Chapter 1481

Anne lowered her gaze as Anthony's scent overwhelmed her, occupying her mind. Her mind fell into chaos, but she knew that she could not stay, nor could she allow Anthony to think that she would return to him.

Just then, the airport announced that boarding had started and Anne sobered, before shoving Anthony aside. "I'm going." She walked past him and since there was no need for VIPs to get in line, she went onboard straightaway.

As she passed the security check, she could sense Anthony's eyes on her, but she refused to look back.

Anthony did not come aboard and she sat blankly by the window, feeling devastated, yet not knowing why.

She had no future with Anthony and though she thought that they stood a chance before, the thought vanished as soon as she learnt about Lucia.

She could not be certain that Anthony was not following her until the flight took off and she closed her eyes, feeling both relieved and depressed at the same time.

Anne called Yuri as “Any concerns, Yuri?” Anne asked.

Yuri chuckled and shook her head as she grabbed Anne’s hand. “I just don’t want to cause you any trouble.”

“I am the one who has been causing you trouble. Besides, I don’t consider taking care of you a problem at all,” Anne said sincerely.

It was the truth.

Without Yuri’s help, she would have been dead on the island long ago and she would never have the chance to see her children again, or to learn how devastated her triplets had been during the time she was gone.

“Okay.” Yuri’s heart was filled with hope and warmth and she agreed to follow Anne anywhere.

The sky slowly began to turn dark and unlike cities, darkness fell over the town, providing the best environment for one to hide themselves.

"If you want to get out alive, you are going to take one last mission," the man said.

Yuri and Anne shot one another a hopeful look.

"Is it really going to be the last mission?" Yuri asked.

"I said what I said," the man responded.

"Who are we killing?" Anne asked.

"Anthony Marwood of Luton."

Anne jolted in shock at the name.

"Alright, send us the details. We will complete the rest," Yuri said.

When Yuri heard the voice, she shot Anne a strange look and Anne stood dazedly, seeming more confused than Yuri as she stepped toward the door.

Yuri scowled as facing the door would be dangerous and darted up to pull Anne to the side.

Anne stood by the door and asked, "...Anthony?"

"Yeah."

Anne eased slightly, but her mind was instantly filled with anger when she pulled the door open.

The man stood within darkness as he stared into Anne's eyes. He lifted an eyebrow and asked, "Aren't you going to invite me in?"

Anne wanted to show her rage and contempt for Anthony, hoping that would drive him away or to retort with the same attitude at the very least, but Anthony had exceeded her expectation and remained extremely gentle.

Tears welled in Anne's eyes, not wanting to show her weakness in front of Anthony, she turned her back at him. "I'm doing fine as long as you stay away from me. I'm begging you, Anthony, go back to Luton, okay?" Anne tried her best to remain a leveled voice.

Anthony tensed and narrowed his eyes at the pain in his chest, before responding in a hoarse voice, "I know I'm doing this wrong, but I'm trying. Don't worry. I won't bother you. Get some rest." He then turned to leave.

The sound of the door closing struck Anne's heart like lightning, bringing her in tears as she closed her eyes in despair.

She could stop herself from loving Anthony and accept that he was seeing another woman, but she could not let anything happen to him.

In the next instant, she opened her eyes and ran for the door to find Anthony standing by the road all alone.

It was the same number as the man from Tianya.

"Why is he calling?" She thought, 'Have they noticed that Anthony is here?'

Noticing the odd look on Anne's face, Anthony asked, "What's wrong?"

"It's nothing. This is probably from Yuri. I need to take this." Anne entered the bathroom, shutting the door tightly behind her, before answering the call. "Hello?"

“Anthony Marwood is here, right? When are you doing it?” The altered man’s voice came through the line.

The flight could not take off, and she knew that stalling any further would alarm Anthony..

Anthony was far too sharp of a man and one would require to be a genius to fool him.

Anne knew that she might not have the ability to fool Anthony, but she needed to try anyway because she could not give up on Yuri.

The people in Tianya showed no mercy when it came to killing.

“I want to sleep in the room. Can you come with me?” She asked calmly.

Without a word, Anthony picked her off the ground and she instinctively held onto his shoulders, then their eyes met, she looked away, worried that he would notice her true intention and worried that Anthony might unleash the beast.

Anne arrived at a cruise ship as per the instruction she was given with a wooden chest in hand that was dripping blood along the way.

She arrived at the main hall where there was not a soul. The ceiling was painted blue and she felt so small and alone.

Anne looked around, not finding anyone suspicious, but she knew that the people from Tianya were lurking in the dark.

“You arrived sooner than I expected.” A man appeared on the second floor, wearing the same mask as the head of Tianya.

Anne stilled and lifted the chest in her hand. “Here’s Anthony Marwood’s head. Where is Yuri?”

All the ways had been blocked and the only way out was to jump from the second floor, but with Anthony and Anne waiting on the first floor, there was no way that the man could escape.

Anne could not be bothered with the man and wanted to rush to Yuri’s side.

Anthony wrapped his arm around Anne’s waist tightly and said, “Don’t worry. Someone is going to get her to the hospital.”

Yuri ascended toward the ceiling, trembling as the slightest movement caused tremendous pain.

Luckily, they were all alive.

Shielded by Anthony, Anne could not believe that they survived. She finally relaxed when someone rescued Yuri on the highest floor and muttered,
