

Predestined 1031

Chapter 1031

A few days after Luther left, Tina came again.

Tina brought a lot of things to Alyssa, and there was everything to eat.

She dragged two large suitcases over, one for her own things, and the other for Alyssa.

Tina came over, naturally behind Peter, a follower.

Peter looked at Alyssa, standing aside rarely making a sound.

Tina and Alyssa chatted for a while, then went to the bathroom.

Peter originally sat a little far away from Alyssa.

After Tina left, he sat a little closer to her, and asked with a serious expression, "How are you doing recently?"

When he saw Alyssa just now, he felt that compared with the last time, not only was she not so good, but she seemed to be more serious.

He was also not sure if it was his own illusion.

Karl had put so much effort into curing Alyssa, it shouldn't be fruitless.

How could she become more and more serious.

"It's better than before."

Alyssa pulled the corners of her lips, not so much that she could see her smile.

Her memory seems to have recovered a bit, not as bad as before, but her body is still the same as before.

Peter nodded when he heard the words.

But still a little worried and said: "You must treat it well, be happy, we will all be with you."

Alyssa laughed and said, "Thank you, I didn't dare to think that such emotional words would be heard from you."

Peter shook his head: "Alyssa, you must be cured. If you have something good or bad, Karl will not survive."

Alyssa's originally relaxed expression disappeared suddenly.

Her complexion gradually became serious, and she frowned at Peter: "What do you mean?"

Peter sighed: "I asked Karl to ask you what's going on, guess what he told me?"

From Peter's expression, Alyssa could think that Karl must have said nothing good.

Peter made up the following words for himself: "He said, the worst thing is to let Tina and me take care of Grace for you. What does he mean by this?"

Alyssa's complexion suddenly changed.

She shook her head, then leaned her head back on the chair, her throat felt astringent, and she was extremely uncomfortable, as if something was blocked.

Speechless.

"Alyssa, you must treat it well, even if it is for Karl, you should be pitiful for him. It is really not easy for him."

Peter's expression was also a little sad.

Karl is an extremely powerful person, no matter how difficult it is, he can easily solve it.

Whether it is difficult or not, he will not say, and no one knows.

But Peter felt that it was not easy for him.

As far as others are concerned, Peter sometimes thinks that Tina is so upset that she is cold and hot, and there is nowhere to solve it.

What's more, Karl had been carrying a heavy burden.

"Since the kidnapping case that year, the things on his shoulders have been very heavy. It was not until you and Grace were there that he was happier. If you are really gone, his life will be over."

At this time, Peter didn't care about these unlucky words, so he tried to talk about words that could stimulate Alyssa.

Karl was looking for a way to treat Alyssa, but Peter was walking around the people of the mall, but Alyssa obviously didn't get much better.

Judging from his instinct, the problem probably lies with Alyssa.

And Alyssa's condition has not been very good.

He used to think that her body was too weak for this, but now it seems that there is probably a problem with her mentality.

Chapter 1032

Peter also talked with Alyssa for a while.

Although he usually looks careless and heartless, he is very clear about business matters and understands very well.

Peter didn't change the subject until Tina came back from the toilet.

Like an okay person, he complained: "Recently, a group of newcomers has come to the company, all of them are terribly poor in acting, and they also have a kind of 'I'm No. 1 in the world.' Back then" He spoke deeply, shaking his head as he spoke.

Tina walked over, glanced at Peter, and said angrily: "I don't know what to say. Why do you say these annoying things to Alyssa?"

Peter naturally didn't admit defeat. He raised his head and reasoned with Tina: "I think Alyssa loves to listen. She didn't interrupt me and she listened seriously."

"What about you?" Tina just said, and Karl pushed the door and walked in.

He swallowed what he was about to say.

Karl's aura was so strong that almost everyone would unconsciously settle down in front of him.

He just went out to answer Smith's phone call and took care of a little work by the way, so before that, only Tina and Peter were here.

As soon as Alyssa came in, she kept staring at him fixedly.

Although Alyssa had tried her best to maintain her composure, Karl knew her too well, and he soon noticed the strangeness in her eyes.

Peter has always been exquisite and accustomed to meeting opportunities.

He had said so much to Alyssa just now, and he secretly guessed that Alyssa must have something to say to Karl when she saw Karl at this time.

