

Predestined 1041

Chapter 1041

After Grace went back to school, Alyssa's life became even more boring.

She stayed with Karl all day. Sometimes Karl took care of business affairs. Most of the time, he stayed with her.

Alyssa's daily life is nothing more than taking medicine, checking, sleeping—these things are repeated every day.

But the difference is that Alyssa's mentality has improved a lot, and she actually feels that her body is gradually getting better.

At least, she feels that her spirit is getting better and better.

Don't always want to sleep like before.

Karl noticed Alyssa's body change earlier than Alyssa.

Since she was discharged from the hospital, her body has been getting worse every day, especially lethargy. When she basically gets up every morning, Karl is no longer by her side.

Either he goes to the study, or sits with the papers and watched.

When Alyssa woke up this morning, she found that Karl was still beside her.

The curtains were tightly drawn, and she was not sure what time it was, and she couldn't get up.

She stared at the ceiling for a while, ready to go to sleep, but closed her eyes but couldn't sleep anymore.

When she was about to open her eyes again, Karl's voice came from her ears.

"what happened?"

Alyssa opened her eyes and found that Karl, who had closed his eyes, had already opened his eyes, and there was still a trace of sleepiness on his eyelids.

Obviously, he just woke up and felt that Alyssa was moving around, and he just subconsciously asked her about her situation.

Alyssa turned her head slightly to look at him, and asked him, "What time is it?"

Karl looked down at her.

Alyssa woke up for a while, her eyes were clear, but her hair was arched in a mess, and she looked a bit childish under her age.

But the energy is very good.

Karl's heart moved slightly, and he lowered his head and kissed Alyssa's forehead.

Then, he touched her head again before turning his head and reaching out for the watch on the bedside table.

He took a look and found that it was only half past six.

“Sleep a little longer.”

Karl retracted his hand and put Alyssa into his arms again: “It’s still early.”

Alyssa asked him: “What time is it early?”

“six thirty.”

After Karl finished speaking, he pulled the quilt again: “Sleep, don’t move.”

“I can’t sleep.”

Alyssa moved.

Karl opened his eyes, “Then get up and walk?”

Alyssa nodded.

Maybe it was because she slept too much before, and she was not interested in anything. Now that she feels better, she is willing to run outside.

Seeing her nodding, Karl turned over and sat up.

He got out of bed and walked to the closet, and asked her aloud, “What do you want to wear?”

Alyssa raised her upper body slightly and said with great interest: “Skirt.”

When Karl heard this, he frowned and looked at her: “No.”

It’s very cold in the morning and you can’t wear a skirt.

Alyssa’s body is too weak, and if she catches a cold, the consequences will be disastrous.

It’s not easy to get better, and there must be no mistakes.

Karl usually sits in the office and gives directions, but in front of Alyssa there is no mastery.

In the morning, wearing pajamas, standing in front of the closet looking for clothes for her, probably no one would believe that this was what Karl did.

Alyssa’s heart was as sweet as honey.

Can’t help but want to make a little temper: “I want to wear a skirt.”

Originally thought Karl should be responsive to her.

But on this matter, he did not give in at all: “Alyssa, do you think you are as old as Grace?”

Chapter 1042

Karl held the closet door with one hand, turned his head slightly to the side and looked back at Alyssa, the expression on his face was faint, with an indisputable meaning.

His eyes seemed to be looking at a silly child.

Alyssa snorted, and said angrily: "You just treat me as old as Grace. Anyway, I want to wear a skirt."

She was ready for Karl to ignore her and put on her thick clothes.

But Karl responded lightly, "Oh."

Then he turned around looking for clothes.

Alyssa clearly saw his shoulder tremble slightly, as if he was laughing?

"Karl, what are you laughing at!"

what's so funny! Karl took a skirt and walked over to Alyssa in a serious manner.

Alyssa looked at him sternly.

When they walked to the bed, Karl and Alyssa looked at each other for a moment, then suddenly laughed, "Daddy will dress you."

"what?

Alyssa was dumbfounded.

It took two seconds to react, Karl said this before laughing at her.

She told Karl to treat her as the same age as Grace, and he just laughed at her like that.

Alyssa turned her back: "You go, I won't wear it anymore."

Karl leaned forward to look at her face, "Are you sure you don't want to wear it?"

Alyssa was silent and ignored him.

Finally, she put on a skirt as she wished.

Karl took her out for a round before returning for breakfast.

