Chapter 251

The voice of the servant drew others over.

Alyssa was a little dazed by what was happening in front of her, watching everyone surrounded by Mr. Adams, she raised her foot and ran down.

Lina also walked over looking for a sound: "Dad! What's wrong with you, Dad?"

She ran two steps down the stairs, and saw Karl and Trevor hurriedly walking towards this side.

As if telepathically, Karl raised his head and glanced in her direction.

He frowned slightly, as if he wanted to say something, but in the end he just glanced at her faintly and said nothing.

This look is very cold.

Alyssa walked over and knelt on the ground and shouted, "Grandpa?"

Elder Adams fell down from such a high staircase and shed so much blood, plus he was old, no one dared to move him casually.

Elder Adams didn't react at all, and he passed out.

The family doctor came over quickly, dealt with him, and was taken to the hospital by car.

The group followed to the hospital.

When he was leaving, Trevor turned his head and glanced at the servant who first discovered that Mr. Adams had fallen down: "You will follow along."

Fortunately, there is a private hospital under Adams' family that can directly perform operations on Mr. Adams.

"It is preliminarily determined that there are intracranial hemorrhage and multiple fractures on the body. The situation is not optimistic. Now surgery is required.

The doctor's words made everyone's complexion suddenly change, and the atmosphere became stagnant.

The door of the operating room was closed, and everyone was waiting outside.

Alyssa glanced at Karl next to her, and seeing him with a cold face, she reached out and took his hand.

However, Karl did not shake her hand back as usual, nor looked back at her.

At this time, Trevor's voice sounded from the deadly corridor.

"Who first discovered the old man?" His voice was solemn.

Alyssa looked over after hearing the sound.

"It's me." The answer was a servant who followed.

The servant seemed to be afraid that Trevor would blame her on this matter. Her expression was extremely ugly, and her voice was full of panic.

As if suddenly remembering something, she stretched out her finger to Alyssa: "I only passed by hearing the young lady's voice. When I passed by, the old gentleman had already fallen!"

When Trevor heard this, he looked at Alyssa: "Alyssa, tell me, what's the matter?"

As soon as he said this, everyone's eyes shifted to Alyssa.

An unknown premonition rose in Alyssa's heart.

Do they think she pushed Mr. Adams down the stairs?

She calmed her mind and said, "A servant came to call me before, saying that grandpa asked me to come over. There was no one in his room when I was there. I heard movement at the top of the stairs. When I walked over, Grandpa fell down."

Hearing this, Trevor asked calmly: "Which servant passed the word?"

Alyssa shook her head: "don't know, the servant called me from outside the room."

When Trevor heard this, he frowned and watched what Alyssa was about to say. Karl walked up and blocked Alyssa's body, and said with a cold face, "You are Suspecting, Alyssa pushed Grandpa down?"

Trevor raised his head and looked over: "The old man has something like this at home, of course the relevant people have to question it."

Karl sneered disapprovingly: "Everyone can see that Grandpa likes Alyssa very much. Why does she have to do this to him?"

"Of course she has a reason to do such a thing!"

Anya's voice suddenly rang.

When everyone turned their heads, they saw Anya and Gerald and the party hurriedly walking towards this side.

It was behind them that the old man had fallen down the stairs and hurried over.

Trevor sternly scolded Anya: "Anya, do you know what you're talking about?"

"Of course I know what I'm talking about!"

As Anya said, she turned her head to look at Alyssa, and sneered her lips: "Alyssa, you hated grandfather's sending a woman to third brother's villa, so you were hurt by grandfather's hands, right?"

Alyssa's face changed slightly, and she looked at Anya in disbelief, "I don't have one."

"No?" Anya's lips smiled deeper: "In the past two days, the whole Adams' family has a different surname. Who else besides you might have? Who else has the heart to attack an old man? You said you didn't? Do I believe you?"

When Alyssa heard this, her heart tightened.

Intuitively, she felt that Karl would believe her.

But that is just intuition.

She couldn't help turning her head to look at Karl.

Karl slowly drew his hand out of hers, and Alyssa stared at him heavily, "Do you really hate Grandpa because of that incident?"

There was a "buzz" in Alyssa's mind.

Is Karl suspecting her?

He did not simply believe her directly, but asked her questioningly.

Alyssa felt a chill rushing in from the soles of her feet, and then flowing to her limbs.

She still shook her head as before, denying: "I don't have one."

Karl only glanced at her, then looked away, and continued to ask in a cold voice, "Do you have an alibi? Was there anyone beside you at that time?"

Alyssa stepped back and looked at Karl with a strange look: "Karl, what do you mean? You now believe that I harmed grandfather, so have you started interrogating me?"

No emotion could be heard in Karl's voice: "Answer my question."

The word "inscription" in his ending hadn't silenced, Alyssa said loudly, "I won't answer!"

"I didn't harm Grandpa, why should I accept your interrogation!"

If at this time, the person asking her these questions was Trevor, Alyssa would not be so resistant.

She didn't expect that Karl's first reaction was to question her.

Trevor stood up, and patted Karl on the shoulder: "Karl, speak well, Alyssa is still pregnant. Now the old man is still in the operating room, and the matter is still inconclusive. Everyone is suspicious. , But Alyssa is your wife, you shouldn't doubt her like this."

Trevor's words seemed to make sense at first glance, but after recollecting it twice, she felt that something was wrong.

Just now, it was clear that Trevor first asked who met Mr. Adams first, and now he ran out to be a peacemaker, saying that this matter has not been finalized!

After listening to Trevor's words, Anya looked unconvinced: "Uncle, Grandpa has nothing to do with this woman Alyssa!"

"Anya, don't make any noise, the old man is still in the operating room, we will deal with it again when he has the operation, but!"

Trevor paused when he said that, his eyes swept over the faces of the people present, and finally fell on Alyssa's face: "No one can leave without my permission."

Chapter 252

If you can't leave without authorization, your personal freedom is already restricted in disguise.

Alyssa did not refute.

She is now very worried about Mr. Adams.

Although the old man sent a woman to Karl's villa before, it did make Alyssa feel bad about him, but before the old man said that to her, she no longer felt bad about him.

Moreover, Karl must be very sad.

Thinking of Karl, Alyssa's complexion couldn't help but cool down.

The corridor was quiet again.

Although Anya was not satisfied with Trevor's actions, she did not dare to say anything.

After all, now that Mr. Adams is lying in the operating room, his life or death is uncertain, and the person with the most weight in the Adams' family is Trevor.

Suddenly, Karl said very calmly at this moment: "Let's call the police."

His words caught everyone's attention.

Alyssa turned her head, only to see Karl's handsome and perfect profile face and slightly drooping eyes.

He looked calm, but the cold breath exuding from him proved his mood at this time.

