Chapter 661

The car drove out of The Curve.

Anne sat in the passenger seat, holding the knife in her hand, fingers caressing the blade's back.

Sarah felt anxious looking at her gesture.

'Put... that knife away. Why are you holding it?'

"Now you are scared of the knife. Why did you bring the knife to the Royal Mansion if you are scared? Don't you know how dangerous it is?" Anne's voice was shaking.

Was it because of her rage or her fear?

Sarah was feeling guilty. "I... I was only trying to scare them."

'What if you got injured yourself?' Anne asked.

She could not ever forget what she saw. As soon as she got out of the car, Bianca stepped on her mother, her face insanely satisfied. She should have slapped her more than once across her face!

"Oh Lord!" Sarah just came over from the other side of the car as she witnessed the scene.

Anne stared blankly into the knife in her hand. The scene of the knife going through Bianca's belly flashed before her. Her mind went blank as if it could not comprehend how all this happened.

"Anne!"

Anne came back to her senses after hearing her mother. While trembling, her hand let loose the knife.

"Ah!" Bianca fell on her back to the ground.

The knife was still in her belly and covered entirely in a pool of blood.

"No... It was not me. She slammed into me herself..." Anne's voice was trembling.

Her brain was trying hard to recall, but it was a mess, and she could not think straight.

Sarah did not know what to say. She was worried and flustered.

If Anne were convicted of murder, this would be serious!

Anne was about to get off the car when they arrived at the hospital, but Sarah stopped her. "Are you really going in?"

"Mom, wait here. I will go in and see."

"How can I let you go alone? I will go with you."

Anne and Sarah went into the hospital and headed to the operations theater.

They saw Anthony, who was standing outside of the operations theater. Anthony turned around, his hawk eyes locked onto Anne.

Anne told herself that she could not back out. She did not need to be scared because she did not do it.

Perhaps the truth was complicated?

He went out of the ward and pursued, "Anthony, who hurt Bianca?"

'It was an accident.' Anthony's expression was grim but deep.

'Could it be... related to Anne?' Nigel took a guess.

"The two of them were fighting over a knife and Susan accidentally got injured." Anthony's expression was cold.

He gave an answer without investigating it and knowing the truth.

Nigel was shocked, and it was indeed related to Anne.

"Then where is Anne?" He asked.

"Anthony said it was an accident," Nigel said.

Bianca was stunned.

Anthony said... it was an accident?

'What accident?' Dorothy could no longer hold her temper.

'The two of them were fighting over a knife, and the knife accidentally hurt Bianca,' Nigel said.

Dorothy was enraged. "Do you even believe it? If it was an accident, why didn't the knife hurt that sl*t, Anne? Why did it only hurt Bianca? I am going to kill her right now!"

Nigel stopped her. "You can't go!"

"Why can't I? Nigel Faye, are you okay? You watched Bianca growing up. Is she less important than Anne? Your daughter was almost killed by that sl*t! ' Dorothy yelled.

Nigel frowned.

Anthony stood by the end of the bed and looked at Bianca coldly. "What happened?"

"Anne said bad things about you, I was too angry, so I went to argue with her. No matter what, you are the triplets' father. It was wrong for her to disrespect you. Anne was triggered and took out the knife from the car and pointed it at me, I was scared, so I went to grab her knife. Then, not sure what happened, the knife was stabbed into my belly..."

This was consistent with what Anne said too.

It was also an accident.

Dorothy's face was ugly, and she said, "What happened? Of course Anne did this on purpose! Otherwise, why would she get the knife? She wanted to hurt you! Luckily, you survived. Otherwise, I would not be able to see you now," Dorothy said and wiped her tears.

'Anthony, did she do this on purpose? If she did, then that was very evil of her. I am her blood sister. Why did she want to kill me? I don't understand...' Bianca asked sorrowfully.

Dorothy said, "Anthony, other than Bianca, no one else cares for you more than she does. No one else is more loyal than her to you. You cannot disappoint her!"

Bianca's eyes were red. "I need to have an explanation for this."

Dorothy suppressed her anger. "If it were Anne who is lying in here today, you would not have this attitude, would you?"

Nigel did not argue with her but turned and walked away.

Dorothy was so pissed but could not let her anger out.

Bianca closed her eyes. Not only did her belly hurt, her head too.

Especially when things did not go as she wished, she was feeling extremely suppressed.

Anne was done icing her face. Her cheeks were cold, and the swelling subsided too.

Her phone rang. She was stunned to see Anthony calling her and was frozen in her seat.

"Why? Who called?" Sarah peeked. It was an unsaved number that she did not know.

Anne could not ignore it, so she picked up the phone and walked out to answer it. 'Hello..."

Anthony's deep voice threatened. "You spoke too much."

Anne looked down and suppressed her emotions. She thought about the three adorable kids, then only brought herself to give in and say something that totally defied herself. "I am sorry. It was my fault that you were injured.

I should not have been holding the knife. Otherwise, I would not have accidentally gotten you injured. I hope you are generous enough to forgive me."

'Please don't think that I am making it difficult for you, but you deserve a punishment for doing the wrong thing. I am your sister, and I can forgive you, but what if it was an outsider? They would not be as easy. I hope you can go back and reflect upon this and behave yourself, don't be so impulsive the next time. Since you admitted to having done this, I will drop this. I don't want Anthony to worry about my body." Bianca looked at Anthony, her eyes were gentle.

Anne wanted to rebut what she said, but she saw everyone in the ward would not believe her.

Who would believe that Bianca ran into the knife herself?

"Can I go now?" she asked.

Bianca did not want to let her get away that easily. That would be easy for her!

However, she could not make Anne think that it was Anthony who asked her to apologize. This would make Anne misunderstand that Anthony cared about her.

'I am fine! I just wanted to bring you on a trip, can't I?" Anne said.

Sarah obviously did not buy it.

'That is one reason. The other reason is that I felt trapped,' Anne said. It felt like being tied in the same spot for too long.

If she was so trapped to the point that she was mentally ill, she was afraid that she would break down before she got to meet her kids.

Sarah pulled her hand and said, "Sure, no matter where we go, I will be with you. I would love to go on a trip with you too! However, can you get out of the country? You can't even get out of Luton, can you?"

"When you had trouble in Santa Nila, Anthony had already cleared my name from the blacklist," Anne said.

She did not think that Anthony would care if she left the country now. After all, Anthony only had eyes for Bianca. It would not matter if she left the country for a few days.

The next morning, Anne and Sarah flew to another country.

They did not tell anyone about it.

Dorothy then said, "Why are you bored? Anthony is here to see you. Only if you recover, Anthony would not be worried about you!"

"Yes." Bianca's eyes were gentle.

Dorothy saw that Anthony had taken a seat and could not wait to express what was on her mind. She asked, "Is Chloe better now? I was just speaking to Bianca about visiting the kids. No matter what, the kids will be my grandchildren too, when Bianca is married to you."

"She is fine now,' Anthony said.

Dorothy looked relieved and said, "That is great to hear. I want to spend time with the kids first so that when you have your own kids, I will be more experienced at babysitting them."

Bianca peeked at Anthony, then complained about her mother. "Our kids? That would be after we get married."

"It is not too early for you to get married anyway! Marriage will naturally follow the engagement."

Dorothy paused, then asked Anthony, "Anthony, you did not manage to register that time. Did you manage to book another appointment?"
