Chapter 501

"Sometimes, we can't just arrest anyone you suspect to be the culprit," the police officer explained with resignation. "Sigh. Sometimes, you have to know when to call it quits."

The officer left and Anne remained frozen in place.

If she was only having doubts before, what the police said had confirmed that someone powerful in Luton had interfered with the investigation.

She could not be sure if it was Anthony, as Bianca was already empowered to do a lot of things as his fiancée.

Anthony's helicopter did not turn back, so she went back to Luton on it again.

The helicopter stopped on the top floor of the Archduke Group and she went into the elevator to get to Anthony's office.

She almost bumped into Oliver along the way and though Oliver knew that Anne was traveling on Anthony's helicopter, he immediately went to stop her when he noticed that she was heading for Anthony's office. "Hang on, Ms. Vallois..."

One could not change their position that had been decided for over a decade.

Bianca got up and walked toward Anne, before apologizing, "Anne, I apologize for what my mom did, but your mom isn't exactly innocent either, is she? Regardless, she was the one who started this. You know that your brother-in-law hates homewreckers the most, but your mom simply won't stop being one. Do you know how heartbroken I was when I found out that Dad has visited Santa Nila multiple times? You cant understand."

Anne glared at her, knowing that Bianca was hinting that she could not understand because she was a homewrecker as well.

"After that, Dad was so allured that he wanted to divorce my mom. My mom lost her mind," Bianca continued, "your mom is still alive now, so let's just set this aside."

"After all you've said, I suppose it would be rude of me to refuse, right?" Anne said angrily. "My mom deserved it, after all. Right?"

"Anne, you need to keep your temper in check. In the end, this is a family affair. It's not good for the family for this sort of thing to become public knowledge. Do you want others to know that this all started because your mom seduced a married man? You don't want that to happen, do you?" Bianca faced her back at Anthony and sneered smugly at Anne.

Yet he had lectured her for Sarah's sake.

Sarah was no one but a homewrecker and he could not possibly think that what Sarah did was right.

Bianca also knew that Anne was not traveling on Anthony's helicopter for the first time, or she would not be able to return so soon.

'Damn you, Anne. You said you won't get involved with Anthony and you've lied to me to get fifty thousand out of me! Why isn't Sarah dead? She should have been dead!' Bianca thought.

She went home and Dorothy came down the stairs to welcome her. "Your dad is taking a nap, when did you come here at this time? Did someone cross you?"

"That Anne Vallois! Do you know how she got back to Santa Nila? She was traveling back and forth with Anthony's helicopter! Was she trying to show off how special their relationship was to me? Ahhh!!!" Bianca screamed hysterically and threw her purse onto the ground.

"Don't shout. Your dad is sleeping. Don't wake him up."

"He won't do it! I'm here!" Bianca said.

Nigel got dressed, went downstairs, passed through the living room, and was about to leave.

"Where are you going?" Dorothy asked anxiously.

Nigel did not answer her, nor did he stop walking. Soon, they heard the sound of the car engine.

"Is he going to find Sarah? Is he..." Dorothy was about to run outside, but Bianca stopped her.

"Don't go!"

"Why can't I? He's going to leave US..." Dorothy burst into tears in desperation.

"Dad is furious. Do you think you can stop him? All he thinks about right now is Sarah, the victim!" Bianca's gaze was ruthless. "No matter what, I won't let Dad divorce you!"

Dorothy was consoled when she heard that. "Bianca, it's all thanks to you. Otherwise, your dad won't want me anymore."

If that was the case, was Anne supposed to keep quiet about Dorothy's actions? If she said it, Nigel would be caught in a difficult situation.

Besides, the matter could not be fixed, right?

"Dad, are you going to get a divorce?" Anne was curious.

"...I don't know..." Nigel did not expect that Bianca would have such a big reaction.

When Anne heard his answer, she knew there was little hope for it. Then, she looked at the unconscious Sarah and mocked her own thoughts...they should not be so greedy.

'Dad, if you can't get a divorce, you have to set a clear boundary with Mom. Otherwise, others will have the wrong idea...'

Her father belonged to both sides, but her mother was hers alone.

Nigel was stunned and felt a little ashamed. "I know what to do. Let's just wait for your mom to wake up."

"No. Dad, you don't need to be here. I can take care of Mom," Anne replied.

