Chapter 581

Bianca came out of the bathroom and noticed that the children were gone, and when she turned to look around, she found the children surrounding the piano.

She had thought that they wanted to play, but soon realized that Chloe was drawing on the piano.

She widened her eyes in rage and darted over to pull Chloe away. "What are you doing?!"

Chloe stumbled and fell onto the floor, before bursting into tears.

Chris and Charlie hurried over to help Chloe up. When he saw how upset his sister was, Charlie took his plastic knife and poked at Bianca's thigh.

"Ah!" Bianca took a step back. "Do that again and I'm going to get angry."

"I'm not afraid of you! You bullied my little sister!"

The children were not like Anne, and Anthony refused to let her believe that she could do as she pleased simply because she was the mother of his children.

Chloe tossed her spoon to the side. "I don't want to eat anymore!"

"It doesn't taste good?" Anthony asked.

"I'm not in the mood!" She pouted and puffed her face like a tiny pufferfish.

Though Chloe looked exactly like her mother, she was far more adorable, so Anthony did not get frustrated with her. Just as he was about to say something, the servant walked in and said, "Mr. Marwood, Mr. Tommy is here."

Tommy came in at the perfect timing and glanced at the people inside the dining room with a gentle expression. "What a coincidence. I was just wondering what I should have for dinner. Grab me a plate, too."

Hayden looked at Anthony and did not dare to move when he noticed that Anthony did not respond.

Tommy sat down and scanned the triplets, before stopping to stare at Chloe. "Why aren't you eating? Your spoon is all the way over there."

'What should I do to make you happy?'" Anthony asked patiently.

Chloe looked up. 'Grandma said Mama will come visit US tomorrow. Papa, will Mama come? Is Mama abandoning US...?' She sobbed.

Anthony set the spoon down and tensed in frustration when he noticed his sons staring at him as well.

Just then, his phone rang and Anthony took it out of his pocket. "I need to take this call."

He set Chloe down to his seat and walked outside to the living room. ■' What is it, Mr. Faye?"

"She just doesn't want to talk because she's not feeling well. She's given birth to three kids, after all. Ordinary people would not be able to withstand that," Dorothy said sarcastically.

Nigel glared at her warningly.

"Did I say anything wrong?" Dorothy refused to stop.

Reluctant to tolerate Bianca and Dorothy, Sarah retorted while imitating Dorothy's tone, "Yeah. It's something that my Anne has to endure. After all, Bianca couldn't even give birth to one."

"What did you just say?" Dorothy's expression darkened.

'What did I say? I forgot.' Sarah turned to stare at Bianca. "Do you know what I just said?"

Bianca clenched her fists under the table, but refused to admit defeat. "It's not that I can't, but that I don't want to at the moment. Anthony cares for me and respects my wishes. It's the responsible thing to do to myself and my future children to not just give birth thoughtlessly."

Dorothy smiled smugly. "That's right. If one overlooks quality over quantity, they are going to suffer in the future!"

The temperature in the air dropped.

"No one asked her to do that, right?" Dorothy retorted. "She gave birth to the children behind Anthony's back. If she hadn't been so selfish and foolish, we wouldn't be in so much trouble right now. It's bad enough that she decided to give birth to them, she even went and hid them away when the father was right before her eyes. She just acted like nothing happened. I'm impressed!"

"Did she get pregnant on her own?" Sarah argued. "Is that her own fault?"

Sarah meant to remind everyone there that Anthony had a part to play in getting Anne pregnant as well.

"Who knows what really happened? It could be your daughter who schemed to sleep with him and got herself pregnant!" Dorothy said. "She wouldn't get herself pregnant if she respected herself."

The gathering was no longer one arranged to resolve the issue, but had transformed to a meeting where everyone was blaming Anne.

Anne shouted with a pale face, feeling light-headed. 'Forget the past. We are Bianca realized what Anne had gone to do and hurried after her.

"Is she going after Anthony?" Frightened, Sarah asked. "Will Anthony raise his hand on her?"

Nigel left his seat. "TH go after her!"

Sarah grabbed her purse to leave as well, but Dorothy stopped her. "What's the hurry? Nigel went after her."

"It disgusts me to be in the same room as you!" Sarah tried to leave again.

She panted heavily as tears scrolled down her cheeks.

'Why do you have to be so cruel? I am the mother of the children! Why are you doing this to me?' She thought in despair. She had tried everything she could to escape, and everything still ended in the worst way possible. 'Is he even human? Can't he show me a little mercy considering how hard I tried to please him?'

The thought that her children would be raised by Bianca and would eventually forget about her cut through Anne's heart like a sharp blade.

'No way! No way in hell! I'm not giving up! I will never give up. No matter the price, I am getting my children back!' She thought.

Anne backed away from his embrace with bloodshot eyes and shook her head. Her tears fell once again and she wiped them away, forcing herself to calm down. "It's fine. I can find a way on my own..."

She knew that her father had agreed to surrender his happiness and remain married to Dorothy in order for Sarah to return to Luton. If Nigel went to negotiate with Anthony, no one knew what Nigel would have to compromise again.

'What can you do? Let me...'

"No!" She yelled. "I did this, so I will deal with it. None of you can help!"

She turned to leave.

"Anne!" Nigel wanted to go after her, but was startled into a halt when he spotted Sarah stepping outside the hotel with ruffled hair and blood all over her face. "Sarah! What happened?"

Anne returned to her residential building and went up to the sixth floor.

The apartment was empty and though the toys were still scattered on the ground, no one was occupying the apartment any longer.

Anne sobbed as she tidied up the toys, Bianca's words cutting into her heart as she thought back to them.

As the triplets' father, how far was Anthony willing to tolerate Bianca? How deep was his love for the woman? What could Anne do to ask for Anthony's mercy, even just for a little of it?

"Are you still renting this place?"

Hearing a voice behind her, she wiped her tears away and turned to find the owner of the apartment standing behind her.

Anne instantly realized that she was on speakerphone and said, "Dad, I'm fine. Kathryn said I am capable of going back to normal life. I just have to avoid extreme exercise."

Sarah sighed, "I finally understand why you keep refusing to come and live with me. So it was because of the children all along. They aren't there anymore. Why do you have to be so stubborn?"

"Mom, I will move in once I resolve everything."

"How?" Sarah asked.

"I haven't thought of anything yet. I'm still in shock..." She said gloomily.

Both Sarah and Nigel were worried when they heard the exhaustion in Anne's voice.

"Anne, don't stay in that place and move to the apartment I got you," Nigel said. "I already told you back in the hospital that the apartment is ready. You can move in anytime you want."

"I will move in later. Right now, I'm staying right here and don't even think about hiring a nanny to cook for me. I can take care of myself. Don't worry about me. That's it. I'm going back to sleep." Before they could respond, she hung up.

Sarah stared at her phone after Anne hung up and sighed, "Look at this. What should we do? She just wont live with me. The so-called way she's talking about is definitely to talk to Anthony in private. I don't want that because Anne is definitely going to be taken advantage of! Nigel, I realized earlier that Anthony doesn't respect you or anyone at all."
