He did not let go for a while and Anne kept her eyes closed as she gasped for air. "You..."

He stared at her face, as though he could never get tired of looking at her. He caressed her rosy cheek and said, "I won't do anything. I just want to kiss you."

Anne felt defeated as he said that every single time and always ended up getting exactly what he wanted. However, her will to resist was no longer as strong.

"Thank you. If it wasn't for you, I wouldn't have been able to rescue Yuri."

"That's it? Hm?" He narrowed his eyes dangerously as he stared into her soul.

She shivered, knowing exactly what Anthony wanted.

It was nothing, since they had slept together countless times before, but her mind drifted to the thought of Lucia.

Yuri had died a painful death and Anne broke down in tears at the sight.

Anthony carried her outside and ordered his men to look into it as they exited the hospital.

Tears were still streaming down Anne's cheeks when they went into the car.

Anthony pulled her closer and promised, "I'll look into this."

She pulled away. "It has to be the people from Tianya who did it. It has to be! They aren't human! They can just murder the assassins they trained without hesitation!"

The triplets walked out of school and spotted Anne waiting by the car. They hurried over, shouting in unison, "Mama!"

Anne could not hold all three of them at once and could only crouch to wrap her arms around their bodies.

"When did you come back, Mama?"

"You didn't tell us that you were leaving. We were worried."

"It's good that you came home."

"I went to handle something and came home once that's done," Anne explained.

"Oh... will you leave again?" Chloe asked.

Tommy did not stay for long after Anthony had decided to chase him out.

Meanwhile, the triplets were working on their homework in the study room while Anne kept them company.

Anthony insisted on sitting in the same chair as Anne and when she tried to get up, he wrapped his arm around her to keep her from escaping.

The heat of his skin radiated through their joined skins, burning into her soul.

She glared at him to remind him that they were in the presence of their children.

Anne stayed with the triplets at night to watch over them as they continued working on their homework.
She did not need to offer guidance in anything and it was in general rather relaxing.
Anne sat quietly, relishing the peaceful moment with her children.
Since Anthony had left the country for a time, he was occupied with all the piled-up work. Still, he did not head to the office and insisted on working in the study room.
Anne’s mind drifted away as she considered what might happen at night.
‘Are we sleeping in separate rooms, or... She thought, her heart racing.
Anthony would have never let her out of the study room earlier if dinner was not ready, which meant Anthony would have no reason to let her go later at night.

"Umph..." Anne was taken back to the master bedroom and he immediately pinned her against the sofa, while setting her phone down on the table and staring at the nervous look on her face.

"Let's continue what we were talking about," he muttered hoarsely.

Anne's mind fell into chaos, but knew exactly what he was referring to. However, it was hard to think of anything but the man in front of her.

"I already told you..."

"I'm not happy with your answer." Anthony bent down until his face was close enough for his breath to caress the skin on her cheek.

Anne thought about it. "If we go together, they are definitely going to be alarmed. We can't give him the chance to be prepared, or Lucia will be in danger. Let me give him a call and see what he says. We can decide what to do after that." She grabbed the phone and dialed the number from earlier.

"Anthony isn't here anymore. Just tell me what you want. Why do you have Lucia?" Anne cut to the chase.

Though she knew that she was likely speaking to the masked man, she could not be certain if he had captured Lucia himself or merely had his subordinates do it.

"Shouldn't you know what I want by now? I thought I was clear."

"He is the father of my children. I can't kill him. Can you just spare me and give me another target to kill instead?"

"If you won't do it, someone else will. Tianya will never stop until our targets fall dead."

"I will come in exchange for Lucia. How is that?" Anne asked.

Anthony tensed. He refused to allow Anne to risk her own life and the only feasible solution was to destroy Tianya completely.

"Put a tracker on me and keep a bodyguard nearby to watch over me. Once I'm gone, your need to wreak havoc looking for me," Anne said, "let them know that you are unaware of my plan. Even if you manage to destroy the organization, you still have to find the person behind it."

"No!" Anthony roared coldly.

"Anthony, you are underestimating me. I managed to survive that island and I'm an excellent assassin. For the kids' sake and for a better life, we need to take certain risks..."

"This is non-negotiable." He walked over to the window in rage, not intending to consider Anne's plan at all.

Anne meant most to him, not even the triplets were as important to him, so Lucia was far beyond his concern.

Soon, Anne noticed something poking at her and flushed.

"Don't move..." He muttered hoarsely.

Ever since Anne left, he had been alone and could easily lose control of his restraints.

Anne tensed and mumbled, "You pervert..."

Anthony chuckled and pulled her even closer until their lips were almost touching. "How so? I want you even if I'm just looking at you, not to mention having you in my arms like this," he narrowed his eyes dangerously.

Anne did not exit through the front door to avoid suspicion from Hayden or the bodyguards. Fortunately, she knew the layout of the Royal mansion and knew exactly what she needed to do to slip away without being noticed.

She could naturally escape even if they realized that she had knocked Anthony out of consciousness, but she did not want to fight Anthony's men.

She left the Royal Mansion with ease and caught a taxi to head toward the place the masked man mentioned.

She found the locker and instructed the staff to open it. She waited nervously, wondering if it would truly be a phone.

As the locker was opened, she found an old phone laying inside, which started ringing as soon as she picked it up.

Anne glanced around and saw no one but customers in the mall, but she knew that she was being watched, or she would not have received the call at this precise moment.

"Hello?"
