Chapter 271

Anthony's expression darkened. "Didn't you lie here so that someone would come to touch you?"

She widened her eyes in disbelief as she wondered if the man before her was mentally ill. "I was just taking a break."

She could tell that Anthony had had quite a few to drink as well, but then again, it was only natural for one to drink when they were at a bar.

"Who's Charlie?" He questioned darkly, "Another guy?"

Her heart almost stopped when she heard Anthony mentioning Charlie's name, terrified that she might have let it slip in her sleep.

"Um..."

Anne was about to explain when Vander walked over to them and said, "You are here, too, Mr Murwood? What a coincidence. Our department is having a gathering here as well."

He returned to his room and tossed her onto the couch before staring down at her while she slept.

Her face was flushed under the effect of the alcohol, which made her look both innocent and seductive at the same time.

Her collar had loosened from moving around along the way, and he could see the flushed skin under.

Anne was going to sleep, but he commanded coldly, "You reek of liquor. Go take a shower."

Unfortunately for him, even a knife against her neck would not stimulate a reaction from her.

Anne simply twitched and trembled, so he tried to pull her up, and she buried her deeper into the blanket.

He grabbed her by the jaw and repeated, "I'll say this again. Go take a shower."

"No... Go away. I want to sleep..." She shoved his hand away and tried to go back to sleep.

The next instant, she froze at the sound of knocking on the door and wondered for a moment if it was one of her children.

"Go open the door," he commanded rudely.

Anne hesitated because she had no clothes on her at all, and if she were to grab her clothes, she would have to walk around naked in front of Anthony.

"Is there a point in hiding?" he asked before snatching the blanket away.

"Ah'!" She screamed while fumbling to cover herself.

"Shut up!"

She put on her clothes while blushing and cursed at him in her mind over and over again as she went to open the door.

Anthony returned to the corridor with a dark expression and a little handprint on his trousers.

He did not quite know why he had decided to come to the sixth floor to see the children.

Was it because of what Anne said?

His mood worsened at the thought.

Anne dared not go up to the sixth floor until she saw Anthony's car leaving.

She closed the apartment door behind her as soon as she went inside, and when she saw her children running toward her, she immediately moved away. "No, wait. My clothes will get dirty..."

"Mama, that...that guy came to look for us!" Charlie said.

"Is he with Mama?" Chloe asked.

"Was he with you last night, Mama?" Chris asked curiously.

Anne felt as though her children had seen right through her. "No, he just happens to be in the area..."

"You can call whatever you want with me. I remember everything that you've gone through. You are my daughter, and I won't let anyone bully you. You can tell me anything, and I will help you, no matter what," Sarah said gently.

Anne flipped through the menu hesitantly and said, "...didn't go through that much. It's all in the past now."

Sarah was excited. "Yeah. It's all in the past now!"

The two of them did not need much food, but Sarah would have ordered a table full of dishes if Anne was not there to stop her.

"I'm so full." Sarah rubbed at her belly. "You take your time. I will go use the bathroom."

There was some distance to the bathroom, and one would have to walk through the VIP area. Just as she was making a turn, Sarah heard a voice.

"Oh, what a coincidence that you are here as well."

Sarah glanced over and saw the world-famous pianist, Bianca.

Her uplifted mood was instantly ruined, and she turned to leave, wanting to stay away from Bianca and avoid Anthony, who might be here with Bianca at this very moment.

She still remembered what had happened the time before, and Sarah did not want to cause Anne any more trouble.

Bianca stood still and clenched her fists until her nails were stabbing into her palms. The jealousy she felt did not ease until she saw the pool of blood on the ground.

'Anne Vallois, you are no match for me!' she thought.

Meanwhile, Anthony stormed off with Anne in his arms, and even the driver struggled to react to how terrifying his presence was.

"The hospital!" Anthony commanded.

The driver immediately started the engine and took off steadily to the highway. Tension continued to rise inside the car, along with a suffocating scent of blood that filled the air. Anne grunted in pain in Anthony's arms and quivered uncontrollably.

He grabbed her by the chin and reminded her with a low voice, " Take deep breaths..."

She followed the command instinctively, but the pain remained, and even her lips were pale.

However, she was still as pale as a ghost, and there was a dull pain in her stomach.

When Anthony kicked her in the stomach, she felt like she had been crushed by a car and every single of her internal organs took the impact. Anne knew that she would not be bleeding so much if she was alright, and judging from the look on Sarah's face, she realized her condition was more severe than she had imagined.

Nervous, she asked, "I... What happened? What did the doctor say? Did he break my ribs or something?"

"No..." Sarah's eyes reddened. "You lost your baby..."

Anne could not wrap her head around Sarah's words and thought to herself, 'What does she mean? Is this about the abortion I had before? Why do I feel like that's

It would be morally wrong for one to hide about infertility in a marriage.

"I know. I will try to bring it up to her when she's calmed down. By the way, don't let anyone else find out about this, okay? I don't want her to face all the comments from others," Sarah said.