Immediately afterward, he spoke again: "Since you suspect that Grandpa fell down the stairs, it was not an accident but man-made, then call the police and let the police find out.

He said this to Trevor.

Alyssa clearly saw that the expression on Trevor's face was a little surprised, as if he was very surprised by Karl's proposal.

This made Alyssa's heart confused.

If Trevor really suspects that Mr. Adams's affairs were man-made, the alarm should be considered a normal procedure.

Trevor pondered for a moment, and said, "Okay, then call the police."

Trevor asked to call the police, but because it was the first day of the new year, the police didn't come out so quickly, and the police only asked them to protect the scene.

And Alyssa and her party were waiting for Father Adams directly in the hospital.

Not long after Alyssa got up, she came to the hospital with him before she had time to eat.

Sitting down and waiting for Mr. Adams' operation to be over, she felt a little hungry.

However, in this case, even if she is a little hungry, she can only bear it.

The operation that Elder Adams had to go through could not be finished in a short while, and Alyssa didn't know how long she had to bear.

Suddenly, Smith showed up in the corridor with someone.

He walked straight towards Karl, and when he passed Trevor, he slightly nodded to say hello.

Smith stood in front of Karl: "Sir."

Karl glanced at Alyssa, and said to Smith: "Take the young lady home."

Alyssa turned her head to look at Karl.

Why take her back.

"I want to wait here for Grandpa to wake up." If Grandpa wakes up, he will probably be able to clear the suspicion.

Almost immediately, Karl said in a cold voice, "You look anxious when you are here,"

"Karl!"

"Don't think that you can do whatever you want with your status as the young lady. You are still suspected of pushing grandpa downstairs. I let Smith take you back to the old house to watch you and not let you run away."

Alyssa could hardly believe that these words were made by Karl.

But Karl's tone was cold, and it didn't seem to be a joke at all.

He didn't take a look at Alyssa at all, and directly told Smith: "Smith, didn't you hear me? Take the young lady to the old house and watch her!"

"Madam, please." Smith walked to Alyssa and nodded slightly, quite respectful.

Alyssa turned a pale face, took a deep look at Karl, and left with Smith.

She never thought that she would be suspected by the Adams' family, and the reason for the doubt was so absurd.

Even Karl had said that, and it didn't make sense for her to stay here.

After leaving the hospital, she took the car with Smith.

While starting the car, Smith said, "Madam, the food in the back sitting box, Sir asked me to bring you."

Alyssa was taken aback for a while, glanced at the location beside her, and she saw a box with the logo of the Best Day Club on it. It was clear that Smith brought her from Best Day.

"When did Karl call you?" After arriving at the hospital, she was standing next to Karl, and she didn't see who Karl called.

Smith thought for a while and said, "An hour ago."

Alyssa thought about it for a while. An hour ago, that was probably when he was still in the Adams' Old House.

Was Karl's previous reaction really pretending?

Alyssa's voice could not hide her joy: "He called you at that moment, and let him tell you clearly, let you bring something to eat to the hospital to pick me up?"

Smith explained: "No, I know the taste of Boss. The things he asked me to bring are not what he likes to eat."

Karl instructed him to bring this food over and let him pick up Alyssa. Naturally, he brought them for Alyssa.

The joy on Alyssa's face faded suddenly, without speaking.

She opened the box and found that it was filled with her favorite things, but she had no appetite.

But even if she doesn't eat it, the baby in her stomach will eat not it too.

She still didn't believe that Karl would doubt her because of Trevor and Anya's short words.

In the past few days, she and Mr. Adams have got along so well, she has absolutely no motive to harm him.

He said those things in the hospital just now, there must be other reasons!

Thinking this way, Alyssa felt much better.

While driving Smith noticed Alyssa in the rearview mirror.

Seeing her starting to eat, he breathed a sigh of relief.

In fact, he still didn't understand what was going on. At that time, Karl called him and didn't mention anything other than ordering him to take food and pick up Alyssa.

Just now in the hospital, Karl's tone of speaking to Alyssa also made him realize that things were not simple, and made him vaguely guessed.

Seeing that Alyssa was almost eating, he asked out aloud: "Young lady, why did Boss say that you pushed Mr. Adams downstairs?"

Alyssa let out a long sigh of relief and said, "I can't tell, but I didn't push him."

â€¦

Everyone in the Adams' family went to the hospital.

Alyssa was sent back to the old house with Smith, with only servants along the way.

She remembered what Anya had said before.

Anya was right, she was the only person from outside in the Adams' family.

Therefore, they suspected that she was right.

She did not go back to the room directly, but went to the place where Old man fell.

Smith listened to Karl's words into her ears and looked at her firmly without leaving a step.

The police had already come to collect evidence and blocked the scene and left, but there was almost no useful information on the scene.

Alyssa walked up the stairs where Mr. Adams fell, carefully recalling the scene at that time.

Now that Adams' family suspects her, that can only show that this was originally a game.

A plot that deliberately framed her.

Chapter 253

And who is the person who set up the game?

What is the purpose?

Is that from the Adams' family?

If it is from the Adams' family, how did he/she use Mr. Adams as an introduction to attract Alyssa into the game?

Why is it on a day like New Year's Day?

While thinking about these questions, Alyssa walked to Father Adams's room.

Just the day before yesterday, she had been sitting on the sofa with Elder Adams and watching TV. Elder Adams asked her and Karl to be on good terms.

But only a day later, Mr. Adams was already dying in the operating room.

Alyssa saw it in her heart.

She turned and walked out: "Let's go."

Smith still followed her behind.

She returned to the room and stayed outside the door.

When the door was about to close, she turned to Smith and said, "Thank you."

After all, it was the first day of the new year, and Karl even called out Smith.

"The young lady is polite, and Boss can trust me to let me come out to do things for him at this time." Smith nodded slightly, still showing a cautious and steady appearance.

Alyssa didn't say anything any more, holding the corner of her mouth and smiling, then entered the room.

â€¦

She waited till it got dark and no one came back.

Alyssa took her cell phone and wanted to call Karl to ask about the situation.

Although she thought in her heart that the words Karl had said to her before might not come from him with sincerity, she still didn't dare to fight.

She didn't want to hear Karl's cold voice.

When she had the worst time at Hunt's house before, she didn't feel any sadness.

Now that she only heard Karl talking to her coldly, she would feel sad.

She was really accustomed to Karl.

Knock!

There was a knock on the door suddenly.

Alyssa was overjoyed, thinking that Karl was back, and quickly got up to open the door.

When the door opened, Alyssa could see the visitor clearly, the original joy disappeared completely.

It was not Karl who stood outside the door, but the servant who brought her food.

Alyssa asked the servant: "Sir hasn't come back yet?"