Anne was stunned, and she could not tell whether Tommy was being serious or not. Then, she pushed his hand away, saying, "You're so childish."

Soon after, Anne got up and said, "I'm going back to the ward. You can do whatever you want."

Then, she left.

Tommy watched as Anne left in a bad mood, but he did not know why he felt that way.

Anne did not expect Tommy to come again the next day, and he even brought supplements and fruits, raising Nigel's suspicion.

"Hello, Mr. Faye. I happened to be in Santa Nila for business, so I stopped by to visit. How's Madam Vallois doing now?" Tommy greeted Nigel.

Nigel glanced at Anne, who was glaring at Tommy, and said, "She's still unconscious, so we need to wait."

"She'll surely wake up," Tommy said.

Anne pulled Tommy over. "Come out!" When they were out, she asked, ' What are you doing?"

Anne only returned to the hospital at almost two in the afternoon. She was annoyed, and her feet were hurting from all the walking. If it were not because Tommy had helped her before, Anne would already ignore him.

However, it was getting harder for Anne to understand Tommy. Why was he constantly pestering her? He was acting the same as when they were young!

Anne found Nigel alone in the ward.

"Dad, have you eaten?"

"Yes." Nigel glanced back. "Has Tommy left?"

"Yes. I think he's back."

"Are you close with Tommy?" Nigel was confused about their relationship.

'I used to stay with the Marwood family, so I'm quite close with him.'

"None of the Marwood family members, including Tommy, attended Bianca's engagement party. So his relationship with Anthony isn't that good, right?"

Anne said, "I don't know, but Tommy still addresses Anthony as 'bro' or 'brother' whenever they meet. I've also seen them in a bar before, so their relationship isn't bad. After all, Anthony hates Ron, and the others are incidental."

Nigel rushed back to the ward, took out his phone, and dialed Anthony's number with his trembling hand.

"Is your helicopter still there? Can you locate it? A helicopter just crashed here. Can you check if it's yours?"

Anthony's black eyes narrowed slightly, and without saying a word, he hung up the phone and contacted the helicopter. However, he could not reach the helicopter or locate it.

Oliver, who was standing in front of Anthony to report on his work, saw that Anthony's face was terrifyingly gloomy. He was about to ask about the situation when Anthony stood up suddenly and shouted, "Let's go to Santa Nila now!"

The area where the accident happened was cordoned off, and only the rescuers who salvaged the helicopter's wreckage were left in the usually crowded wharf.

It could be seen at a glance that the few pieces of salvaged wreckage belonged to Anthony's private helicopter.

Nigel could not believe that the daughter he had just met...he simply could not believe it...

Nigel returned to the ward and sat beside Sarah's bed. "Sarah, I-I'm so sorry. I didn't take good care of Anne. Anne's helicopter crashed...she'll survive, right? You're still in a coma, so how can she be at ease?"

Nigel held Sarah's hands. "She'll be fine. Anthony said they'll find her..."

He did not dare to imagine what Anne would look like when they found her

Even after a night of salvage, the helicopter's wreckage was not completely recovered, and only larger pieces were found. However, they wanted to find the person, not the wreckage.

Nevertheless, they understood that it would be challenging to find her as the water flowing under the sea was rapid.

Since Anthony was watching over the search, none of the leaders of Santa Nila dared to sleep or even take a nap.

Oliver stared at the progress of the rescue. He knew that Anthony had slept all night, but he did not dare to persuade him to take a rest.

Nigel was so sad that he felt powerless and sat on the chair next to him. ' The...the helicopter that Anne was in crashed.'

Dorothy was shocked. "Her helicopter crashed? Was she found?"

"It crashed into the sea, and no one has been found so far." Nigel lowered his head. The pain was simply unbearable.

Dorothy suppressed the joy in her heart. If Anne's helicopter crashed into the sea, was there a chance for her to survive?

Immediately after, Dorothy started putting on an act, pretending to be concerned and comforting Nigel, "Don't be so pessimistic. Maybe they jumped off before the crash. If that's the case, they'll definitely survive."

'I thought so too, but I asked the rescuers privately, and they said the survival rate was almost nonexistent.'" Nigel seemed to have aged a lot overnight.

"Don't worry. Anne is a lucky girl. She'll definitely survive this."

Even though Dorothy said that, she was secretly happy. Anne managed to dodge the bullet before, but it was impossible for her to survive this time unless she could fly.
