"I'll take you there."

Anne did not know why he was so persistent. It was like if she left him, she would disappear.

In fact, she would not leave without seeing the children.

Could Anthony not have thought about this with his IQ?

What a strange person.

Anne did not say anything more and left the Royal Mansion in Anthony's Rolls Royce.

She went to Sarah's mansion.

After she got out of the car, Anthony did not follow her and just watched her enter the park.

The moment Anne entered, she found that not only were there no weeds and chaos, but it was clean and tidy. The flowers and plants in the flower beds did not look withered.

There was no trace of dust everywhere, and there was a refreshing smell in the air.

It was clear that it was cleaned every day.

Anne looked at her housekeeper in confusion. "Has he been there the whole time?"

"Yes," the housekeeper replied.

Anne frowned slightly, wondering what Anthony meant by this. He was neither coming inside nor leaving.

If he wanted to come in, no one in Luton dared to stop him.

So why was he doing this?

This was not like Anthony at all. He was usually domineering and did things his own way.

The housekeeper asked, "Miss, do you want to invite Mr. Marwood in? There's plenty of food, enough for two people."

"No," Anne answered without a second thought.

If he wanted to stay outside, let him stay!

Anthony was still there when she went out after dinner.

The scorching breath sprayed on Anne’s fair skin, making her shiver and struggle sensitively. “You...you let me go.”

“Don’t move, let me hug you.”

Anne did not understand. Was he not already hugging her?

Why did he still want to hug her?

She had not expressed her true thoughts and planned to talk about everything after seeing the children.

So, she did not do anything and just let him hold her like that.

However, a simple hug obviously could not satisfy Anthony, and he started to feel restless while hugging her.

He kissed her neck, ears, face, and then her small mouth.

“Mmm...” Anne could not help it and poked Anthony’s ribs with force.

“Mmmph!” Anthony snorted. Not only did he not let go of her small mouth, but the hand holding her became even tighter. His raised black eyes and the lingering, entangled gaze that was so close were deeply familiar to Anne.

what they wanted.

Anne did not say that she was leaving or that she would not leave. She just tightly hugged her children.

If she could, she would not leave them for even a second.

Anthony stood behind and watched the person he cared about most. His heart tightened as he realized he could not let Anne out of his sight again.

The triplets had finally been reunited with their mother, and they clung to her, holding her hand wherever they went.

There was no room for Anthony.

However, he remained calm, knowing that as long as Anne was by his side, everything would be okay.

It turned out to be worth it in the end.
She had always been by Anthony’s side as his secret woman, but after a while, she felt it was no longer fulfilling.
She did not want to be a secret mistress forever but rather to have a legitimate relationship as Mrs.
Marwood
This was the most coveted position for a woman in Luton.
Anne retired to the room at night to sleep with the children.
She would take a bath and then spend time with the children.
The children were so excited that they found it difficult to fall asleep.
“Okay, it’s time for bed,” Anne reminded them.
“Mama, we’re going to sleep now. Will you leave?”

Then, she turned around to open the door.

Before she could even reach the doorknob, her arm was grabbed by Anthony. Her vision swiveled, and she was pinned onto the door.

Her body was pressed against Anthony's strong and buff body.

Anne's facial expression changed, and her breathing was uneven. "Anthony, please get this straight. We are no longer like before!"

"I know." Anthony's gesture was dominant, but his gaze was so earnest, as though it would drip out anytime. "I will let you go back to the room, but the kids outside are probably not too far away. If you walk out that way, they would be sad."

As soon as Anne heard that, she paused.

Even though she said she wanted to come clean to the children, she still subconsciously did not want to.

"There's no need to clarify it, I will not force you to do something that you are not willing to do," Anthony said, then he slowly released her.

Anne regained her freedom. She stood straight and then tidied the ruffled clothes because of her struggle.

At the same time, that tidied up the mess in her head too.

She then responded, "Why are you in my room?"

"You have not come back for a long time, and I was concerned that you are not used to it," Anthony said indifferently, almost as though everything was perfectly logical and reasonable.

Of course, Anne knew that the fact was far from what he described, but she did not expose him.

If she exposed him, that simply meant she was exposing herself.

She even had a nightmare that testified to his concern.

Then, the bed sank as Anthony sat down by the side.

Anne felt pressured subconsciously, and she asked, "What are you doing?"

"I will leave after you fall asleep."

Anne frowned; she did not like this kind of treatment and did not need it.

She had spent her days on the deserted island and had been able to fall asleep under bad conditions. She definitely can do it in such a safe place here.

She guessed Anthony would not compromise.

“Mama was already awake when we arrived.”

“We are talking to mama.”

The triplets explained themselves.

Anthony looked at Anne and said, “Let’s have breakfast now.”

Anne lifted her duvet and got out of bed. “I will go and wash up now.”

It had been a long time since they last had breakfast together as a family.

Anne could feel her heart wrenching when they all sat together.

She was unsure whether it was because of the kids or it was because of other reasons.

Anthony even served some dishes to Anne’s plate. Anne thought, ‘The only thing left that he did not do is feed it into my mouth.’”

Just as she was thinking, he held a spoonful of eggs to her mouth.

“I will eat it myself...” Anne moved her head back and wanted to reach her hand out to grab it.

Anthony avoided her and insisted on feeding her.

The kids were happy, and Anne did not say anything more.

Anthony entered his Rolls Royce, and the car drove away from the Royal Mansion until it disappeared from her vision.

Anthony took out his phone in the car. He did not even read the message but deleted it right away.

He then called Oliver to remind him, "Please help to handle Lucia."

"Sure."

Lucia waited at home from the morning until noon. The dining table was full of the dishes she cooked.

She thought the best way to get a man was to get his stomach.

She had always cooked every time Anthony visited.

She thought, no worries, she would stay there and keep them company for a few days!
She did not want to let them experience the feeling of their mother leaving.
The school was huge, and it was twice as big as Pinnacle.
Anne's heart sank a little when she thought about Pinnacle.
It was because of her that Lucas lost Pinnacle.
Now, Anne Private Academy has replaced Pinnacle. From now to the future, it will not change.

It was because Anthony was the person that everyone was so scared of.

“Mama, let’s go take a look at our classroom.”

“Okay.”

Anne’s train of thought was cut off, and she then noticed Anthony’s gaze that was fixated on her.

Why was he staring at her all the time? Did he not know that it would make her very uncomfortable?

She reckoned that Anthony had given his orders beforehand, and that was why no one came to disturb them throughout.