Had breakfast and went for an inspection.

After the inspection, Clifford put the instrument in his hand and glanced at Alyssa and said, "It's good."

Alyssa nodded silently.

She herself could feel that her spirit was much better, and she naturally recovered some.

Although the effect is not very obvious, it is enough to make Alyssa happy.

She turned to look at Karl, only to find that he was still sullen and expressionless.

Feeling Alyssa looking at him, he turned his head, and when his eyes met Alyssa's, he involuntarily softened.

Karl turned his head to look behind Alyssa, and called out, "Sherly."

Sherly still followed Alyssa, and Karl seemed to trust her very much.

Sherly walked over immediately upon hearing this: "Sir."

He whispered: "Take Madam back to rest."

"Yes, Sir."

Sherly responded and lowered her head slightly to look at Alyssa, with a respectful tone: "Madam, I will take you back now."

Alyssa glanced at Karl, he didn't plan to leave, obviously he wanted to stay and talk to Clifford.

Alyssa sighed silently and nodded.

She was pushed out by Sherly.

When she arrived at the building where she and Karl lived, Alyssa said, "Go to the study, I don't want to rest now."

She was not as lethargic as before, and it was fine to go back to the room alone, so she might as well wait here for Karl's return.

Sherly took her to Karl's study.

Not long after Alyssa stayed in the study, Karl returned.

He opened the door and came in and saw Alyssa in the study, but there was no surprise on his face, as if he knew that she would be waiting for him here.

Just as Alyssa was about to speak, Karl's cell phone rang.

He stopped, took out his cell phone and took a look, then connected the line.

He answered the phone and walked towards Alyssa: "What's the matter?"

Alyssa guessed that it came from Smith in this simple and business-like tone.

Not knowing what Smith said on the other end, Karl frowned slightly.

Chapter 1043

Alyssa listened for a while, but it was a pity that Karl did not turn on the speakerphone, so she did not hear what the other person was saying for a long time.

Karl felt Alyssa's gaze, turned his head to look at her, and said to the other end: "Just go."

Not knowing what Smith said again, Karl hung up the phone after saying "um".

He hung up the phone and thought for a while.

It is rare for him to show such an expression. Alyssa couldn't help asking, "What's the matter?"

Karl looked at her: "It's okay."

She has often been with him in the study recently, and there are a lot of Alyssa's things in the study.

Karl took a blanket and put it on Alyssa's lap, pushed her to the desk, and then he sat down next to her.

When he sat down, the phone was put aside, and he was turning around to look for documents behind him.

Alyssa's gaze fell on Karl's phone and asked again: "What the hell is going on?"

Karl said without looking back, "Small things."

Alyssa snorted: "If you don't say anything, I will call Smith and ask him."

Karl paused, then turned his head to look at Alyssa.

Alyssa put one hand in front of her, holding Karl's mobile phone in the other hand, and tilted her head slightly to look at Karl, the expression on her face was a little unwilling and self-willed.

This illness changed her a lot.

From the beginning, it was unacceptable, and then the mentality gradually collapsed, and then became depressed.

After Peter said those things to her, she figured it out and walked out.

Maybe she really figured it out, she showed more and more small tempers in front of Karl.

It's like a stray cat being picked up home. At first, it was careful, but later found that the person who picked her home actually liked her, it would show itself unreservedly.

Later, he began to be pet and spoiled.

Just the way it is used to it.

Karl was very happy about this.

The bigger the temper, the better, it's better to be so tempered that only he can stand her.

In that way, she can only stay by his side and can't do without him anymore.

Karl took the file and put it on the table, and said, "There is something wrong with Grace kindergarten. I just let Smith go."

When Alyssa heard this, she glared at him with anger: "Let Smith go to everything, why don't you let Grace be called Smith's daughter?"

Karl narrowed his eyes, his face suddenly sinking.

Alyssa felt a little guilty by him, and coughed lightly and said, "Go!"

“Not going.”

Karl refused mercilessly.

Alyssa turned her head to look at him: “Then I will go?”

Saying this on phone by Smith is not a simple kindergarten business.

Mainly because Grace was fighting with other children in school, and the teacher asked the parents.

If it’s just a kindergarten business, Smith won’t make this call.

Karl knew that if he didn’t go, Alyssa would probably keep fighting with him.

He couldn’t do anything with Alyssa, and he couldn’t scold her, as long as she could get better soon, he could confess her.

