Chapter 1331

"I will always be with you. And no matter what happens, you can always count on me," Lucas said in a deep but warm voice.

Anne bit her lip, her long eyelashes drooping, and she did not speak.

After the call ended, Anne was a little dazed.

Lucas probably wanted to know if she knew about the children.

He probably knew about it by now.

If Tommy had not comforted her, she would definitely have asked.

Anne went back to the study, and there was a computer on the desk.

She inserted the USB and clicked on the video inside. The soft and cute little figures of the children came into view, and when she heard their voices, her eyes teared up. Tears rolled down her face.

They were so happy when they were by her side, but she had no choice but to give up on them and leave them alone.

Anne did not speak, but her tears welled up.

Of course, she would.

“Even if you go back, you won’t be able to help the child,” Tommy said.

Anne’s eyes widened. “You mean...something really happened to the children?”

“You must be very careful with the things you are unsure of.” Tommy’s robotic voice came through the drone. “Anthony is doing this because he knows you will fall for it.”

Anne was at a loss. “Then...then should we go see Dr. Brown? She will tell me the truth. She was the one that helped me leave.”

“That’s a good idea.”

“I’ll call her!” Anne got the phone but stopped in her tracks. “I don’t remember her contact information. I’d better ask the principal!”

She called Lucas first, and after Lucas told her Dr. Brown’s cell phone number, she immediately called Dr. Brown.

All the media outlets in Luton are covering the story of the child, and it has even become international news.

The commotion caused people to panic.

Dr. Brown, in particular, was worried because she had helped Anne escape.

Anne was afraid that if Anthony discovered Dr. Brown's involvement, she would no longer have a place in the medical field and may be physically harmed by Anthony.

She hoped that Anne would not show up, and she regretted her actions in the past.

She had felt sorry for Anne and betrayed Anthony, but now the situation was getting out of control.

The mobile phone in her pocket rang, and she looked at the unfamiliar incoming call. "Hello, who is this?"

"Doctor Brown, it's Anne." Anne's voice came through clearly.

“Okay, let’s not talk about it for too long. People might start to suspect that Mr. Marwood is still in the hospital.”

“Okay.” Anne quickly ended the call and sat down helplessly on the chair, lost in thought.

Anne was relieved to hear that the child was fine, but Dr. Brown’s words made her anxious again.

The thought of Anthony holding onto her like a curse, even if it meant his own death, made it hard for her to breathe.

Why did it have to be her? Could Anthony not turn to Bianca instead?

As soon as Dr. Brown entered the office, someone knocked on the door.

The person who came in was Bianca.

“This isn’t the first time you’ve come here, Miss Bianca. No matter how many times you come, you will never be allowed to see the child. It’s useless for you to keep looking for me,” Dr. Brown said before Bianca could speak.

"Thank you, Ms. Faye," Mia said.

"It seems that the drug didn't kill Anne after all. At least she's not here to bother us anymore. I feel like the air in the Royal Mansion is fresher and nobler than anywhere else," Bianca said, taking a deep breath.

She took out her phone and snapped several photos of the interior of the Royal Mansion, including a selfie.

After thinking for a moment, Bianca asked Mia to take a full-body photo of her in front of the Royal Mansion.

Mia held the phone and pointed it at Bianca, who was posing. As she took the photo, she muttered disrespectful words under her breath, "What is this for? Her engagement has already been ruined once. I can't see the point of her doing this." Of course, Bianca could not hear her and was still posing happily.

After taking the photo, Bianca felt pleased when she saw it on her phone.

Even if Anne had run away, she wanted her to know that there was a new hostess in the Royal Mansion and that no one cared about her anymore!

Just then, the phone on the desk vibrated.

Anthony's black eyes were gloomy and cold as he looked at the unfamiliar number on the screen. It showed that the call was coming from abroad.

His heartbeat began to lose its rhythm, and his eyes darkened.

He picked up the phone and answered the call. His thin lips tightly pressed together, and the veins on the back of his hands twisted from the force he was using.

"Mr. Marwood?"

The woman's voice was not Anne's, the one he wanted to hear.

Anthony's dark eyes suddenly darkened, and his face was dark. "You better have a legitimate reason for making this call," he said coldly.

"I know where Anne is. Is that a valid reason?" Joanne asked.

Chapter 1337

No one spoke, and there were only slight movements during meals, as was expected of a well-bred family.

Lucas was born into such a family, exuding self-cultivation and stability.

Joanne asked how Lucas was getting along with Anne.

Lucas’s eyes narrowed slightly behind the glasses, and he seemed uncomfortable with his parents discussing this topic at the dinner table.

However, he still respected them, saying, “Very good.”

Joanne asked if Anne wanted to be with Lucas. “If she wants to and can completely forget about Anthony, we can accept her,” she said.

Lucas looked at his parents in surprise and asked, “Are you sure?”

“What other options do we have if you don’t agree to listen to us?” Eason asked gravely.

Lucas did not like it when they spoke to him as if he was a three-year-old. “She will never go back to Anthony’s side.”

“I don’t...” She started to explain that she did not understand, but Anthony interrupted her forcefully and coldly.

“You’d better think carefully before you speak, or you know what will happen.”

Dr. Brown did not dare to speak carelessly after this warning.

Her mind raced with thoughts as she tried to come up with a response.

Did he find out that she had helped Anne?

She would be courting disaster if he had found out and she still lied.

After all, Anthony never did anything without a purpose...

Dr. Brown hesitated for a long time before finally mustering the courage to say, “I helped them contact each other...”

As soon as the words left her mouth, Anthony stood up and grabbed the glass from the table.

Dr. Brown gasped as the cup shattered on her head with a loud crash.

This implied that while it was feasible for one of them to be mistaken, it was completely improbable for all three to be incorrect.

Dr. Brown knew that these intelligent kids were challenging to handle, so she switched the topic, saying, "My head was still bleeding, and I needed to see a doctor. I will send you back to the intensive care unit first."

The bodyguard was taken aback when he saw the children outside, unsure of how they had escaped.

Dr. Brown's explanation helped him grasp the situation.

Mr. Marwood finding out about such a minor error would not be ideal.

Upon entering the intensive care unit, Chloe turned to the bodyguard and said, "I need to call Papa!"

The bodyguard hesitated, as Mr. Marwood had not explicitly forbidden the children. from contacting him.

Eventually, he dialed the phone and handed it to Chloe.

“Hey, can you hear me?” Chloe held the phone to her ear like an adult.

Mia brought over a cup of health tea.

Bianca asked her not to add the drug, but she refused to listen and kept adding it.

Bianca wanted to be Mrs. Marwood, did she not?

When Bianca left, just like Anne, she would have a chance.

She raised her hand and knocked on the door.

A roar came from inside. "Get out!"

Mia was so frightened that her hands shook and almost knocked over the teacup on the tray.

Afraid to anger him further, she left in fear.

The triplets were causing a commotion in the room, insisting on running away from home to find Mama, which was exhausting for Hayden.

Fortunately, other maids were helping him, or else he would not have been able to handle it alone.
