Chapter 239

Dr. Brown said nothing.

As a doctor, she naturally knew the side effects of the pills.

After the inspection, no problems were found, so Dr. Brown left. Anne wanted to send her to the door but was rejected.

Hearing the door closing, Anne lay down again, staring at the ceiling in a daze.

She was certainly not pregnant.

She suddenly felt a chill down her back.

Anne hurriedly turned her face and saw Anthony's tall figure beside her bed, looking at her condescendingly.

Anne sat up and looked at him defensively. "You didn't need to call Dr. Brown... I'm fine" She was not grateful.

He was the one who injured her in the first place.

Anthony's indifferent expression made it difficult to see what he was thinking. His figure approached, and he pinched Anne's chin.

He looked down at her dangerously. "Don't hurt yourself. Otherwise, how will I use you next time? Huh?"

Anne dared not move at all.

She was terrified.

Fortunately, after Anthony finished speaking, he let go of her and left the room.

He just wanted to torture her mentally.

She heard the door closing outside.