The servant just shook his head dumbly, put down the tray and turned around.

When she just opened the door, she noticed that she was still being guarded at the door with a few bodyguards.

She opened the door again and asked Smith: "Did Karl call you to say anything?"

"No." Smith lowered his head, not looking at Alyssa's disappointed expression.

In the end, she still did not call Karl.

She didn't want to sleep, so she took a blanket and rested on the sofa.

After sleeping in a daze, she felt someone moving in the room.

Although the walking person had reduced the sound of footsteps as much as possible, Alyssa still heard it keenly, and woke up very alertly.

With eyes open, Karl's tall and straight figure caught the eye.

At this moment, Karl leaned forward slightly towards her, raising one arm slightly, not knowing what to do.

Alyssa sat upright: "You are back."

Karl stood up straight and looked at her blankly, "Had dinner?"

"Yeah." Alyssa nodded obediently, and asked him: "Where is Grandpa?"

She silenced her voice at this point.

Karl's face was cold: "The operation has been completed, but he has not been out of the dangerous period. He may wake up within 48 hours, or may not wake up again."

Alyssa raised her head fiercely to look at Karl, just to meet his cold eyes.

She explained in a panic: "I didn't push Grandpa."

The room became quiet.

Karl looked at her and did not speak, as if he was thinking about the truthfulness of her words.

She always felt that she was a very strong person.

However, in front of Karl, she had already removed her armor.

His brief silence was enough to stab her.

However, his next words made Alyssa even more colder, like an ice cellar.

"The police will investigate this matter."

Even if he was cold without any emotions, Karl's voice was still nice.

Alyssa clenched her hands and said dumbly, "Karl, I don't believe what you are saying. I will only give you a chance to tell the truth once."

She didn't believe this was Karl's true words.

She looked up at Karl, and decided to believe in her own heart and Karl as well.

However, Karl ignored her so-called trust.

He curled his lips and sneered: "Alyssa, I'm telling the truth, do you really think you are a kind and good person? If you are really a kind and good person, you wouldn't let the reporter go. Hunt's factory was photographed secretly, almost bankrupted Hunt's."

After he finished speaking, he fixedly looked at Alyssa, as if watching her reaction.

Alyssa just pressed her lips tightly and looked at Karl in front of her with cold eyes.

Karl seemed to be irritated by her calm reaction. He leaned closer to her, with a colder tone: "You people in Hunt's family, you did not use any means to deal with them, let alone my grandfather, an old man with a foreign surname."

"I'm not a woman like Isabel, how could I do that to grandpa because of Mattie's affairs!"

Before Alyssa could finish her words, she was interrupted by Karl: "Okay, don't call him grandpa, you are not qualified."

"Karl!" Alyssa "brushed" and stood up from the sofa, and said loudly, "Is your brain eaten by a dog? This is obviously someone who wants to frame me. Rather than going to find the real murderer, but you are slandering me here?"

Karl squinted his eyes slightly, and reached out to pinch Alyssa's chin. There was a bitter chill in his black eyes. He warned, "Alyssa, pay attention to your words, all of us have the surname Adams. How could our Adams' family do such a thing?"

Alyssa's chin was pinched by him, but she didn't make a dent, staring at Karl coldly, and gritted her teeth and said: "How can't it be! I think you have nothing good at Adams' family, especially you!"

Karl's face was frighteningly cold.

Alyssa was a little scared at first.

But at this time, she can't show weakness.

"Why? Want to beat me? Come on, it's best to kill your seed too. If you have to blame me and send me to jail, you don't have to wait for me to give birth to the child. As long as the verdict comes, I can go directly to prison, which makes you more satisfied."

Alyssa looked at Karl's constantly changing expression, feeling very happy.

Karl smiled back and said, "Alyssa, do you know what you are talking about?"

"Of course I know." Alyssa sneered: "Your attitude now is very clear, you just believe that I pushed Grandpa down. If you want to sue me, what else can I do besides restraining my hands?"

If even Karl didn't believe her, Adams had to sue her and send her to jail, she really couldn't match this family.

Chapter 254

After Alyssa finished speaking, she fixedly looked at Karl.

Karl's expression was gloomy and terrifying, like an angry lion, he might rush up to bite her at any time.

When she said these words, there was anger and a trace of temptation.

She couldn't convince herself that Karl would suddenly become so unreasonable.

After a long while, the expression on his face eased a bit, and he slowly said, "Since you also know that you can't beat the Adams' family, then be safe and obedient."

His tone was extremely cold, his words were clear, but he was chilly.

Alyssa's pupils shrank slightly, before she could speak, Karl spoke again.

"As for the child? You'd better not make any crooked ideas." Karl tugged at the corner of his mouth, showing a sullen smile, and turned away.

Alyssa sat on the sofa and watched Karl out.

She stared at the closed door for half a second before leaning back in a discouraged manner and leaning on the sofa.

This day was really exciting.

Leaning down on the sofa was uncomfortable, Alyssa simply lay flat on the sofa, struggling with what happened today.

In the morning when she was half asleep and half awake, a servant came to call her, saying that Grandpa asked her to visit him.

Then she went to find Mr. Adams, but Mr. Adams was not in the room. She heard the movement and went to the top of the stairs. Mr. Adams fell off the stairs.

Immediately after he was sent to the hospital, Mr. Adams was in the operating room and Trevor accountable to the servant.

The servant pointed out that it was only after hearing her voice that he went out and found that Elder Adams fell. Karl questioned Trevor at this time, and Anya jumped out and said why Alyssa was harmful to Grandpa!

The reason Anya said was so funny, how could she kill Grandpa because of Mattie.

A normal person knows that this reason is not justified.

However, Karl believed Anya's words, and since he came back at night, every sentence contained questions about her.

Before anyone else said anything, Karl directly asked the police to investigate the matter, even suspecting her both inside and out.

This is obviously a bit suspicious.

Karl seemed to deliberately take this matter to her.

Why did Karl do this?

At this time, with Karl's character, his normal reaction is not to lead this incident to her, but to investigate the truth?

unless!

Unless Karl knew the truth and knew who did it!

In this way, did he use this to lead Alyssa for other purposes?

Alyssa felt that she had figured it out, but she went backwards and felt that it didn't seem to be the case.

She thought about it and fell asleep.

When she woke up the next day, she found herself in bed.

Alyssa sat up from the bed, felt the position beside her blankly, and found that there was no Karl.

She remembered that she fell asleep on the sofa last night.

Karl came back?

Alyssa put on her clothes and got out of bed and opened the door, still guarded by the bodyguards at the door.

When the Smith was gone, the bodyguard is familiar, she has seen them in Karl's villa before.

She calmed down a little and asked them, "Karl came back last night?"