He stood up and said, "Tina, you haven't been here before, I will be a gentleman and go shopping with you."

Tina got angry when she looked at him reluctantly.

She said "Bah": "Not rare."

Peter seemed to have not heard her, and walked outside, holding her around: "Let's go, I know you want to stroll around."

Tina struggled: "What are you doing, let me go, why are you annoying?" "You are so annoying, I can walk by myself, you let go!" Tina was finally forced out by Peter.

The two went out noisily, only Alyssa and Karl were left in the room.

Karl frowned slightly, squatted down in front of Alyssa, and asked her, "What's wrong?"

Alyssa looked at his face, and was a little surprised, Karl had always been very concerned about her affairs.

She was just giving a look, and he knew something was wrong with her.

Karl was never easy to convince anyone, he had the arrogance that was unique to a rich man in his bones, and his nature was unruly.

Gentleness is not what he is good at.

But Alyssa felt that the way he squatted in front of the wheelchair and talked to her every time was so gentle.

But what about her?

She has been arguing with him all this time.

Even if she loses her temper, Karl has done nothing wrong.

The more Alyssa thought about it, the more sore her heart became, and tears burst into her eyes.

Karl's expression changed: "What's the matter?"

Alyssa choked and couldn't speak, and Karl guessed: "Did Peter say something unpleasant to offend you?"

"Go back to fix him and never let him come here again."

Karl knew that Tina and Alyssa were better, and the woman was soft-hearted, and it was definitely not Tina that caused Alyssa to say something bad.

Someone must have provoked Alyssa like this, it must be Peter.

Chapter 1033

Alyssa burst into laughter and shook her head vigorously.

The more Karl cared about her, the more she felt guilty and sad.

She pursed the corners of her lips, stopped the urge to cry, and then said: "I'm sorry!" "Karl, I'm sorry!" Karl didn't know what happened to Alyssa, her eyebrows were tightly furrowed. , But still reached out to touch her face.

With a soothing tone, he asked her softly, "Sorry for what?"

Alyssa had already stopped the urge to cry, but when he heard his gentle tone, she couldn't help it.

Karl was patient with Alyssa, but when he kept crying without knowing the reason, he was also a little irritable.

But still patiently said: "Stop crying, tell me, what's wrong?"

Alyssa stretched out her hand and wiped the tears on her face: "I'm fine."

After she finished speaking, she smiled at Karl.

Karl's face was solemn, and he reached out and took her into his arms.

Alyssa didn't want to say, he could not ask.

You can know what's going on by calling Peter back.

Alyssa reached out and hugged Karl back, hugging him tightly.

Karl carefully felt Alyssa's hug tighter, surprise flashed in his eyes, but there was no sound.

After a while, Alyssa's mood completely calmed down.

She relaxed, letting herself rely on Karl, leaning on him tightly, and whispering, "I will treat the illness well."

Karl understood what she said.

But Alyssa quickly said: "You can't trouble Peter."

Karl just responded indifferently, "OK."

Alyssa knew Karl too well, so she wouldn't just believe him.

She let go of him, and reached out to pat Karl's head: "You have to say 'no'."

Karl did not blink his eyes, letting Alyssa pat him on the head.

Then he whispered: "No."

He didn't bother Peter, he just started beating people.

Alyssa laughed softly when she heard the word.

Karl, who was out there on weekdays, was not always gentle in front of her, but he was the most temperless.

Alyssa fixedly stared at Karl: "I didn't seem to tell you one thing."

"what?"

Karl frowned, his expression faintly tense.

Alyssa reached out and pressed Karl's frowning eyebrows, and said softly, "I love you, love you very much."

Karl never thought that she was going to say this.

He has always been calm and self-sufficient, and his face also has a deep feeling of astonishment.

Alyssa had never said this to him.

Karl was stunned for a while, then slightly changed his face, "I see."

His reaction seemed calm, but the invisible smile in his eyes revealed his emotions.

The corners of the lips rose up involuntarily.

Alyssa didn't expect him to be so happy, so she leaned forward and gave him a kiss.

Karl quickly turned away from the guest.

â€ Alyssa was emotionally fluctuating a bit today, crying and laughing and saying so much, her body was a little unable to hold it, she was taken back to her room to rest by Karl.

She didn't want to sleep so fast, but she couldn't control herself as soon as she lay on the bed.

Soon she fell asleep.