“Okay, I’ll go. You stay at home and wait for me. Keep Sherly with you at all times. You must wear a thicker dress when you go out. You must eat lunch on time. I may not be able to come back for lunch. You have to take medicine after meals. â€”” Karl said a lot. Alyssa thought he was annoying halfway through hearing it, and interrupted him: “I see, you go, I will take medicine obedientlyâ€””, And Sherly will be asked for in a while.

After he left, Alyssa had nothing to do, so she continued to stay in the study.

She is ready to write a new script.

Regardless of whether it can be cured or not, she has to live every day and make each day meaningful.

She wrote a little and began to check the information.

After a while, she felt a little thirsty, so she said, “Sherly, pour me a glass of water.”

After waiting for a while, Sherly on the other side did not move at all.

Alyssa frowned slightly, and when she looked up, she found someone who shouldn’t be here.

She was surprised: “Luther?”

“Didn’t you go back to school?”

Chapter 1044

The school management that Luther attended was very strict, and he had to apply if he wanted to leave the school. He came back because of Karl’s relationship.

But he appeared here at this time.

Luther did not speak either, but looked at Alyssa with weird eyes.

Alyssa frowned, glanced aside, and saw that Sherly had fallen to the ground.

Alyssa didn’t react for a while.

She stared at Sherly on the ground for a few seconds. After confirming that it was indeed Sherly, she turned to look at Luther: "What happened to Sherly?"

Luther still didn't speak.

Seeing such a weird Luther, Alyssa had a bad guess in her heart.

But she didn't want to believe it.

Alyssa calmly said, "Luther, can you ask someone to see Sherly for me?"

She may be sick."

"She is not sick."

Luther walked towards Alyssa slowly, with an expression of indifference that she had never felt before: "She was just knocked out by me."

Alyssa was shocked and looked at Luther in disbelief.

Then he deceived herself and smiled again: "Luther, don't make such a joke, it's cold, and it's cold on the floor, you can help Sherly up."

Luther's reaction from the moment he appeared to the present all explained one thing, he was directed at Alyssa.

As for the reason, Alyssa didn't want to think deeply.

She believed that Luther was a good boy in his bones.

She grew up watching Luther.

Even a person like Karl was indifferent, when the Adams' family was in the most chaotic situation, they still wanted to settle Luther so that Luther would not be harmed.

She didn't believe that Luther would betray them.

Luther looked at Alyssa expressionlessly, without the closeness and gentleness of the past on his face: "Sister Alyssa, I am going to wrong you."

Alyssa reached out and touched her body, only to remember that she hadn't used a mobile phone for a long time.

And Luther had already reached Alyssa's.

She was sitting in a wheelchair and had nowhere to escape. She only felt a pain in the back of her neck and lost consciousness.

At the moment when she lost consciousness, Alyssa was still thinking that Karl should lose his temper again.

â€¦

Karl drove back to the city and went directly to the kindergarten where Grace was studying.

When he arrived, Smith was waiting for him at the door of the kindergarten.

Grace was still short, and Karl looked out of the car window, only to see half of her across Smith's body.

After opening the door and getting out of the car, he saw Grace who was standing next to Smith.

When Grace saw Karl, she moved behind Smith with some guilty conscience.

Karl glanced at her: "You haven't been apart for a few days, even you made your dad come here?"

There was no expression on Karl's face, Grace blinked, naturally she didn't know if Karl was angry.

But he also took the initiative to speak to her, thinking that he was not so angry.

Grace clasped his hands in front of him, walked a short walk forward, and cried out obediently, "Dad."

Karl glanced at her, didn't speak any more, and walked inside.

Smith was about to follow up, and found that Grace hadn't followed him where she was, so he looked back at her: "Grace, go in."

Grace looked at him, and then at Karl who walked forward.

Stepping on her short legs, she trots to the side of Karl, tentatively reaching out to pull his sleeves.

As early as when she ran to this side, Karl knew.

After she grabbed Karl's sleeve, she tilted her head to look at him again, as if she was a little wondering why he didn't shake her hand away.

Chapter 1045

Karl stopped and slightly raised his hand to reach Grace.

Grace's eyes lit up all of a sudden, stretched out to hold Karl's hand, and screamed, "Dad!"

Karl raised his eyebrows and took a close look at Grace.

The liveliness of this ghost and spirit, don't know who to follow.

Grace was led by Karl and bounced inside.