The bodyguard answered truthfully: "Boss came back once in the middle of the night and left before dawn."

"Did he say anything?" Alyssa frowned and asked anxiously.

The bodyguard shook his head.

Alyssa squeezed, and then asked, "Then do you know what happened to Mr. Adams?"

The bodyguard still shook his head.

Alyssa closed the door and returned to the room.

After much deliberation, she decided to call Karl with his mobile phone.

As a result, she did not find her mobile phone.

Karl came back last night and took her phone? "

Alyssa had to go to the door to find a bodyguard again: "Have you brought your phone? Let me use the phone."

The bodyguard did not directly give Alyssa the phone, but asked, "Does the young lady want to call Boss?"

Alyssa was puzzled, but she nodded and said, "Yes."

The bodyguard dialed Karl's phone and handed the phone to Alyssa: "Madam."

The phone rang for a while before connecting.

Karl's voice was a little hoarse.

"what's up?"

Karl's tone was very cold, and Alyssa's voice was also very cold: "Have you been back last night?"

Karl's tone seemed to be a little impatient: "Just talk about it."

"How's Grandpa?"

"Not awake yet."

"Where is my phone?"

"do not know."

Alyssa was suffocating from yesterday to today. At this time, she couldn't help but swear, "You-mom f@rt, did you come back last night and took my phone?"

Without waiting for Karl to speak, Alyssa continued: "Are you afraid of what I see on my phone? Or are you worried about whom I call?"

"That's it."

After Karl finished speaking, he hung up the phone.

Alyssa endured the urge to drop the phone and returned the phone to the bodyguard: "Thank you."

Then she turned around and entered the room.

She entered the room and kicked the door twice.

Karl, you b@stard!

Before long, there was another knock on the door outside.

"Madam, it's meal."

The voice sounds familiar.

"I don't want to eat!" She was full of anger and was in no mood to eat.

"If you don't eat it yourself, you have to think about the child in your stomach."

Alyssa frowned, which servant of the Adams' family would speak like this.

After a few seconds, Alyssa's eyes lit up, and she ran over and opened the door: "Tina!"

The person who came was Tina.

When Tina saw her, she said angrily: "I don't want to eat yet, it depends on what you can do!"

"Come in first."

It was Peter who was standing behind Tina.

Alyssa also knew that the door was not a place to talk. She closed the door after she opened the door to let them in.

Alyssa asked while eating, "Why are you here?"

Tina looked straight, took out a newspaper and handed it to Alyssa, fiddled with the phone for a while, and then handed the phone to Alyssa.

Alyssa opened the newspaper first.

The one that occupies more than half of the page is the matter of Mr. Adams.

The reporter wrote a large piece of speculation and specious words, and the last sentence pointed the suspect to Alyssa.

Tina asked her worriedly, "Alyssa, haven't you seen the news?"

Alyssa threw the newspaper aside and picked up the cold cell phone: "The phone is gone."

The matter of Mr. Adams rolling down the stairs did not cause such a sensation.

The reason for such a sensation is that the person who pushed Mr. Adams down maybe his granddaughter-in-law.

Most people are curious about this kind of grudge.

The enthusiasm of this matter is very high and it has made several headlines.

After being suspected by Karl, after seeing these things, Alyssa didn't feel much anymore. She just raised her head and asked Tina, "Do you believe it's Mr. Adams that I pushed?"

Chapter 255

Tina rolled her eyes and said, "You are not crazy, what are you doing to admire the old man?"

Alyssa nodded in agreement: "Yes."

Tina's words are rough and not rough.

Alyssa said in a daze: "Even you know that I can't push and admire the old man. How could Karl suspect that I pushed him down?"

"What? The big boss doubts you?" The cool expression was shocked.

Alyssa talked to Tina with emphasis on yesterday's events.

Tina did not speak after listening, but Peter on the side said, "Is someone trying to frame you?"

Alyssa took a deep breath, her voice a little low: "I think so too, but I don't understand why Karl suspects me."

Peter pondered for a while, without speaking.

Tina asked tentatively: "He should have his own reasonsâ€¦!"

"don't know." Alyssa shook her head.

â€¦!

Tina and Peter did not stay long before leaving.

Tina's ability to come to Adams' Old House also came under the guise of Peter's visit.

Moreover, the two of them came to see Alyssa quietly, so naturally they couldn't stay longer.

They left with his front foot, and Karl came back with his back foot.

When Alyssa saw him, she was subconsciously happy.

But then she saw the policeman coming in behind Karl.

She turned to look at Karl.

Karl didn't look at her, he looked at the policeman: "Ask."

The police got Karl's permission and walked to Alyssa: "Mrs. Hunt, we are here today to make a transcript for Mr. Adams' accident yesterday."

The police are official, and Alyssa is also very cooperative: "Okay."

"Name age"

"Alyssa, 23 years old." After the past year, she is already 23 years old this year.

"Yesterday at around 11:20, Mr. Adams fell down the stairs, where were you?"

"I was at the scene, on the stairs."

"what were you doing there?"

"Some servants said, Grandpa asked me to go over."

"What's the servant's name?"

"do not know."

""

The police asked a lot of questions, and finally returned to the original point.

Alyssa didn't know who the servant who called her was. She didn't prove her alibi, and no one could prove her innocence.

The policeman stood up, very polite: "Thank you Mrs. Hunt for your cooperation."

Alyssa nodded slightly and said nothing.

After the police left, only Alyssa and Karl were left in the room.

After Mr. Adams' accident, Karl spent most of his time in the hospital. Except for the sharp argument between the two last night, neither of them had talked peacefully together.

At this moment, Karl suddenly said, "All the truth is told?"

"Otherwise? Am I lying?"

Alyssa laughed, stood up, walked to Karl, and fixedly looked into his eyes: "If I'm lying, can't you tell?"

Karl said blankly, "Anyone can pretend, and I'm not a god. Of course, I sometimes misunderstand people."

Alyssa's complexion changed first, and then recovered again, with a smile in her eyes: "But I can see that you are lying."

"Alyssa, I don't understand what you are talking about!" Karl said, taking a step back, trying to get away from Alyssa.

But Alyssa did not give him this opportunity.

She stretched out her hand and violently pushed Karl onto the sofa.

Karl glanced at her with a gloomy expression before getting up and standing up.

And Alyssa seemed to have expected it early in the morning, pressing his shoulders and pressing him back, lifting her slender legs, she straddled Karl's legs and sat down.

Still face to face.

The depression on Karl's face was deeper, and his low voice implied a warning: "Alyssa, you go down!"

"Not going down."

Not only did Alyssa not go down, but instead she raised her hand tightly around his neck, tilted her head slightly to look at him, and a bit of stigma stained her beautiful face.