Waiting for Alyssa to fall asleep, Karl got up and walked out.

It's time to beat Peter.

It was a good thing for Alyssa to open up, but she also cried for so long.

Should she be beaten or him.

Chapter 1034

Peter took Tina to look around, and when he came back, it was already an hour later.

As soon as he entered the door, he saw Karl sitting in the hall.

Karl's legs were folded together, sitting in a very casual posture, and it seemed that he was very relaxed.

Peter didn't know how Karl was thinking about beating him, so he happily ran over and sat down beside Karl and asked him, "Where is she?"

Karl raised his eyes: "Sleeping."

"Oh."

Peter had just returned from the outside, and he was walking in a hurry in the middle. It was still a bit hot right now.

He pulled his collar, unbuttoned another button, turned to the servant not far away and said, "Pour me a glass of water."

The servant poured water and brought it to Peter.

"Thank you."

Peter took a sip of the water, remembered the good things he had done before, and asked Karl happily: "After we left, what did you talk to Alyssa?"

Peter felt that he had done a good thing, and Karl had to thank him.

When Karl heard this, he looked at Peter with a smile, "Want to know?"

Peter felt that Karl's expression was a bit scary.

He carefully held the cup of water, moved it aside, and retreated to a safe distance before he said carefully: "I don't want to know."

Karl stood up and said very seriously: "You come out, I will tell you."

Peter looked at Karl suspiciously.

Karl's expression was so serious that he couldn't confirm what Karl wanted to do.

Not afraid and itching to know what Karl was going to do.

Go, I'm afraid that Karl will kick him.

Alas, he is too difficult.

Karl walked a few steps, then saw that Peter hadn't followed him, and said, "Come on."

Peter scratched his head, got up and walked over.

When he reached the open space outside, Karl began to take off his coat.

As soon as Peter saw Karl beginning to take off his coat, his whole body was not well.

"I have something to go back first!" Peter said as he ran out.

But soon he was caught by Karl.

"Let's have a good chat."

Karl had already grabbed Peter, and naturally would not give him another chance to escape.

Peter had been planted in Karl's hands countless times, and he knew very well that he could not run away if he caught him.

Peter had learned how to shame if Karl didn't get in.

"Before I die, I want to ask, what did I do to make you do this to me?"

Peter had a bitter face and looked pitiful.

Karl snorted coldly, and beat him directly without giving him any answer.

Peter was actually quite good at it, and he might even be able to make a tie with Karl if he tried his best.

After the two played a few rounds, Peter lay on the ground and pretended to be dead: "I can't do it, I'm dead."

"Uncle Grant, come on!"

Grace's voice suddenly came from the corner.

Peter and Karl followed the sound and saw Grace sitting on a bench with a candy in her mouth, two short legs dangling, and their small faces were full of excitement.

Peter twitched his mouth: "Your dad hit me, are you happy?"

"Dad is great!"

Grace glanced at Peter, smiled and stretched out a thumb to Karl.

Peter was still lying on the ground, propped his head with one hand, and said earnestly: "Grace, you are still a child. Children usually feel scared when they see adults fighting, and then they cry, you know?"

Chapter 1035

Grace still had Candy in her mouth, took a sip and said to Peter, "Then I am not an ordinary kid."

Peter was choked by Grace: "All right."

Turning around, he met Grace's father's gaze again.

Peter stretched out his hand to cover his chest, feeling a little pain in his chest.

He silently got up from the ground and asked Karl: "Can you still fight?"

Karl glanced at him, "Doing it in front of a child will leave a shadow on the child, don't you know?"

Peter twitched the corners of his mouth and snorted, "hypocritical!"

Turning his head inadvertently, he saw Tina lying on the railing not far away and looking here, not knowing how long he had been watching.

Peter thought about the scene of himself lying on the ground just now and pretending to be dead, but it didn't look pretty anyhow.

Thinking about this, Peter's expression became even more ugly, and he turned his head back boldly and gave Karl a look.

Karl had already walked towards Grace, felt Peter's gaze, and turned his head to look towards him.

Seeing Karl turned his head, Peter ran away quickly.

After running for a while, he raised his head and looked in the direction of Tina, but he did not see Tina again.

Peter quickened his pace and ran towards her.

As soon as he entered the door, he saw Tina coming down from the upper floor.

