She desperately wanted to just strangle the three of them to death!

She did not believe that she had no way to make them go away!

Bianca stood up with an arrogant expression. "Then just take your time and wait. I'll see if you can wait for her to return!"

Upon saying that, she left.

As soon as Bianca left, the triplets hurriedly asked the nanny.

"I want to look for Mama! Mama certainly will be fine!" Chloe pouted and tears were welling in her eyes.

"She certainly is lying to us! Because she is a bad woman!" Charlie did not believe what she had said.

"Can we give Mama a video call?" asked Chris.

The nanny hurriedly comforted them. "Yes, things are not like what that woman had said. Your mother is just away for business. Didn't she previously ask you to stay at home and behave? When she has more time, she will give you a call."

The triplets' eyes were huge and they were adorably doubtful.

Especially if Nigel found out about it, he might ask her to reconsider her marriage with Anthony again!

What a joke! She must be Anthony's wife! She was the only one with that qualification!

The children must disappear. There was no way that she would cancel the marriage!

"Why aren't you saying anything? What exactly is the matter? Don't scare me!"

Bianca was very annoyed. "It's nothing. It's just work-related matters!"

"You're not the wife of the King of Luton, Anthony. Who would dare to make things hard for you? Flaunt your status and see if they still dare to utter any nonsense!" said Dorothy.

"I'm going upstairs and going to bed." Bianca got up.

"Are you not going to the Royal Mansion? I remember that you're ovulating these two days, right?"

Bianca got even more irritated when she heard that. She returned to her room and slammed the door behind her with great force.

Dorothy did not understand what was going on.

Anne looked at Anthony's indifferent face, which was looking down at her from above, and she truly could not see how that face has got anything to do with good news.

"Your mother...has woken up."

Anne was stunned. Her mother had woken up?

"Really? Is it true?" She was very excited. "When did she wake up?"

Two days ago."

Anne felt much better.

Her mother has woken up. That was great!

No wonder Anthony's expression did not look too good.

This was also the first time she had heard about a matter related to her mother that came out of Anthony's lips.

"Are you happy? Hmm?" Anthony's hand was still lingering on her neck and made that patch of skin flush a little. "How supple."

"It's true..." Nigel got more and more strained each time he explained to her.

Sarah absolutely did not believe him at all.

The look on Nigel's face had already shown the severity of the matter.

She had already woken up for so many days, yet there was no news from Anne at all. She could no longer stay in bed.

If the doctor had not refused her to be discharged and if Nigel had not stopped her, she would have been long gone.

"Don't get mad. You have just gotten better. You need to rest. When Anne returns and sees that you've woken up, she certainly will be very happy."

Sarah looked straight at him until Nigel turned his face away.

She walked forward and asked, "Nigel, can you just tell me what exactly happened to Anne? Why do you want to let me be on edge like this? If you don't tell me, I'm afraid I might faint again."

Nigel knew that he could no longer hide it anymore, so he made a difficult decision. Just as he was about to tell her the truth, Sarah's phone, which was thrown on the bed, rang.

Sarah suddenly became happy. "Could it be Anne? It must be Anne..." After she picked up her phone, she saw that it was an unfamiliar number.

However, she still answered the call in a hurry, "Who's this?"

Anthony's gaze became dangerous. "Do you need to keep the number for someone?"

"...That's not it. It's just that my parents didn't know."

"Just tell them and that'll do."

Anne did not make any other requests anymore.

She felt that Anthony was covered in feathers all over and she simply had no clue when they would be ruffled by her.

After she was done with the call, Anne leaned against the headboard and fell asleep very soon.

Anthony saw that she had fallen asleep so deliberately raised the bed a little to let her sleep comfortably.

After all, the mishap happened to her while she was in his helicopter, so there was nothing strange for him to treat her a little better.

When Anne woke up, Anthony was still around. He was handling his business matters on the couch next to her.

She simply did not know when Anthony would leave. With him around, she has no way to give her children a call.

What if she were to send a text, then the nanny called her after learning about what happened, but Anthony was still around?

Therefore, since she had woken up from the coma, should she not notify Dorothy immediately and let herself have some fun?

'Who's this?' Dorothy immediately answered the call without even looking at the number.

'Hey, you've called me so often, but you don't even know my number?' Sarah reminded and mocked her.

Dorothy was so shocked that she got up from the couch. "Are you...are you Sarah? You've woken up?"

'That's right. How happy, right? That's why I called you immediately to tell you this piece of good news.' Sarah was upset two days ago because of the matter related to Anne and she did not even think of this.

Dorothy was so pissed that she was breathing heavily and her gaze was sharp. "You really just won't go away!"