In high school, she spent more than a year with Tina and fought a lot of group fights. In fact, she was a bit unruly in her bones.

But because she met Karl, a strong midfielder, Karl could convince her with just one look.

Karl's eyebrows were twisted, as if he had endured to the extreme.

Alyssa smiled brightly, and approached Karl, if there was something like nothing against Karl's lips: "If you have the ability, push me down. If you push me down, I believe you are really suspicious of me, otherwise!"

Alyssa paused slightly at this point, bit Karl's lip, and said in a low voice, "You just pretended, you just kept something from me."

Karl's expression froze for a moment, and Alyssa's eyes showed joy.

But the next moment, Karl still looked coldly: "Enough."

Alyssa pressed her lips tightly and stopped talking, but her slender arms still held Karl tightly, her expression stubborn.

Karl put his hands on his side and squinted at her, "If you are not pregnant now, do you think you can still sit here?"

Alyssa bit her lip, her tone a little stubborn: "Yes, why not."

As soon as the voice fell, she felt Karl's body seemed to tremble.

The two clung to each other tightly, and she believed she didn't feel wrong.

There was surprise in her eyes. Before she could speak, she felt a pain in her neck and her eyes turned black.

Before she passed out, the last scene she saw before her eyes was Karl's eyes that were as dark as night but filled with mixed emotions.

Alyssa fell softly into Karl's arms.

Karl held her head and let her lean in his arms. He held her with one hand and her head with the other. He did not move for a long time.

After a while, he called out the door: "Smith."

Smith quickly walked in from outside: "Sir."

"Prepare the car, I want to send Alyssa back."

"Yes."

When Smith finished speaking, he turned and walked out.

When he reached the door, he couldn't help but glance back.

The handsome man sits on the sofa with a woman in his arms, and the two are intimate.

The woman has fainted, and the man lowered his head, gently stroked her hair with his fingers, moving gently and carefully.

This scene, no matter how you look at it, feels unusually harmonious and affectionate.

Smith shook his head.

He just said, Boss is too late for the young lady, how could he suspect the young lady.

However, Smith couldn't guess what medicine was sold in this gourd.

Over the years, he has watched Karl walk along, knowing Karl's tolerance and strength, knowing what to do and what not to do, and he is very clear at all times.

However, Smith couldn't figure out what Karl thought about this matter.

Chapter 256

Karl went downstairs holding Alyssa, and met Gerald who came over.

Gerald glanced at Alyssa in his arms, with a smile but a smile: "What? Where should you take Alyssa if you are in a hurry? I remember Alyssa is a suspect now."

Karl looked at Gerald with a frosty face: "Take care of yourself."

Gerald was a little frustrated by Karl's cold expression.

Gerald stopped talking, and Karl bypassed him and left.

At that night, he parked the car at the gate and saw Karl hugging Alyssa and opened the door for him.

Karl got into the car and went around to drive.

After returning to the villa, Karl walked upstairs holding Alyssa.

At this time, Aunt Tami walked out of the kitchen: "Sir."

A flash of surprise flashed across Karl's face: "Aunt Tami?"

On the eve of New Year's Eve, Karl and Alyssa returned to their old house, and naturally gave Aunt Tami and other servants a vacation.

Aunt Tami walked over, glanced at Alyssa in Karl's arms, and asked worriedly: "Sir, what's going on? Young lady is okay? I rushed back when I saw the newspaper this morning."

Karl said lightly, "It's okay."

After that, he continued to walk upstairs.

After walking a few steps, he stopped again and looked back at Aunt Tami: "These days, I'm going to trouble you."

Aunt Tami said disapprovingly: "Whatever Boss said, take care of the young lady, this is what I should do."

Karl put Alyssa on the bed in the bedroom, turned on the heating, and tucked the quilt corner for her. He stood by the bed and looked at her for a while before he got up and left.

â€¦

When Alyssa woke up, she felt a little pain in the back of her neck.

"Madam, are you awake?"

Aunt Tami's voice?

Alyssa turned her head and looked over. Isn't it Aunt Tami who is standing next to the bed?

"Aunt Tami? Why are you here?" Alyssa said, bracing herself to stand up.

Aunt Tami quickly stretched out her hand to help her: "Sir sent you back, now in Boss's villa."

After hearing the words, Alyssa looked around, only to realize that this was no longer the bedroom on the other side of the old house.

"Karl sent me back? What about the others?" Alyssa asked, clutching Tami's arm.

Aunt Tami said: "Boss left after sending you back. don't know where he went."

Alyssa gritted her teeth and murmured, "Karl, this b@stard!"

When she was in the old house before, she felt that she could force the truth from Karl.

As a result, Karl, a stinky man, knocked her out.

This fits Karl's style very well.

At the same time, this also made Alyssa more and more sure that Karl must be hiding something from her, not suspecting her.

Alyssa spoke very quietly when she scolded Karl. Aunt Tami couldn't help but ask, "Madam, what did you say?"

Alyssa quickly shook her head to deny, and smiled and asked, "It's nothing, I'm just a little hungry, does Aunt Tami have anything to eat?"

"Yes, you can eat whatever Madam wants to eat!"

Aunt Tami loved Karl. After Alyssa became pregnant, she also tried to change the pattern to make Alyssa good food. When she heard that Alyssa was hungry, she immediately diverted her attention.

Aunt Tami went downstairs to do something, Alyssa got up and put on a coat.

With a glance, eyes saw the mobile phone on the bedside.

She walked over and picked up the phone, which was the one she used before.

Alyssa curled her lips, and she knew that Karl had taken it to her.

As for why it was taken away, she didn't know.

After going into the bathroom and washing her face, she left the bedroom and walked downstairs. Looking at the familiar room layout, Alyssa was a little dazed.

It took only three or four days for her and Karl to return to the old house, and when they came back again, she felt as if they had passed through several centuries.

Aunt Tami made a lot of tricks, and made some stir-fried vegetables, soups and dim sum for Alyssa.

After Alyssa had eaten enough, she took out her mobile phone and prepared to call Karl.

She wants to see Grandpa.

She was really worried about Grandpa's situation.

After thinking about it, she hesitated again.

Karl had a weird attitude towards her now, she took the initiative to call him and said that she was going to see Grandpa, he would definitely not let her go.

Alyssa walked into the living room while holding her mobile phone.

Suddenly, there was a loud noise from outside.

Immediately afterwards, someone called her name.

"Alyssa, I know you are inside!"

This voice is no stranger, it is Isabel.

Alyssa squeezed her phone and walked out, and she saw Isabel and Rachel who were stopped by the bodyguards, followed by Travis.

As soon as Isabel saw Alyssa, she curled her lips and showed a playful smile: "Long time no see, you look a lot thinner."