Tina glanced at him faintly and was about to leave, Peter stretched out his hand to cover his chest and hissed pretending to be painful.

While pretending to be painful, he took a peek at Tina.

Although he has never acted in a theater, he is not a graduate of drama school, but he has actors under his hands. He has never eaten chicken and watched pigs run. It's too easy to pretend to hurt.

Tina heard his voice and couldn't help turning her head to look at him.

Peter pretended to be calm: "I'm fine."

Tina snorted coldly, "Did I ask you anything?"

"No."

Peter smiled at her with a good temper.

During the long-term battle with her, Peter has gradually figured out a way to get along with her.

In the past, he had acted in front of Tina in the face of injuries and uncomfortable things, but the act was too exaggerated and the goal was too clear, causing Tina to not even look at him.

Later he learned to retreat as progress.

Seeing him like this, Tina couldn't tell whether he was okay.

Just now she saw Karl and Peter fighting outside in the corridor, and her heart was raised.

Although Peter had practiced since he was a child, he rarely had the opportunity to play with others, and Karl had really fought with people and had actual combat experience.

Peter is definitely not Karl's opponent.

So Tina let Grace pass.

Grace passed, these two men would definitely not fight again.

The fact is indeed as she thought.

However, she is really not sure whether Peter was injured.

She hesitated to ask, Peter turned around and walked upstairs.

He held the guardrail with one hand, and hung his other hand tightly to his side. His walking posture was also normal, but he felt a little weird.

Tina has a temper that can't hide things.

Upon seeing this, she still couldn't help but called him: "Peter."

Peter, who went upstairs with his back to her, turned his head immediately when he heard the name, as if it were a sound from heaven.

Before turning his head, he adjusted the expression on his face: "What's wrong?"

Is there a problem?"

Tina asked him: "Are you hurt?"

Come over and show me."

Peter shook his head, looked very strong, and said, "I'm fine, really."

Chapter 1036

Tina felt that Peter today was strange.

She frowned and looked at him for a moment, then stepped forward and pulled him down.

"Let you come! What's so hypocritical?"

Tina's movements were a bit rude, Peter was reluctant on the surface, but in his heart it was already dark and cool.

Tina looked up and down Peter, opened his clothes, and found that there were a few black spots on his body.

She tentatively stretched out her hand and pressed it, and Peter showed a look of forbearance and restraint.

As if suffering from pain.

“It hurts?”

Tina asked.

Peter shook his head: “No.”

Tina gave him a white look, then turned her head and told the servant: “Get the medicine box up.”

After speaking, she dragged Peter upstairs.

Peter still remained reluctant on the surface, but he still followed her upstairs.

Tina’s idea was relatively simple. If he were to take the medicine in the living room, Karl would definitely see it later. It was originally a fight with Karl before he was injured. It didn’t seem to be good to use the medicine in front of him.

So, she planned to take Peter back to the room and go upstairs.

As soon as Peter and Tina went upstairs, Karl and Grace walked out from behind the door.

The Candy in Grace’s mouth hadn’t been melted yet, and her words were a little irritating: “Dad, did you beat Uncle Grant miserably?”

Karl had no expression: “Do you know what miserable means?”

Grace thought for a while, turned her head and said to him, “He was beaten to crawl?”

Karl curled his lips and touched Grace’s head as if reaching out for a reward.

Grace blinked: “Then are you injured?”

Do you want to rub medicine?”

“No need to.”

Karl’s big hand moved down, pushing Grace’s back into it.

Grace said “Hey”: “Then I pretended to take care of Uncle Grant and deliberately deceived Aunt Tina.”

Karl raised his eyebrows and looked a little surprised: “How do you know?”

“When you fight with Uncle Grant, you are not fierce at all. Uncle Grant just pretended to be.”

Grace was serious, and Karl found it interesting.

“Uncle Grant has Aunt Tina applying medicine for him, I will apply medicine to you too.”

Grace said to him, and ran to find the medicine cabinet.

Five minutes later, Karl was sitting on the sofa, while Grace sat beside him with her short legs crossed, and was serious about tearing a band-aid with a Pikachu pattern.

She carefully tore Pikachu’s band-aid, then looked up and looked for a wound on Karl’s body.

She looked left and right for a while, and finally found a bruise on Karl's jaw with her extraordinary eyesight.

"Dad, you are hurt here, I will cover it for you."

