“Up to you.” Anthony looked at her face as though he could see enough of her.

Nothing had changed; she was still his Anne.

The subtle annoyance on her face was alluring him.

Anne turned her face around and glared at him, “How many times have I said it, do not touch me. If you touch me, I will leave. Are you not listening to me... Uhm!”

Anthony used one hand to hold the back of her head and another hand to grab her waist. His dominating and powerful lips engulfed all of hers.

Anne frowned slightly upon the suffocating feeling.

This man did not take her words seriously at all!

“You hmm...” Anne’s lips were sealed, and she could not say a word. Her body was pressed right onto the bed, and her vision turned to the ceiling above her. “Hmm...”

The more she tried to fight, the harder he kissed her.

She was wrapped around Anthony’s body and was utterly trapped.

Anne really wished that she could kill him!

She was so angry that she bit him with all her might.

Back at the Royal Mansion, the triplets returned to school happily.
Anne and Anthony both sent them to school together.
The triplets used to go to school on their own after Anne went missing.
Anthony would occasionally send them, but he was always grim and unpleasant.
They wished they could always be sent to school by both their parents.
Two years later, they finally got what they wished for.
After sending the triplets, Anne wanted to return to her own mansion.

The kids were not home yet, but she could hear the engine sound from outside.

She could even tell that it was Anthony’s car.

Anne sat on the balcony. Her eyes were blank, and the coffee table in front of her was full of fruits and snacks, but she did not touch them at all.

After a few minutes, she felt someone walking to the balcony, and a shadow appeared in the corner of her eye.

That was Anthony’s slacks.

Anne did not dare to look at the person, but she could not resist turning her face slowly.

When their gaze crossed and then landed on the silver hair, her heart trembled.

Anthony sat down next to her and asked, “What’s the matter? My hair is ugly, isn’t it? I will dye it again tonight.”

Anne pursed her lips. ‘Dye it again?’

Right, she always thought he dyed it silver.

She looked away to the fence. “You are home early.”

"Let's go together."

Anne was stunned by his words for a moment and thought to herself, 'Are we two high- school girls or something? Why are we going to the bathroom together? Besides, you aren't even a girl! Why would a guy and a woman go to the bathroom together?'

"You can go ahead. I will go over to the other side..." Anne kept her head bowed and made way for him. As soon as she walked past the door, Anthony dragged her backward by the wrist.

"The other one is under repair."

“Then I’m going upstairs.” Since there were plenty of bathrooms in the Royal Mansion, they could not possibly all be under repair.

Anthony stared at her intently. “Why are you scared? I won’t do anything.”

She pulled her hand away. “You are being ridiculous.” She headed outside.

Anne did not believe a word he said. “There are plenty more rooms here and even if your room is damaged, you can sleep elsewhere.” She turned to leave.

“I can’t get used to any of the other rooms,” Anthony said, his eyes glittering in the dark.

Anne was about to say something when Hayden overheard them and came over. “Ms. Vallois, Mr. Marwood either stay in his room or yours. He’s probably used to it by now.”

Anne was stunned at the idea of Anthony sleeping in his room. Her heart wavered slightly when she thought of how his hair turned gray overnight but was still reluctant to share a bed with him.

"Look up," Anthony said hoarsely.

Enticed by his voice, Anne subconsciously lifted her chin and stiffened when she realized she was cooperating.

She did not notice the smirk on Anthony's face.

It was torture as Anthony brushed her teeth with care, caressing each porcelain tooth. He did not stall, and once he was done, he commanded, "Spit."

Anne bent down and spat the foam in her mouth out. When she looked up again, she noticed the blush on her face and rinsed her face with cold water.

As soon as she was done, she ignored Anthony and left directly. She pressed her hand against her chest outside the room, feeling like her heart was about to leap out of her chest.

The tension between her and Anthony was increasing. From the cold exchange, she had warned him not to touch her at first, before the two kissed and had even slept in the same bed.

“Where have you been?” Lucia asked.

“I was overseas.”

“So nothing happened, and you just left. Are you back with Anthony?” Lucia questioned worriedly.

Anne knew that Lucia was not concerned for her safety and asked, “What are you trying to say?”

“I would be upset if you come back to get back together with Anthony. In your absence for the past two years, I’ve been by Anthony’s side, and many people know me as his woman. I’ve fallen deeply in love with him, so will you accept this, Anne?” Lucia said gloomily.

Though Anne had guessed as much when Lucia addressed Anthony by his first name, she was still shocked to find out that Lucia was seeing Anthony.

“You two are... together?” Anne muttered bitterly, her chest hurting as though her heart had been

She had not expected Anthony to be with Lucia, a friend of hers, and even if he was dating her friend, Anne had no part in questioning him as she never meant anything to him. She dialed out her phone.

"Hm? What is it? Are you?"

Chapter 1479

Oliver tensed at the sudden change in Anthony's mood. He had entered the office to report the progress of the operation and had fallen silent after the phone call.

It did not take Oliver much time to figure out who had called. Since Anthony mentioned the ticket, Oliver assumed that Anne was leaving.

"Get a flight ticket," Anthony commanded coldly without an expression.

"Of course. I will get to it right away." Oliver took out his phone and completed the purchase within a minute. "Should I have this sent to Mrs. Marwood?"

"Send it to me." Anthony picked up his jacket and left the office.

"Yes, sir." Oliver knew where Anthony was headed without having to ask.

Anne did not know if Anthony was going to send her off and returned to the mansion, only to be stunned by the sight of the black Rolls Royce parked outside the mansion as soon as she got out of the taxi. When she saw Anthony walking out, her heart sank in bitterness.

After meeting Lucia and was slightly disgusted.

Anne jolted and turned to gape at the man standing behind her. "Are you going, too?"

"I want to see you board the flight." Anthony studied her face stubbornly.

Anne glanced at the flight ticket in Anthony's hand darkly, realizing that he had bought a ticket just so that he could enter the lounge.

'Is this really necessary? I hope he is telling the truth,' she thought.

Anne sat down and glanced at the time on her phone, relieved that her flight was scheduled to take off within half an hour and she would not have to see Anthony once she boarded.

Anthony sat down next to her. "Do you really hate seeing me that much?"

Anne agreed in her mind but turned to look at the planes outside the glass windows before saying, "You are overthinking."