Alyssa raised her eyebrows and said kindly, "Really? You look a lot fatter."

Rachel also said at this moment: "Alyssa, let's go in and talk."

There are a lot of bodyguards and servants in the villa, although Isabel hates her for being so deep, she can't do anything she wants.

Alyssa raised her hand and motioned to the bodyguard to let the three of them in.

Entering the hall, Alyssa sat down on the sofa, and the three of them sat on the other side.

Alyssa's eyes swept over them one by one, and then turned to look at Aunt Tami: "Aunt Tami, some tea."

Isabel would come to see her. Needless to say, she must have come to see her jokes. Travis probably brought them here. As for Rachel she didn't know.

Without waiting for Isabel to speak again, Alyssa said first: "Gerald told you?"

She only returned to Karl's villa with her front foot, and Isabel came back with her back foot. Gerald must have told her.

"Who would he tell me? Isabel snorted coldly: "You are really not afraid of death, even you dared to hurt Father Adams. "

Alyssa didn't talk nonsense with her, and turned to look at Rachel: "Is there something wrong?"

"Is the story in the newspaper true? Why do you want to do something to Mr. Adams? The Adams' family won't let you go!" Rachel's expression looked a little worried.

Alyssa said casually, "What if it is true?"

Now, no matter what Rachel said, Alyssa's heart was calm, without any waves.

Don't care, naturally you won't be sad.

Travis on the side also persuaded: "Alyssa, this is not a joke, you know that the Adams' family is a big family with only one hand, we can't afford it."

"We?" Alyssa's eyes flashed mockingly: "This sounds like, you will help me?"

Travis stopped talking.

They left after a short time.

Alyssa guessed that their purpose was just to confirm the authenticity of the newspaper, so as to draw a line with her at earliest.

Chapter 257

Alyssa knew the Adams' family too well.

They put the benefit first, and just blindly thought of reaping the benefits from her, hoping to squeeze all the value of her use.

This time it was spread in the newspapers and on the Internet, saying that she had committed a vicious attack on Mr. Adams, and Mr. Adams had not yet woken up.

What's the identity of Mr. Adams?

The most powerful person in the business world, the patriarch of the Adams family who has great influence and strong financial resources.

If Mr. Adams couldn't wake up all the time, Alyssa's ten lives would not be enough to pay.

The group of Hunt family came to the door today, just to confirm the authenticity of this incident, and then draw a clear line with her.

She has been used by the Hunt family too many times and can easily guess their intentions.

Facts proved that Alyssa was right.

In the evening, Colin published a newspaper and broke up with Alyssa.

This matter also made headlines.

Alyssa read this report several times, then kept the screenshots, and ordered the bodyguard to buy a newspaper back.

Tina's call came quickly.

"You're not your father's own birth? Can he be more disgusting? You didn't hurt the old man at all, and he didn't figure it out yet. He rushed to dissolve the father-daughter relationship with you, for fear of getting involved. Justâ€¦!"

As soon as the phone was connected, Tina scolded Colin with righteous indignation.

After Tina finished scolding, Alyssa slowly said, "There is nothing to be angry about, don't they always do this."

All along, Colin never regarded her as his biological daughter.

Even this report about his breaking the father-daughter relationship with her was just for the Adams' family to see.

Alyssa found that she could even understand Colin a bit now.

She laughed self-deprecatingly: "I'm serious, you don't need to be angry with this kind of thing, not once or twice. This time he and I broke the father-daughter relationship. I will have less trouble in the future. It's a good thing."

There was a moment of silence on the other side of Tina, and he didn't know what was thinking.

After a while, Tina asked her aloud, "Have you talked with the big boss? What does he think?"

"don't know." When Tina mentioned Karl, Alyssa's tone fell a bit.

"don't know?" Tina was obviously more anxious than her: "What the hell is he thinking? If this is dragged on like this, do they really let you go to jail?"

The cold voice sounded like an angry one.

Although Alyssa was also uncomfortable because of Karl's attitude in the past two days, she did not feel that Karl could really send her to jail.

She is very calm now, and firmly believes that Karl is hiding something from her, rather than really doubting her.

Alyssa had no choice but to comfort Tina in turn: "It's okay, he won't let me go to jail."

Alyssa mentioned that she had left the old house, and Tina explained that she would come to see her tomorrow.

As soon as she hung up the phone, Alyssa heard the sound of a car engine coming from downstairs.

Karl is back.

Alyssa put on her clothes and walked out of the bedroom, walked through the corridor to the stairway, and leaned over to look at the hall.

Karl walked in from outside, and Aunt Tami greeted him.

Aunt Tami asked him: "Sir hasn't eaten yet, right? There are ready-made meals, I'll warm them up for you?"

Karl waved his hand and walked directly upstairs.

Suddenly, he seemed to feel the existence of Alyssa, and when he raised his eyes, he looked towards her.

Then his pace quickened, almost running upstairs.

Karl stood in front of her, looking down at her, as if looking at her.

After a few seconds, he said coldly, "What are you doing here? Go back to the room."

The tone of his command, Alyssa, had long been used to listening, and was not afraid at all.

"Oh." Alyssa responded, her feet still.

There was a hint of impatience in Karl's tone: "Alyssa! Didn't you hear what I said?"

Alyssa leaned her waist on the armrest and looked up at him, her eyes and tone of voice were full of earnestness: "It's a long way back to the room, it's very tiring to walk."

She saw Karl's face turned dark, and she felt a little refreshed.

When Mr. Adams first went to the hospital, what he said really bluffed her.

In the morning, she wanted to follow Karl's words, and Karl directly knocked her out again.

Karl's mouth was as tight as welding, and he couldn't speak out anyway, so she had to fight him a little bit to find a sense of balance.

In her imagination, with Karl's temper, he might directly carry her back to the bedroom.

But Karl did not.

He fixedly stared at Alyssa, with a gloomy voice: "Grandpa is still in the intensive care unit."

Alyssa was taken aback for a moment, and said in a low voice, "I'm sorry."

No matter what Karl was hiding from her, Elder Adams was lying in the hospital at this moment and hadn't woken up.

After Alyssa finished speaking, she turned and walked towards the bedroom.

Karl followed her, staring at her back for a few seconds before following her.

As soon as Karl entered the door, Alyssa said, "I want to see Grandpa."

Karl directly rejected her: "You don't need to go."

Alyssa didn't expect that he would reject her so directly. She was taken aback for a moment before she said, "I'm just going to see him."

The tone was imploring.

Karl pursed his lips, seemingly loose.

Alyssa looked at him expectantly, but he only said coldly: "You are only suitable for staying at home now."

Alyssa grabbed her hair a little irritably, turned around and took off her coat and lay down on the bed: "Okay, I'm going to sleep, you can go."