Grace stretched out her hand, and found that something was out of reach, so she stood up and gave Karl a sticker.

Karl frowned, neither cooperated nor refused.

He doesn't want to post anything about this kind of child.

But Grace looked serious, so he didn't move.

The child's hands were soft and calm, and Karl could hardly feel any strength when putting band-aids on him.

Until Grace happily said, "Okay."

Karl stretched out his hand and touched it, only to touch the band-aid on his chin.

He turned his head to look at Grace without any expression: "Do you think it is appropriate for me to keep this?"

Grace always thought that Dad was cool and handsome.

She listened to Karl's words, and looked at him seriously. Dad's handsome and cold face put a yellow Pikachu on his face, which seemed to be a little discordant.

Chapter 1037

Grace couldn't tell the feeling, so she nodded and said, "It looks good."

Karl glanced at her without speaking.

Grace blinked, thinking that Karl would take off the bandage.

But he didn't.

She observed for a while, vaguely found that Karl seemed to be in a good mood.

After she discovered this, she hurriedly approached him and called him, "Dad?"

Karl looked back at her when he heard the sound, and motioned for her to speak.

Grace just thought it was a little fun.

She hasn't seen Karl in a good mood for a long time.

She stared at him for a while, and then tentatively reached out and patted Karl's head.

Karl's complexion remained unchanged, he narrowed his eyes and asked, "What's the matter?"

"Dad, why are you in a good mood?"

Grace retracted his hand and asked him with dark eyes open, "Is there anything good?"

A look of surprise flashed in Karl's eyes.

He is not a person who is full of emotions and anger, since he was a child, he did not like to let people notice his own emotional changes.

Unexpectedly, Grace could feel it.

He stretched out his hand, hugged Grace on his lap and sat here there: "Where am I happy?"

Grace tilted her head and thought about it seriously, but still couldn't describe the feeling, she said, "You are just happy."

She could feel it anyway.

Although Karl was indifferent and didn't like to talk on weekdays, he occasionally wanted to talk to people.

He is indeed a little happy today.

Although he beat Peter, Peter let Alyssa untie the knot, which is also a good thing.

He just didn't expect that Grace could see that he was very happy.

Karl let out an "um", staring at Grace's small fleshy face, and couldn't help but squeeze it.

During this period of time, he worked hard for Alyssa, and he rarely had such close interaction with Grace.

In fact, Grace didn't dare to make trouble in front of Karl.

Although she could feel that Karl was actually good to her, she was a little afraid of him and didn't dare to be as casual as she was in front of Alyssa.

She was squeezed by Karl's face, she was stunned for a moment, and stretched out her hand to pinch Karl's face.

The child's soft and like water hands, Karl smiled and touched her head, and asked her, "Do you want to go back to school?"

Alyssa mentioned to him before that she wanted Grace to go back to kindergarten to attend classes, but Karl immediately refused.

The situation was different at the time.

Alyssa had a bad mentality at that time, and Karl wanted Grace to be in front of her so that she could be happier.

But now that Alyssa had solved the knot, he felt that it was enough to have him with her, and Grace could go back to school.

Grace was still smiling, but after hearing Karl's words, the smile on her little face disappeared.

She pursed her lips, and shook her head after a while: "No answer."

"why?"

Karl asked her.

Grace lowered her head and whispered, "I want to be with Mom."

No matter how wise a child, she does not know as much as an adult, but she also knows that Alyssa is in very bad condition.

Karl stared at her for a while, and suddenly said very seriously: "I will take good care of her."

Grace looked at him with wide eyes.

Karl continued: "Mom hopes you can go to school."

As soon as Grace heard this, she began to narrow her mouth.

Karl asked, "Still don't want to go?"

The corners of Grace's mouth collapsed even more, and she snorted, her tone sounding a little angry: "I have to go if I don't want to."

Karl squinted and heard Grace continue to say: "Anyway, you will help her do what mom wants."

Chapter 1038

Karl was taken aback, but he didn't expect Grace to say this.

But on the other hand, Grace was right.

In his heart, Alyssa was indeed ahead of Grace.

As long as it is what Alyssa hopes, he will definitely do it.

Alyssa is unique in his heart.

Even Grace couldn't surpass Alyssa's position in his heart.

After Grace finished speaking, he saw Karl not making a sound. He wrapped his arms and said angrily: "You don't refute! You love mom more than me."