After two steps, she said as if thinking of something: "Dad, I didn't hit him on purpose."

When he called Smith before, he had already made the matter clear.

The child who was beaten by Grace had a dirty mouth.

It is said that children simply do not have malice, but when a child speaks malicious words, at least at that moment, he is really full of malice.

At the age of four or five, she already knows a lot.

When Grace spoke, her expression was still a little nervous.

Karl asked calmly, "Why is that?"

Grace said angrily: "He hates me."

"Oh?"

Karl turned his head calmly and looked at Grace: "Then if someone else thinks you hate them, can they beat you?"

Grace didn't react a little, and was stunned for a moment, before she narrowed her mouth and said, "He said mom!" Karl's eyes sank: "What did he say about mommy?"

Grace's mouth was squashed, and her face stubbornly strained, without speaking.

Karl stared at her for two seconds, then bent over and hugged her.

Grace looked at Karl in surprise.

Karl stroked the fluff on Grace's forehead, and said quietly, "Is the bodyguard I sent you a decoration?"

Grace: "Huh?"

Karl met her eyes with an extremely serious expression: "Grace, you have to remember that you should not do it yourself if you are not a last resort. Doing it yourself means that there is a possibility of injury, and you should never put yourself in danger."

Grace tilted her head, indicating that she did not understand.

Karl didn't expect her to understand, and only said, "If you have something to do, ask a bodyguard."

Grace asked, "Uncle Bodyguard can't handle it?"

Karl looked at her blankly, almost writing "Am I here?" on his face.

Grace smiled suddenly, hugging Karl's neck, and kissing him on the cheek: "Dad, I love you the most!"

Grace straightened the corners of her mouth patiently, and then said, "Slobber."

She blinked her eyes innocently, and reached out to wipe off the saliva she had kissed.

! In the office, the teacher, the kid who was beaten and the kid's parents had arrived early.

When Karl held Grace in his arms, the people inside were startled.

When Grace goes to kindergarten, all the formalities are handled all the time.

Although everyone knew that Karl had a very capable assistant, there were still a few people who knew Smith.

But they all knew Karl's face.

The people inside looked at Karl together, and no one dared to speak for a while.

Karl put Grace on the ground and glanced up at the kid who had been beaten by Grace.

The little boy was quite fat and he didn't seem to be injured in any way.

Then, he looked at the teacher, his voice indifferent: "Hello, I am Grace's father."

"Adam! Mr. Adams!" The teacher was completely dumbfounded, looking at Karl and then at the parent of another child, he couldn't even speak clearly.

Karl frowned slightly, obviously a little impatient, but still patiently said, "You asked me to come."

Chapter 1046

Karl's tone sounded very calm, without the slightest emotion, but it made people chill.

"It's like this, Mr. Adams!" The teacher was trembling, and he was a little unclear: "Child Grace had a little rub-rubbing with other children!" Karl just swept coldly. She glanced at her: "Since you are not clear, I will let my daughter speak."

After he finished speaking, he turned his head to look at Grace and motioned to her.

Everyone's eyes fell on Grace.

Although being watched by so many people, Grace was not feeling stage fright.

She had a pair of small hands behind her, and looked at the little boy who was beaten by her with a small face: "He said bad things about Mom. I told him not to say it. If he doesn't listen, I will teach him a lesson."

A lesson?

Who learned it all from?

Karl looked down at her, but said nothing in front of so many people.

After all, Alyssa said that the little girl also wants face.

Not to mention the precocious little girl like Grace.

Grace didn't know where she was wrong, she stared at Karl with a pair of big eyes.

Standing behind Karl, Smith reached out and touched the sweat on his forehead.

This little progeny really dare to say.

When the little boy's parents saw Karl, they did not dare to speak.

At this moment, after hearing Grace's words, he slapped his son on the head: "Hurry up and apologize."

As he said, he turned his head to look at Karl, hoping that Karl would not care about a child.

However, Karl did not respond.

The little boy glanced at Karl, tears in his eyes: "I'm sorry!" Karl glanced at him: "I asked you to apologize to me?"

The little boy burst into tears at once.

The little boy's parents knew, and pulled him to Grace and said, "Apologize to your classmate!"

“I’m sorry” I won’t say it anymore” The little boy cried and couldn’t breathe.

Although Grace was a little disgusted with him crying so much tears and nose flowed together, but because of his sincere apology, she decided to forgive him.

