Chapter 771

Ashlynn's neck was frozen, she did not dare to move at all, and her entire body was shaking involuntarily. She was so afraid that her movements were too big that the fingers would cut into her artery like a knife.

This was all because she understood how terrifying Salvatore could be.

"Salvatore..." Ashlynn's voice was trembling.

Corentin carried her up impatiently while ignoring her pleas.

Ashlynn did not have any ability to resist him carrying her into the mansion at all, as she was utterly immobilized in his arms.

He tossed her onto the bed.

"Ah!" Ashlynn yelled as she fell onto the bouncy bed.

Her ankles felt cold and she squirmed a little, but she could not get out of Corentin's hold.

Corentin held her by the ankles with such a tight grip she could barely move them. 2

Corentin looked at the wounds on her feet, his fingers caressing them gently as he said, "Broken."

Ashlynn looked at the perverted Corentin, other than the fear in the pit of her stomach and the tears streaming down her cheeks, she felt completely numb.

This was to be a sleepless night!

When Anne finally woke up, it was noon the next day.

She opened her eyes, and the first thing she saw were Anthony's deep eyes.

The memory from last night flooded into her mind, he was a maniac!

Obviously, the man before her had already gotten what he wanted.

Anne glared at Anthony furiously, she then bit her lips secretly, her angry emotion was expressed on her face.

She wanted to get off the bed.

However, an arm flung over and dragged her over.

"Ah..." Anne landed on the man's muscular body. "What do you want to do?"

"Don't you want something from me? Hmm?" Anthony was in a good mood.

Anne tried to think in all seriousness, then she said effortlessly, "One, give me freedom, two, break up

Bianca failed to dig anything, and could not ask further, to prevent herself from getting exposed. So she hung up.

She was so angry that she slammed her phone into her bed, and even that could not relieve her anger.

It was a rare opportunity. She thought that it would land on her now that Anne was away.

However, it turned out to land on some random slut!

How could she not feel exasperated about it!

She changed her clothes and was about to leave the Royal Mansion, and suppressed her anger to be released later at home.

Bang! Something was slammed onto the ground.

“Why?” Dorothy came to pick up the bag that was thrown onto the ground by her, “It would be a shame if you damage this limited edition bag of yours.”

Bianca slumped into the couch and cried, “Why was it not me? Why couldn’t it be me? Why is it so hard for us to sleep together just once?”

“Sleep together once?” Dorothy could not understand.

“I can make you beg for mercy,” he mumbled in a hoarse voice with his lips pressed against her flushed cheek.

She refused to listen to him and closed her eyes.

“If you agree to come back tonight, I’ll let you leave.”

“Why do I have to come back?” she scowled.

He let her go and turned to head into the room. “The medicine’s effect hasn’t worn off.”

“What? Still? You have to be joking! Even if that’s true, why don’t you go to Bianca?” she yelled after him.

“I don’t want to hurt her.”

Anne stilled and bit her lips as she glared at the towering figure before her with a dark look on her face.

Anne narrowed her eyes darkly as Bianca said the same thing as Anthony did.

Bianca was important to Anthony, but she was a cheap replacement. She knew it by heart and did not need any further reminders.

She desperately wanted to tell Bianca that she was the woman who spent the night with Anthony, wondering how furious Bianca would be. However, she refrained from doing so as her children still needed to live with Bianca.

"Isn't that a good thing? With another woman in the picture, both of us can lay back and relax," Anne said.

Anne's careless tone made Bianca feel as though she was punching at a cushion and that her insults had no effect on Anne.

'No. It's definitely working. Anne is just pretending to be fine. She must feel really hurt,' Bianca thought.

“Anthony went to another woman, which means he’s fine without you. But I’m different. I’m still his fiancée and no matter how many women he sleeps with outside, nothing will change. Just wait until you feel what it’s like to be thrown into hell!” Bianca continued.

“It’s okay. Dad never mentioned the Lloyds anyway. We will just ignore them. It’s just business so let’s not overthink this,” Anne said.

After leaving the hospital, Anne went to the Royal Mansion, and the triplets immediately threw themselves into her arms.

The triplets simply thought that Anne was playing with them and hurriedly crawled up her body.

“Mama, we heard that you went on a business trip again?”

“Is it hard to look after Grandpa’s company?”

“I want to help, Mama, so you won’t be tired!”

Anne stared at their faces and felt all the exhaustion that accumulated within her fading.

She cupped their cheeks and planted a kiss on each of their chubby cheeks. "Alright. Mama will retire when you grow up. I'll stay home to laze away while you three go out to earn money."

Anne could sense the dangerous stare from Anthony and immediately covered Charlie's mouth to stop him from continuing.

Charlie batted his doe-like eyes innocently while Hayden chuckled from behind them, thinking how wonderful it would be if the five of them were a family.

"Come on, let's go to eat." Anne dragged her sons away, knowing they would ask more absurd questions if she did not stop them.

The triplets were overjoyed to be with their parents, and Charlie insisted on feeding his mother. "Mama, say ah!"

Anne smiled and opened her mouth. "It tastes great."

"Michelle?" Anthony narrowed his eyes dangerously.

"He doesn't look like he's lying. Mr. Marwood, should we take Michelle into custody?"

"Go ahead."

"Yes, sir."

Bianca went to the Royal Mansion that night and asked Hayden, "Anthony hasn't come home?"

“He’s probably still in the office.”

Michelle instantly came to a realization that Bianca must have done something and wanted her to take the blame.

Bianca turned to face the bodyguards. “Don’t take her away. I’ll talk to Anthony later.” “This is our mission. Please don’t make it difficult for us,” one of the bodyguards said.

“I’m Anthony’s fiancée. What I say goes. Do you want her? Over my dead body!” Bianca insisted.

If they took Michelle, she would not be able to control the situation fully.

The bodyguards knew that she was Anthony’s fiancée, or they would not have bothered trying to persuade her and would have forcefully taken Michelle away. Since they could not do so by force, the bodyguards were placed in an extremely difficult position.

“What are you worried about? I’ll tell Anthony that it’s not your issue. Whoever came today, I won’t let them take Michelle,” Bianca said before looking away.

“Or you can take me to Anthony instead.”

She was looking for him anyway.

The bodyguards remained quiet, and one of them turned to call Ivan, who called Anthony for further instruction, but Anthony did not answer.

In the end, they had to give up as Michelle was not going anywhere.

Anne sat on the fences, and the man was dressed in pajamas. His back faced Bianca, so she could not see his face, but she could see the way he was holding onto Anne’s waist.

Anne whimpered and said, “Enough. Let me down...” She grabbed onto the man’s shoulders to steady herself.

“Call me Master.”

Bianca did not dare to imagine anything when she first saw the man’s figure, but her bubble had been shattered when she heard his voice.

Her hand on the curtains shivered. She paled while looking at the two across as though she had been struck by lightning.

“Will you really let me go once I do that? Or are you just going to switch to a different spot? The night before last night, last night and today... You just won’t let me leave... Umph!” Anne complained.

Anthony sealed her lips.

Unable to bear witness to the scene any longer, Bianca stumbled and came close to falling.

Her tears scrolled down her cheeks as she realized that they had been together for two nights in a row.

‘How? The night before last night... Isn’t that the night when Anthony was drugged?’ she thought.