Karl didn't care about Grace's young heart, and said directly, "Just know."

"â€¦" Grace narrowed her mouth, unable to speak.

She always feels that she is not her father's biological daughter.

Seeing her unhappy look, Karl reflected for a second, feeling that it was too straightforward to say this.

So, he reached out and touched Grace's head, in a comforting tone: "But Dad still loves you."

Grace snorted and said very proudly: "It's a big deal, I will also find someone who loves me especially to get married in the future."

When Karl heard the words, his expression changed: "What is the marriage of the little girl?"

"I can get married when I grow up."

Grace's chin was raised higher, and she looked very proud.

Karl laughed angrily at her old-fashioned look: "Who said that you can get married when you grow up?"

Grace frowned: "I don't, you all grow up to get married?"

"Mom is reluctant to bear you, leaving you at home as an old girl for a lifetime, anyway, it is not that she can't afford you."

Karl said solemnly.

Grace's face changed, and she looked at Karl in horror.

At her young age, she had to bear the pressure that she shouldn't have at this age and she was getting acquainted.

Karl actually wanted to leave her at home as an old girl all her life.

How does this work! "Can't I go to kindergarten?"

Grace was about to cry.

Dad only loves her mother, even if she abuses the dog every day, she doesn't want to spend the whole life watching her parents love her.

When Grace was a child, she is now a little older, and now when she frowns, she would frown into a splayed brow, and her small face would bulge into a bun face. She looked cute and funny.

Karl wanted to laugh when he saw her like this.

But he found that the little girl Grace was too precocious, she had to be scared to be more obedient.

Therefore, he held back his smile and nodded very calmly and restrained: "Well, go back to school tomorrow."

"tomorrow?"

Grace's face collapsed, and she wanted to go up the mountain again tomorrow to dig wild vegetables or something.

She once again suspected that she was not Karl's biological daughter.

No matter how cruel to her own daughter, mother still loves her.

Mom is really kind to her.

If there is a chance, she can choose again, can she as long as her mother does not want her father.

And Alyssa didn't know what Karl did.

When she got up the next day, she was surprised and happy when she heard that Grace was going back to school for class.

She naturally hopes that Grace can play with her peers in school at this age, and hope that she will have a carefree and happier life.

Rather than staying with her every day, looking at her sickly look.

“Be obedient to the teacher when you go to school.”

Alyssa ordered Grace to arrange her clothes while telling her.

Grace is smart, and she doesn't say she is disobedient in school, but she will be more individual.

Originally Karl didn't let her help pack things up, but Alyssa insisted on doing it herself, and Karl didn't want to go against her intentions, so she had to let her clean up by herself.

Chapter 1039

Grace was sitting on the carpet, sorting out her toys.

After hearing Alyssa's words, she pouted and said, “I know.”

Her face was unhappy, and a little bit dissatisfied.

Alyssa put down the things in her hand, lowered her head slightly, stretched out her hand and gently squeezed Grace's face: “Of course Mom knows that Grace is a very good child.”

Grace glanced at her, and continued to organize her toys.

Alyssa laughed.

Grace's going back to school was arranged by Karl.

Karl did things properly, she thought Grace would go back, Karl would definitely send her off.

But unexpectedly, Karl didn't plan to send Grace back at all, but let Smith pick her up.

Naturally, Alyssa's face with Smith and Grace didn't happen.

When Smith took Grace ahead and walked out, Alyssa turned her head to look at Karl: “You wait.”

Karl walked over very cooperatively and squatted down in front of Alyssa's wheelchair.

He was very calm, and even reached out his hand to pull out some messy hair for Alyssa.

Alyssa glared at him irritably, but when she spoke, she was not as angry as before, and her tone was more helpless.

“Have you done this to your father?”

Although Grace is still young, she already understands many things. How can you let Smith pick her up?

You should go back by yourself.”

Karl thought of what Grace had said to him before, and Grace was indeed a bit sensible earlier than ordinary children.

So, he said “um”, indicating that he agreed with the first half of what Alyssa said.

Alyssa laughed angrily: “Are you still ‘huh’?”

“You are right. Grace does understand a lot of things. She already knows where she is in the house and is behind her mother.”

It was obviously nonsense, but Karl spoke very seriously.

Alyssa was a little angry, and there was nothing to do with Karl like this.