Grace tilted her head and said, “I forgive you.”

After speaking, she dug in her pocket, and finally took out a stick and lollipop.

She handed the lollipop to the little boy: “I hit you too, give you candy.”

The little boy stretched out half of his hand and then retracted, with tears on his face, carefully peeking at Karl.

This uncle is too scary.

Karl turned his head, not looking at the two children.

The little boy then took the lollipop.

Although Karl felt that the teacher’s handling ability was poor, he still handled the matter anyway.

That little girl Grace handled it herself, and it didn’t make people bother.

very good.

When he was out of kindergarten, Karl was in a good mood.

He remembered what Grace had said before, “Teach him a lesson”, and turned to look at Grace: “Who taught you the words “Teach him a lesson”?”

Grace said “Ah”, her big eyes looked very innocent: “Nobody.”

Karl raised his eyebrows and asked Smith, who was walking aside, “Did you take her to see Peter?”

Naturally, only Peter is the only one who speaks such a bandit term.

When Grace heard him mention Peter, she walked obediently with her head buried in a guilty mind, and stopped speaking.

Seeing this, Karl tried to reach out and pat her head, but the phone rang at this moment.

Few people can call his phone directly.

Karl frowned, and after taking out his mobile phone and seeing the caller ID on it, his face sank suddenly.

Chapter 1047

Smith noticed that Karl’s expression was wrong, and pulled Grace over.

Grace looked at Smith, and Smith gave her a “silence” gesture.

The call came from Sherly.

Karl answered the phone with a stern face.

Sherly probably also knew that what she said next would make Karl angry, and she breathed a little, then said, "The young lady is gone."

Karl hadn't spoken yet, but his body exuded an extremely cold and severe aura.

But Grace, who was walking behind him, shrank back to Smith almost immediately.

Smith comfortably reached out and touched Grace's head.

The next moment, Karl uttered in a hurry, with a gloomy voice: "What does 'gone' mean?"

After listening to Sherly's next words, Karl's hand holding the phone tightened fiercely, with blue veins protruding from the back of his hand, as if he could crush the phone in the next second.

Smith knew very well in his heart that except for Alyssa, there was almost nothing to make Karl experience such a big mood swing.

Reminiscing about the phrase "What does it mean to be gone" that Karl said just now, Smith vaguely guessed.

â€”â€”Alyssa is gone.

Why did the good people disappear?

Smith sighed slightly, and then before he found Alyssa, the entire Rostenvel would be restless.

Karl would definitely turn Rostenvel upside down, and he would find Alyssa.

It's okay if I find it out, if I can't find itâ€” Smith stretched out his hand and pressed his brow, decided not to think about what Karl would do if he could not find Alyssa.

At this time, Karl had hung up the phone.

He turned his head to look at Smith. Smith was already waiting to listen to his instructions, but he only said, "Send Grace back."

Smith was stunned for a while, and repeated: "Send Grace back?"

Karl gave him a cold look.

Smith stopped talking, and took Grace to the parking lot.

Grace didn't know that Alyssa was gone. When she got in the car, she asked Smith: "What happened to Dad?"

"No idea?"

Smith gave Grace a surprised look.

Grace sat on the children's chair in the back row and said old-fashioned, "Dad always likes to be angry."

Smith dumbly laughed and said, "It's nothing."

He was actually a little surprised in his heart, he could definitely see that Alyssa missing, but why didn't Karl tell him to find her, instead let him send Grace home?

Although Karl treats Grace well, he is not careful.

Sometimes I wonder if Karl is Grace's biological father.

Of course, this kind of thought was just thinking about it. He absolutely believed that Grace was Karl's biological daughter.

Smith sent Grace home and did not leave, waiting for news from Karl.

But he waited left and right, did not wait for Karl's call.

He couldn't help but called Karl. When he was about to hang up, Karl answered the phone: "What's the matter?"

Smith: "It's okay, just" "Take care of Grace."

Karl only dropped such a sentence and hung up the phone again.

Smith hung up the phone with a blank expression. He still doesn't know if Alyssa is missing or what happened.

Karl on the other side hung up the phone and threw it aside.

Continue driving blankly.

He has never looked at people before.

But Luther used facts to tell him that he did miss it.

Sherly is a fighter, and most people can't get close.

But Luther's identity was there, which made her relax her guard.

Chapter 1048

Alyssa woke up groggy.

