

Chapter 265

She would have to wait until the next day to be discharged.

After that, she called the nanny, saying that she worked overtime and could not go home on time.

She did not want the kids to worry.

After hanging up, the door opened unexpectedly.

Bianca appeared condescendingly. "I thought it was very serious, but it seems that you are just fine."

"You seem disappointed?" Anne ignored her and played on her phone.

"Disappointed? Don't you forget, I was kind enough to let my driver send you to the hospital."

"Were you touched by yourself?" Anne looked at her. "Planted seafood in my lunch and then pretended to get your driver to send me when you actually intended to make sure I die along the way. If Tommy did not appear on time, your wish would have been fulfilled."

Bianca snickered. She did not deny it. Her eyes only had the anger of defeat. "You could get away this time, but not every time. This will be your consequence for staying in Luton!"

"I am just thinking if Anthony knew about your true colors, what would he think?" Anne said casually.

"Then do you think he would believe me or believe the daughter of a mistress?" Bianca poised like a victor and strutted away in her high heels shoes.

Anne was absolutely disgusted by her