It’s not that Karl doesn’t love Grace, but that he distinguishes her very clearly. In his heart, Alyssa is the first place, followed by Grace.

He had to arrange Alyssa properly before he would consider Grace.

Alyssa really had no choice with such a Karl.

She thought of what Karl had just said, and asked a little surprised: “You said she knows her position at home and is behind me, what do you mean?”

Karl looked at Alyssa’s puzzled look, and explained very seriously: “It’s what you think it means.”

Alyssa stretched out her hand to support her forehead, and didn’t know what to say for a while.

Where did Karl do this to his father.

Upon seeing this, Karl immediately shook her hand, with concern in his tone: “What’s the matter?”

Where does it hurt?

Should I take you back to your room to rest?”

Alyssa was still a little angry at first, but she heard the concern implicit in Karl’s tone, and she couldn’t get angry.

Isn’t Karl such a person?

What’s the use of angering him?

Alyssa shook her head and said, “Let’s go out.”

â€¦! When Karl pushed Alyssa out, Grace and Smith were talking.

Smith squatted on the ground to match Grace’s height.

The two of them didn’t know what they were talking about, they smiled, and they could see that they were talking happily.

There was no trace of sadness that was about to leave on Grace’s face.

Alyssa suddenly felt that Karl and Grace’s father and daughter might be destined by God.

He is different from ordinary fathers, and she is different from ordinary daughters.

Chapter 1040

Alyssa looked aside for a while.

Karl stood behind her, leaned over to her ear and whispered, "Are you more relieved with Grace?"

He meant that even if they were not with Grace, Grace would have her own way of life.

Even though Grace is still very young, she is smart.

Smart children know how to get along with themselves.

Alyssa shook her head: "Grace is still too young."

Alyssa had never received love from her mother since she was a child, so she felt very distressed for Grace.

She can't wait to give all her love to Grace, she can't wait to give all the beautiful things to Grace.

But the reality is not as expected.

Not to mention good things for Grace, she didn't do what a mother should do well, she didn't even protect Grace well.

Destined to be an unqualified mother.

Karl didn't get up, he still leaned over and stood behind her, turning his head slightly to see her expression.

He knew what she was thinking as soon as he heard Alyssa's tone, and her expression was also a little sad.

Karl whispered: "Don't think about it."

Alyssa's heart is very soft. He used to rely on Alyssa to get a lot of benefits.

But now it seems that being too soft is not a good thing.

The closer to the person who cares, the more Alyssa will take all the responsibilities on herself.

Karl didn't want her to be like this, he just wanted her to be happy.

"Dad, mom!"

Grace looked over towards them, she called them and waited for Karl and Alyssa to pass, but did not run over like before.

She was wearing a light purple long-sleeved dress with a smile on her face, and she stood quietly beside Smith and waited for them to pass. She was cute and beautiful like a porcelain doll.

Alyssa was both soft and sad.

Karl pushed her over, Grace walked over with a smile, and took Alyssa's hand: "Mom, I want to go."

Alyssa nodded: "Yeah."

She was afraid that when she spoke, she couldn't help crying.

"I'll see you on holiday."

After Grace finished speaking, she looked up at Karl: "You have to take good care of my mother."

Karl glanced at her faintly.

Grace was originally righteous and arrogant, but when Karl saw it, she immediately persuaded him.

No way, Karl accumulates too much prestige on weekdays, and Grace can only be counseled in front of him.

Grace retracted her gaze and did not look at Karl, and smiled and said: "Mom, I will miss you anyway, I'll call you on the video!" Karl listened to her chattering with mother. Alyssa said a lot, feeling a bit subtle in her heart.

He glanced at her just now, but she didn't mean anything else, she started to persuade.

She talked to Alyssa a lot and didn't talk to him.

Karl stretched out his hand to adjust his collar, and sighed silently.

"Mom, then I will get in the car now, and remember to call me when you miss me."

Grace stepped back and got into the car.

Finally, she got into the car and waved at Alyssa when she was lying on the window, but she didn't look at Karl at all.

Alyssa watched the car leave, feeling that Karl behind her was a little quiet.

When she turned her head, she saw Karl still looking at where Grace had left.

She tilted her head and called his name: "Karl?"

"Yes."

Karl retracted his gaze calmly and looked down at Alyssa: "Go back to the room, or take a walk?"