She opened her eyelids slightly and felt pain in the back of her neck.

She closed her eyes again, stretched out her hand and rubbed the stamina, and then slowly opened her eyes again.

In the eyes is the white ceiling.

"Woke up."

Luther's voice came from the side.

Alyssa looked over and saw Luther sitting in front of the bed.

Luther was still wearing the clothes he had used before, with a touch of fatigue in his expression. He probably had been sitting by the bed waiting for her to wake up.

Alyssa looked around.

The room is strange and quiet.

She didn't know where she was.

Luther's voice sounded again: "Thirsty?"

Alyssa didn't look back at him, but just stared at the ceiling, sighing as she spoke: "Luther, can you send me back?"

Your cousin will go crazy knowing that I am missing."

If Sherly had only been knocked out by Luther, she would have woken up by now, and Karl would definitely know that she was missing.

She could imagine how angry Karl would become when he knew she was gone.

It is even possible to lose his mind.

Do something irrational.

Alyssa didn't know why Luther did this.

Even though she had been knocked out by Luther, she still didn't want to associate Luther in a bad direction.

She didn't mention the previous matter, just asked Luther to send her back.

If Luther can send her back now, she can assume that nothing has happened.

She watched him grow up, and she believed in him in her heart.

Luther didn't speak, but turned around and poured a glass of water.

Then he walked to the bed and helped Alyssa up to feed her water.

Alyssa turned her head aside: "I'm not thirsty."

Although the tone was still the same as usual, there was resistance in her expression.

Luther did not force her either.

He slowly put the cup aside, and then said slowly: "Sister Alyssa, do you think that if I send you back now, he will let me go?"

Luther has followed Karl since he was a child.

Although he was separated from Karl for a long time later, he knew exactly what Karl was.

Karl has been a decisive person for a few years.

Because of his mother, it is difficult for him to trust anyone anymore.

He cares about Alyssa so much, and Luther took Alyssa away. It is conceivable that he will never trust Luther again.

Luther also understood this in his heart.

After Alyssa heard what he said, she didn't know what to say for a while.

Although Karl's temperament is hard to guess, everyone close to him knows what kind of person he is.

"Sister Alyssa, from the moment I appeared in the resort, all this was destined to be irreversible."

Luther sat down again and asked her, "Are you hungry?"

Alyssa turned her head aside, not looking at him.

"You didn't you ask me why I brought you out?"

Upon seeing this, Luther asked again.

Alyssa was disappointed with Luther in her heart.

Not for herself, but disappointed for Karl.

How kindly Karl treated Luther.

"Do you want Karl that way?

Don't you know what kind of person he is?

If you have something you can't figure out, can't you talk to him in person?"

Alyssa knew that Luther was a sensible child.

He must have done this because of something he couldn't figure out but couldn't speak.

Chapter 1049

In Alyssa's questioning voice, Luther's complexion gradually turned pale.

Seeing him like this, Alyssa couldn't bear to say no matter how cruelly questioned.

Luther stopped making a sound for a long time, and stood motionless.

Seeing this, Alyssa whispered to him, "Luther?"

Luther suddenly raised his head, eyes scarlet: "Sister Alyssa, you said you want me to talk with him face to face?"

Alyssa thought he had figured it out, and nodded: "Yeah."

Unexpectedly, Luther said in the next sentence: "Then he drove Mom crazy, and when he sent her to the mental hospital, did he talk to me?"

Speaking of the past, Luther's voice was a little hoarse.

Alyssa opened her eyes wide, "Who did you hear it from?"

Luther stared at her without blinking, as if confirming the thoughts in his heart, he slowly asked, "You know, don't you?"

Alyssa really knows the whole story.

At that time, she felt that she didn't tell Luther about the dirty things in the Adams' family, it was for Luther's good.

But at this time, being questioned by Luther in this way, she was not sure whether she and Karl's actions were right or wrong.

"you know too."

This time, Luther was talking in declarative sentences.

His expression became a little sad, mixed with disappointment.

Facing Luther like this, Alyssa couldn't say a word of denial.

She could not lie to Luther.

I can't say that everything is for his good.

The original intention of Karl was indeed for Luther's good.

But look at Luther in front of her, how does he feel?

"The person I trust and admire the most has driven my biological mother crazy."

Luther's eyes were full of pain: "You have kept it from me for so many years. If don't know it now, are you trying to keep it from me for a lifetime?"

