked at her as if they were trying to dig more from her.

However, there were not many emotions after that small curve on her lips.

Kathryn treated the wounds on her face, then covered them in gauze and said, " Nothing serious. I suggest I go to the Royal Mansion when the medicine needs to be changed so that you don't have to be admitted to the hospital."

Then, she turned and left.

The three kids noticed the wounds on their mother’s face when they heard their father say, “What happened to Mama?”
Anne squatted down and said gently, “Nothing big, I only scratched myself. I will be fine soon.
“We will help Mama to blow it out, and the pain will fly away!” Chloe said.
“Sure,” Anne replied.
The three kids then pouted their lips and blew onto their mother’s face.
“Pain, pain, go away. No more pain!” Chloe muttered.

It was because she was not satisfied with Anthony's reply.

"No."

Anthony's reply did not make Anne feel happy, but she did not feel unhappy either. It was as though she had lost her ability to judge right and wrong.

Anthony had already left to prepare the bath water.

The condition of her face was not suitable for a shower. The shower water would splash on her face.

She saw Anthony taking off his clothes and revealing his seductively muscular back. His muscles moved as he moved, full of energy.

"Are you... Are you going to take a bath too?" Anne asked uncertainly.

Anthony turned around. His well-defined muscular chest and abs were visually impactful, and he asked, "What is the matter?"

Anne shifted her eyesight. She had a sudden urge to remove the bandage on her face so that he could not take a bath while facing her in such a condition.

She did not expect Anthony to have this kind of request.

“...Nothing,” she replied after two seconds of hesitation. still somehow get Anthony’s feathers ruffled and end up was huge, like a in the tub, the water rippling lightly. “Lilian even said that Bianca killed my father...” Anne’s eyes were blurry, but she tried to see past that and watch Anthony’s reaction.

She wished that he could stand up for her and for her father.

Anthony’s dark eyes were stunned at first, then he asked, “You did not make this up, did you?”

Anne’s heart immediately sank.

She felt that the bath water was no longer warm but icy cold, which was why she felt it so cold right into her bones.

“You think that... I made this up?” Anne’s voice was hoarse. She lost control over her emotions. “Why would I make this up? I have been so traumatized, and will I have the heart to make this up? Lilian told me about it! You said you wanted to investigate this after you got hold of Lilian, now that she is dead, so we do not have evidence anymore. So, this can't be solved, right?"

Anthony did not say anything.

Anne was utterly disappointed. She turned and wanted to leave.

However, the hand on her waist tightened and grabbed her tiny waist.

"Where are you going?"

"I don't think I can take a bath with someone who does not take the same stance as me." Anne wanted to peel his hand away.

"Don't throw a tantrum."

Anne could not remove his hand and burst into tears. "She killed my father. It was her! Why can't you believe me? Because she is Bianca, and you like her, right? If you like her so much, why did you marry me?"

"I don't like her." Anthony's face sank, and he was flustered being questioned by Anne.

Anne would not listen to him.

Anthony's actions were already disappointing her.

Her tears dropped one after another.

Anthony's finger landed under her eyes again, not budging. "Don't cry, Lilian is dead, that is all."

In Anne's teary eyes was Anthony's blurry face. She could never understand this cold-blooded man.

Kathryn was stunned. She could not understand what she was trying to imply.

Was she trying to make Anthony sympathize with her more?

However, she observed that Anne's expression looked more like she was facing it with an open heart and did not care about the consequence.

What she wanted was not sympathy but was to be given up on.

Anthony's footsteps were heard, and the atmosphere transitioned into one that was being intruded upon and filled with energy and tension. That was a sign of being alive too.

Kathryn thought she did not achieve what she wanted, but Mrs. Marwood did.

Her scarred face was bare and reflected in Anthony's dark eyes as though it was imprinted in his eyes.

Anthony stood there and did not say a word but quietly watched as Kathryn treated the wound, then covered it in a bandage.

"The bandage has good ventilation. It will not trap the wound. The wound is recovering well, but please continue to avoid water," Kathryn said.

Anthony said, "Next time, please wait till I am around to change the medicine."

Kathryn was stunned. She looked at Anne and thought the two of them were thinking alike.