She is annoyed to see Karl now.

Just like a stone, nothing can be said, and nothing will be told to her.

She closed her eyes and heard Karl's voice again.

"Did you let the bodyguard go out to buy the newspaper?"

Alyssa's tone is also cold: "Since you know, what else did I do?"

She thought Karl would say something more, but what she was waiting for was the sound of the door being closed.

Alyssa turned over from the bed and sat up.

Karl's attitude made her wonder if she was wrong.

After all, Mr. Adams is very important to Karl, and she and Karl have only been together for a few months.

And she didn't prove her alibi. Anya said that she was cruel to Mr. Adams because of Mattie. Although this reason was a bit far-fetched, it was not without credibility.

From Karl's perspective, he has every reason to believe that Alyssa did it.

From Alyssa's own point of view, she felt that there were loopholes everywhere in this matter, and someone was deliberately framing her.

She can't sit still like this, or she will be driven crazy sooner or later.

Chapter 258

Karl refused to let her see Mr. Adams, so she went by herself.

However, Karl said last night to let her stay at home, and he must have secretly told the bodyguard not to let her out.

She understood this in her heart, but she decided to give it a try.

She was stopped when she reached the door.

"Young lady, where are you going?"

Alyssa raised her eyebrows and squinted her eyes slightly, looking a little domineering: "Where do I need you to care?"

The bodyguard still looked like he didn't make any progress on the matter: "I have to explain it to the boss, and the young lady had better not go out recently. If there is anything, just let us handle it."

"What if I have to go out?"

The bodyguard nodded slightly: "Sorry."

The bodyguard's attitude and tone were very tough, and it seemed that Karl had given a death order this time and was determined not to let her go out.

Alyssa did not entangle too much, turned around and returned to the villa.

She was paralyzed on the sofa in the hall without much energy, her mind was empty.

"Alyssa! I'm here!"

A cold voice came suddenly.

Alyssa heard the sound and looked over, and saw Tina just walking towards her from the door.

Alyssa squinted her eyes, and suddenly remembered that when the Hunt family came over yesterday, they were stopped by a bodyguard.

"They didn't stop you?" Alyssa said, patted the position beside her, and motioned Tina to sit.

Tina sat down next to her, "No, he still knows me, and he said hello to me, just let me in."

After Alyssa heard the words, her mind started to move quickly.

When the Hunt family came over, the bodyguard stopped them dead, and when Tina came, the bodyguard let her in directly.

You don't need to ask, this is definitely what Karl ordered.

Tina turned her head to see Alyssa with a pensive look, and urged her out: "Don't think too much about it now. You should give birth to the child with peace of mind before talking about it. Big bosses will do all the big things outside. You handle it."

"He won't let me go out again." Alyssa said weakly.

Tina thought for a while and said, "Maybe it's for you. Now that Mr. Adams' affairs are making trouble in the city, it may be a good thing for you not to go out."

"But I don't want to sit still. don't know who wants to frame me. don't know what Karl is thinking. This incident was originally caused by me, and now I am the farthest away from the center of the incident."

After speaking, Alyssa added: "I want to go out."

What Alyssa said, Tina also felt reasonable.

Tina asked her: "Do you really want to go out?"

"Do you have a way?" Alyssa turned to look at her.

Tina blinked, then shouted out the door: "Alyssa, what's the matter with you? Why did you faint?"

After she finished speaking, she stretched out her hand and pushed Alyssa: "Quickly faint."

When Alyssa closed her eyes, she pretended to be dizzy.

The anxious voice attracted bodyguards and servants.

"What's wrong with Madam?"

Tina shook her head with a look of panic: "She fainted without knowing what was going on. Don't say so much. Let's go to the hospital first. She is still pregnant with a child!"

Tina is an acting school herself after all, acting like the real one, and the bodyguards didn't have any doubts, so he sent Alyssa directly to the hospital.

The hospital they went to happened to belong to the Adams' family, and it was also the hospital where Mr. Adams was.

Tina naturally followed along.

She sat in the back row with Alyssa to take care of her.

At the door of the hospital, Karl stretched out his hand and hugged Alyssa out as soon as the car door opened.

When Tina saw Karl, her whole body was dumbfounded.

Before, she only wanted to help Alyssa trick the bodyguards out, but she didn't expect Karl would guard her.

She ordered a piece of wax for Alyssa in her heart, and she could only help here.

Tina got out of the car with a bag, and ran after him: "Big boss."

Karl didn't look back, still sullen his face, "Why did Alyssa faint?"

Tina was in awe of Karl, and when he asked her this way, she felt guilty, but she could only bite the bullet and said: "She just fainted suddenly. We were talking, and she was just like this!"

Speaking of the back, her voice fell unconsciously.

Karl had long legs and fast steps. Tina said that she had to trot to keep up with him.

She quietly glanced at Alyssa who was held by him.

Alyssa opened a gap in the corner of her eyes and blinked at Tina, motioning her to go quickly.

Along the way, Alyssa closed her eyes, and when she arrived at the entrance of the hospital, she quietly opened her eyes and saw it, knowing that it was the hospital where Mr. Adams lived, and she secretly screamed.

When Karl came to hug her, she realized that the person holding her was Karl.

It's just that the next inspection must be worn.

She wears it and helps, and Tina's idea of helping her together may also be affected!

Tina grasped Alyssa's intentions, knocked on her head, and said in a panic: "I remember that I still have an important thing that I haven't done today. Big boss, I'm leaving now!"

Karl didn't even look at her, only hugged Alyssa and hurried to the emergency room.

Tina went straight away.

When approaching the emergency room, Alyssa called out his name: "Karl."

Karl stopped abruptly, looked down at Alyssa, and said blankly, "Didn't you faint?"

Alyssa said smoothly, "I'm awake now."

"Ah."

Karl sneered and put Alyssa down.

Alyssa knew that her trick with Tina had been exposed by Karl.

Fortunately, Karl was not so angry that he threw her off, but carefully put her on the ground.

Alyssa stood up straight and said directly, "I want to see Grandpa."

Karl curled his lips suddenly, but there was no smile in his eyes: "Alyssa, do you think you are very smart?"

"Not as smart as you." Alyssa shook his head.

Karl seemed to be annoyed by her answer, and the volume increased a few degrees: "Then go back!"

"What do you do when you go back? Go back and continue to guess what is in the mind of you, a smart man?" Alyssa was very determined.

The two fell silent at the same time.

After the accident, Karl stayed in the hospital.

In the past few days, he did not eat well or sleep well.

He looked a little haggard, but his eyes were still sharp and there was no trace of fatigue.

Karl was such a man, as if nothing could knock him down, so powerful that he was almost omnipotent.

And every time, when Alyssa felt that she knew him enough, he would do something that she could not understand.