'That shows that I'm lucky enough to not get hurt. Don't be too jealous. Be careful that your heart might explode and you'll die." Sarah was in an extremely good mood. "That's all I'm going to say to you. Nigel has gone out to buy dinner for me and is returning soon. He doesn't like it when I call you."

'What are you so smug about? Even if you've woken up, can you let Anne come back to the land of the living?" Dorothy refused to be the weaker one, so she exhausted all the ways to provoke Sarah and make her faint again.

'What do you mean?"

Nigel was thinking of the same thing, but for the time being, there seemed to be no way to resolve it.

"Nigel, if this were to go on, Anthony would cause Anne to die one day!" Sarah just could not calm down when she heard that Anne and Anthony were involved with each other.

That was no man. He was the devil!

"Anthony has already become much more restrained than before. At the very least, he's able to listen to what I say now." Nigel thought that he held a much higher position than Ron. "Also, you can't blame Anthony this time. In fact, when you were in a coma, Anne was practically taking care of you the whole time. She only got into the accident two days before you woke up. She only met the accident when she was returning in Anthony's helicopter."

"What? Anne came to Santa Nila? She had been taking care of me?" Sarah was shocked. "Wasn't Anne not allowed to leave Luton? No, he certainly had some goal in mind. Nigel, you don't know Anthony. He is revengeful, unpredictable, heartless, and vicious. He even killed his own grandpa! Up until this point, Ron can't even leave the cemetery. He has to stay by Elder Marwood's grave to God knows when!"

Nigel did not dare to believe it. "How could that be possible? That's his own grandpa!"

"That's why I said it's impossible for him to be so kind! He could lay a hand on his own family, let alone people who are not related to him by blood. Anthony had always felt that I was the one who ruined his parents' marriage and caused Julie to jump off the building. In the end, Anne found out that it was Elder Marwood who pushed her off, and Ron was right there but he didn't stop him. In less than two days since the truth was revealed. Elder Marwood died mysteriously. It was said that he died from a severe illness, but do you believe that?"

Nigel was speechless. He had no idea about this matter at all.

The bodyguards dutifully stood in front of her door and refused to let her enter.

'Can't you hear what I said? Are you guys deaf? Do you believe that I'll call the police!' Sarah threatened them, but they remained motionless. She knew that this trick would not work, so she used her might and main to rush forward. "Let me in! Let me go in!"

Anne, who was leaning against the headboard and was about to doze off, was woken up by the commotion outside. Was that not her mother's voice?

Why would her mother be here?

Anne wanted to move, but she could not even do any big movements, let alone get out of bed.

The argument outside got more and more aggressive. Without a choice, Anne was afraid that Sarah would get hurt so she grabbed the cup on the table and smashed it on the ground as hard as she could.

That loud smash stunned Sarah and the bodyguards outside.

Sarah took the chance and ran into the ward.

"You must leave! Anthony will kill you sooner or later!"

"Actually, the incident this time is not caused by him," said Anne.

Sarah put the clothes in her hands down and rushed to the bed. "If he hadn't gotten me to this godforsaken place, would I have met with a car accident? If I hadn't been in a car accident, would you need to take the helicopter to come and see me? If you didn't need to board the helicopter, would this happen to you? Aren't all these caused by him?"

Anne was at a loss for words.

Anthony was indeed the culprit.

If it were not for him, she and her mother would not have ended up in this current state.

However, all of the mishaps in their lives have always been caused by Anthony. They absolutely did not know how to deal with him at all.

Without even looking at the 'outsider's' expression, Anne already knew how terrifyingly suffocating it was.

To Anthony, she was his private property, so how could he tolerate someone else defining him as an outsider?

However, as she saw her mother working so hard, she did not know if she should also go all out and risk it all.

She truly was afraid that Anthony would do something inhumane though...

As soon as Nigel entered the ward, he was stunned by the stand-off situation that could not be easily resolved. When he saw the knife in Sarah's hand, he immediately went up to her and snatched the knife away. ' Sarah, what are you doing? Put the knife down!"

He then threw the knife that he snatched away from her into the trash can.

Sarah burst out crying with a grievance, "Am I wrong? I just wanted to take Anne away..."

Nigel looked at Anne, whose face was pale, and asked with concern, " Anne, how are you?"

'I'm fine..."

Nigel looked at Anthony with a serious expression. "Anthony, they are a pair of mother and daughter, after all. It's already hard enough for them to be living in two separate places. At the moment, one has just recovered while the other has just escaped from death by the skin of her teeth. Give them some time, alright?"

Even after he said that, Anthony's expression did not change for the better and his black eyes were still filled with hostility. "Mr. Faye, other things can be negotiable for me, but this, it's a no."