Alyssa moved her lips, but could not speak.

It happened too suddenly, and Luther at this time was obviously not calm at all. If she spoke for Karl, it would only make Luther more angry.

Listening to Luther's tone, he even blamed Alyssa.

Alyssa sighed slightly.

The matter was over, and she had nothing to say.

It could be seen that Luther didn't want to hurt her, he just wanted to force Karl to explain clearly about his mother Lina.

Luther hadn't planned to hear anything from Alyssa, but when he saw that she didn't speak, he said to her: "Sister Alyssa, I have always liked you very much. No matter what happens between me and my cousin, you as my sister are all in my heart. I won't embarrass you. You can live here for a while with peace of mind."

Luther left after speaking.

Stay at ease?

Alyssa couldn't help sighing again.

Karl was probably going crazy at this time, how could she live with peace of mind?

After hearing Luther's door closing, Alyssa tried to move.

Having been taking Clifford's medicine for this period of time, Alyssa's spirit has improved a lot, and she feels that her strength is much greater than before.

She moved on the bed, and fell to the ground accidentally with a "boom" sound.

The movement was a bit loud, and Alyssa glanced at the door with some worry.

The next moment, the door was pushed open again from the outside.

Luther came in carrying the takeaway.

He glanced at Alyssa who fell to the ground without any reaction, as if he hadn't seen it.

Put the takeaway on the table, and while unpacking the takeaway, he said to Alyssa, "I bought what you like."

Chapter 1050

After Luther slowly dismantled all the takeaways and put them on the table, he turned around to help Alyssa.

When Alyssa was lifted up by him, she almost had to rely on his strength to stand up.

When she took advantage of the strength to get up, she subconsciously forced her legs.

Although she has no sensation in her lower body, it is the body's instinct to use force when she gets up.

She was supported by Luther to the dining table with his eyes down, so she could clearly see her feet move.

Alyssa couldn't help but stared, even suspecting that she had read it wrong. She moved her legs secretly, and found that there was a slight movement.

For such a long time, most of Alyssa's body had not been conscious, and she felt that she had misread this slight shaking.

She tried again.

She opened her eyes wide this time, staring at her legs and feet, and finally confirmed that her legs were really shaking.

For an instant, there was a burst of ecstasy in Alyssa's heart.

Did Clifford's medicine work?

So her legs began to feel the sensation.

Although it is so small, it is enough to make Alyssa happy.

If Karl knew that her legs felt a little bit, he would definitely be happier than her.

At this moment, Alyssa was supported by Luther and sat on a chair.

Alyssa raised her eyes to look at Luther, the smile on her face faded again.

But Karl should be looking for her everywhere now.

Luther pushed the food in front of her and said, "Eat it."

Alyssa found that her legs felt a little bit, and her mood was a little lighter than before.

If Karl finds him, there would definitely be a big fight between the two.

And she should eat well now. If Karl came over and saw her well, he might not be so angry.

Thinking of this, Alyssa bowed her head and started eating.

Seeing Alyssa eating quietly, Luther said with a complicated expression: "Sister Alyssa, are you afraid that I will add medicine to the food?"

Alyssa swallowed the food in her mouth, then looked up at him and said, "Not afraid."

Her eyes were very sincere and there was no trace of lying.

She thought that way in her heart, and she believed that Luther would really not hurt her.

After hearing her words, Luther's expression became more complicated, and a trace of regret gradually emerged.

It's just that Alyssa had already lowered her head and continued to eat, and did not pay attention to Luther's expression.

Luther bought all Alyssa's favorite dishes, and the taste was not bad. Alyssa herself was a little hungry and ate a lot.

Just when she was full and ready to put the chopsticks, she felt a little dizzy in her head.

Alyssa stretched out her hand and pressed her temple, still a little confused, why did she start to feel dizzy?

She rubbed her temples and saw Luther still sitting without touching the food in front of her, she looked at him with some doubts.

She asked Luther: "Why don't you eat?"

Luther pursed his lips, as if he didn't dare to look her in the eyes directly, and said three words in a low voice: "I'm sorry."

Alyssa didn't understand why Luther suddenly said sorry.

But the next moment, she felt her dizziness more obvious.

"Youâ€¦ in the dishâ€¦!" Alyssa was so dizzy that there was already a ghost in front of her eyes. She lay down on the table and said the next half sentence: "What's left?"

“Cousin will definitely come back soon, so I can only off you first.”
