"The cafeteria."

"I haven't eaten there for a long time. How about eating together?" Anne asked.

Xander thought, was Mr. Marwood not coming today?

He looked at the time, and it was indeed a little later than usual. Maybe Mr. Marwood needed to attend to some matters.

"Let's go. I haven't had dinner with Ms. Vallois in a while," Xander said.

She would always eat with Anthony and then go back to the Royal Mansion.

This was the first time she went to the cafeteria after amnesia.

The food was pretty good.

"There's seafood on the menu today. You're in luck, Ms. Vallois," Xander said.

Anne saw that they were ordering seafood, and she ordered seafood too. It really looked delicious.

She should trust him, should she not?

If she did, she should not ask.

"Again, don't touch any seafood." Anthony was worried.

He remembered that time when they went to sea. She was having so much fun catching sea urchins that she forgot she could not eat seafood.

Now she had amnesia, and her memory was probably even worse.

"You've already said it multiple times. I had amnesia, but that doesn't mean I can't remember," Anne said.

A shy smile appeared on her face when she noticed that Anthony cared about her.

Anthony leaned forward, pressed her thin lips against her small mouth, and kissed her forcibly, looking domineering and strong.

Anne was out of breath, her two hands on his broad shoulders, gripping his clothes tightly.

She knew that she liked Anthony. The fluttering of her heart when she saw him could prove it.

Anne came out of the office and went to the bathroom.

"Anne?"

When Anne turned her head, she saw a well-dressed woman approaching her.

Her first reaction was that she knew this woman, but she forgot.

"You don't remember me, do you? I heard that you lost your memory in a car accident. Is it true?" Michelle said, but looking at Anne, she supposed that what Bianca said was true. Anne really had lost her memory.

"Well, it's still recovering," Anne said.

Michelle asked, "Do you want to go downstairs for a drink?" Anne hesitated.

“Poor Bianca, she loves Anthony, and Anthony also loves her, but they still have to part ways in the end. I think it’s meaningless for you to hold on to a man who doesn’t have you in his heart,” Michelle said.

“Anthony... cares about me,” Anne said.

“That’s because he cares about the children. He won’t even care about you if the children don’t exist. Think about it, your mother destroyed his parents’ relationship, and he probably hates you for it! How could he care about you?” Michelle looked at the puzzled Anne, and put down her coffee cup. “You didn’t know about that, did you? Anthony’s mother committed suicide by jumping off a building because of your mother. Many people know about it.”

Anne looked panicked; Anthony had never told her this.

He only said that her mother married his father, which. was why they met... She thought it was because of this that the two of them fell in love with each other for a long time.

She was not the woman Anthony actually cared about. Was it Bianca instead?

“Why Bianca?” Anne found her voice and asked.

“Because Anthony’s mother jumped off the building,

Bianca was with him when he was saddest and lowest. Think about it, who would he choose to love?” Michelle asked.

Anne's heart rate was accelerating due to the close distance between her and Anthony. Even her vision was blurry.

"You said you wouldn't do this..." she said weakly, her eyes full of confusion.

"We can do something else," Anthony said as he squeezed her hand and bit her finger.

Anne's face flushed red, and she looked confused.

Anthony touched her warm face and realized he had to teach her everything from the start.

Regardless, he could not let her leave once she had come to him.

He just needed something to quench his thirst.

After all, he had been holding it in for so long...

Back on the bed, Anne was in Anthony's arms.

The redness on her face had yet to completely disappear.

Anthony put down the plate and sat on the edge of the bed, holding her chin. "Afraid I would leave you?"

Anne's eyes flashed. "No... I'll go wash up first."

Afraid of being seen through, she lifted the blanket and ran to the bathroom.

Standing in front of the mirror, looking at the panicked face inside, she felt guilty for thinking Anthony went to find Bianca.

In the morning, the two of them went to the company to keep themselves busy.

At noon, Mia went out for a while. When she returned, she saw the triplets playing soccer on the lawn, chasing the ball around.

Her eyes flashed abnormally, and she went to the hall.

Then she pretended to go upstairs naturally and sneaked into the master bedroom.

A moment later, she came out again and went downstairs as if nothing had happened.

Hayden saw her and said, "Did you finish your work? It's a pretty chill day at the Royal Mansion. Take a day off."

"I have nothing to do, so I came back. After all, I do earn quite a large paycheck!" Mia said.

Did Bianca come to the Royal Mansion when she was not there and then meet Anthony...

Anne closed her eyes tightly to prevent the nauseating images in her mind from forming.

How could this be? How...

Anne picked up the earring on the ground and ran to the bathroom, throwing it into the toilet and flushing it away with water.

She regretted it, looking at the earring being washed away by water.

If it was thrown away, what if Anthony noticed that the earring was missing? Would he come to ask her?

The intimacy of last night with Anthony suddenly disappeared.

When Anthony came back, Anne was still asleep.

Anthony kissed Anne away, and she woke up almost instantly.

Her eyes flashed when she saw Anthony. "Finished with your work?"

"Yes."

"I don't mind if you stay at work. You don't have to come back to accompany me. Although I have amnesia, I know what's going on with my life," Anne said.

"Why didn't you say it before?" Anthony's black eyes were deep and sharp.

"I didn't know what the person's purpose was, and I wondered if they had anything to do with Sarah's death. I couldn't figure it out, so I told you. Anthony, do you think that person is the killer?" Bianca had a confused look on her face.

Anthony did not directly answer her, and his aura was deep and imposing.

The stagnant air made Bianca's heart uneasy, not knowing what to do next.

Even such important news could not shock him.

What a mature man.

She admired him a lot. Bianca wanted a masculine man like him as her husband.

Anne accompanied the triplets in the Royal Mansion and sat on the steps when she was tired.

The triplets kicked the ball happily.

Chloe played half the game, gave up, and went to play with the butterflies.

Anne sat nervously in front of the Royal mansion, trying to stop Chloe from catching any caterpillars.

The streetlights in the garden were already on, dotting the area with a beautiful, pearlescent glow.

The footlights along the path stretched out into the distance, almost as if they were trying to pull people's lonely hearts toward them.

Anne stared off into the distance until she heard the sound of a car approaching. At first, she thought it was just her imagination.

Then, the children responded quickly. "Look, a car! It's a Rolls – Royce!" they shouted. Anne stared blankly at the car as it pulled to a stop, and Anthony stepped out. He seemed the same as usual.

"Is Papa tired?" Chloe asked. "Is everything okay?" Chris chimed in.

"I want you even more," Anthony said, his hot breath spraying on Anne's small mouth.

She felt a little itchy, and before she could lick her lips, he kissed her. Her long eyelashes trembled like the wings of a butterfly.

Her face turned even redder.

Anne thought to herself, 'I wonder if I'll have to do what I did in the bathroom last night again?'

However, she was wrong and just slept normally at night without doing anything. Even so, she was very satisfied just being hugged by Anthony.

She thought to herself, 'It would be great if I could go on like this with Anthony for the rest of my life.'

The next day, Anne went to the company.

At around ten o'clock, the office door was pushed open, and Bianca walked in in heels and dressed to the nines.