Karl is too strong, if he doesn't want people to know what he thinks, there is definitely no way for others to know.

The two faced each other for a full minute, and Karl seemed to compromise: "Come with me."

Chapter 259

After Karl finished speaking, he took the lead to walk in front.

Alyssa followed him step by step, staring at his back, walking a little absent-mindedly.

Suddenly, Karl, who was walking in front of her, stopped.

Alyssa didn't know, so she stopped.

At this time, Karl said leisurely: "Walk well."

Alyssa was taken aback, suspecting that his head had eyes.

Karl raised his foot and took a half step forward, then turned around, holding her hand in Alyssa's surprised eyes, and leading her forward.

Alyssa looked at the hands they were shaking together, froze for a while, and looked up at him.

His jaw is tight, and the line of his chin is neat and clean, but it is indeed reduced by a few points.

She couldn't help asking him loudly: "You have been sleeping in the hospital these days?"

The two just walked to the elevator entrance, and Karl responded indifferently after pressing the elevator, "Yes."

Alyssa then asked, "Do you have a good meal?"

Karl glanced at her indifferently, as if disgusted with her, without speaking.

Ding-

The elevator door opened, and Alyssa was taken into the elevator by Karl.

In the VIP ward where Mr. Adams lived, one floor was vacated for him to recuperate.

As soon as he got out of the elevator, Alyssa saw that the corridor was full of bodyguards, but the other people in the Adams' family were not there.

Karl took her straight to the front of Mr. Adams' ward.

"Grandpa is inside, go in."

Alyssa opened the door and entered the ward.

This is the first time Alyssa has come to see him since his accident.

On the snow-white hospital bed, Mr. Adams was lying quietly on the bed, wearing an itchy mask, with tubes all over his body, still infusion.

Alyssa approached, only to find that Elder Adams's face was as pale as paper, his eye sockets were sunken, and his face was wrinkled.

Elder Adams is not the kind of benevolent old man, he always has a majestic appearance, but Alyssa can't help her nose sour-looking at him like this.

Alyssa sat down in front of the bed and whispered, "Grandpa?"

The person on the bed didn't react at all. If it weren't for the mist formed between the breathing in the oxygen mask, Alyssa would almost think that Mr. Adams didn't seem to be alive.

"Okay, come out."

At this moment, the door of the ward was pushed open, and Karl's voice came over.

Alyssa raised her head, wiped the tears overflowing from the corner of her eyes, got up and walked out of the ward.

She closed the door of the ward and talked to Karl: "What did the doctor say?"

Karl did not answer her question immediately, but looked at her calmly.

He noticed that her eye sockets were slightly flushed and her eyebrows frowned, and said, "I'm not sure when he will wake up. Even if he wakes up, it may not be the same as before."

Alyssa repeated what he had just said in shock: "Not necessarily the same as before?"

Karl just looked at her blankly without giving any explanation.

It may not be the same as before, which means that Mr. Adams may be disabled, maybe paralyzed, and become an old man who cannot take care of himself.

Alyssa's complexion suddenly turned pale, she looked at Karl, but she didn't know what to say to comfort him.

A woman's voice suddenly came: "What are you doing?"

Alyssa heard the sound and looked over, and saw Lina walking towards this side.

Lina's gaze was falling on Alyssa. It was obvious that what Lina had just said to Alyssa.

Alyssa pursed her lips, still calling out, "Auntie."

Lina's complexion was not very good, her eyes were clearly repelling Alyssa, but she nodded and said, "How is Alyssa these days?"

"Thanks to my aunt's concern, I'm fine."

Alyssa was a little disgusted with Lina like this.

Lina clearly hated her in her heart, but still wanted to maintain superficial harmony with her.

Lina asked again: "You came to see Grandpa?"

Alyssa said bluntly, "Yes."

Lina's eyes flashed slightly, seeming to be kindly reminded: "During this period, you'd better avoid suspicion."

"Why do you want to avoid suspicion? Is there any problem for me to see Grandpa as a grandson?" Alyssa's face was slightly restrained, and the whole person looked a little cold: "It should be the person who pushed grandpa downstairs to be more guilty?"

Lina didn't seem to expect that she would be so magnanimous, and she was taken aback for a moment before saying, "That's true."

Karl suddenly said, "Aunty, can you still go in to see Grandpa?"

Karl's tone was not very good, and he sounded a little impatient. Lina didn't say much, and pushed the door directly into the ward.

Alyssa stared at the door for a few seconds, before Karl called her directly, and she recovered.

"Alyssa."

"Yes?"

"Not going back yet, do you want to stay for lunch?"

"Ah? No, I think..." Alyssa paused, thinking that before the accident, when everyone was in the living room, Lina and Trevor went to the room sneakily.

Thinking of this, Alyssa took Karl and walked toward the elevator.

But she didn't want to meet Gerald and his party at the elevator entrance, behind him were Luther and Anya.

She wants to come to see the old man from home.

When Luther saw Alyssa, he happily called her: "Sister Alyssa!"

Alyssa nodded slightly: "Luther."

Afterward, Luther said to Gerald: "Brother, you go first."

Gerald didn't say anything, but Anya on the side said in a weird voice: "You dare to come to the hospital, are you really not at all guilty?"

Luther turned his head and glared at Anya: "What are you talking about, the two are weird! Now there is no evidence to indicate that it was the grandfather pushed by Sister, and the police have not found anything out there. Sister did nothing, why should she be guilty!"

"Luther, youâ€¦!"

Anya was said by Luther that she would argue that she was unable to make a living, but was interrupted by Gerald: "Anya, let's go first."

Anya was obviously unwilling: "Big Brother!"

But Gerald's attitude is firm, and she is not good at saying anything.

However, when she left, Anya still said strangely, "Third brother, just take care of this woman. The second sister is already on the plane back to the country. When she comes back, let's see how you can explain to her. ,Humph!"

Second sister?

Alyssa looked at Karl without knowing it.

Luther on the side was very discerning, and he approached Alyssa's ear and said, "It's my cousin's twin sister."

Karl's twin sister?

Alyssa didn't know much about the Adams' family's situation, and hadn't heard anyone mention it, so she didn't know that Karl actually had a twin sister.

This is not the place to talk. As soon as Gerald and Anya left, the three of them entered the elevator.

As soon as she entered the elevator, Luther asked Alyssa with concern: "Sister Alyssa, how are you doing these days? They all said it was you who pushed grandfather, but I don't believe it."

Chapter 260

After hearing Luther's words, Alyssa patted him on the shoulder with emotion, "I'm fine."

She stays at home these few days and can't do anything besides eating.

Luther laughed: "It's fine if you are fine, even if something happens, cousin will protect you."

Luther didn't know what Karl said in the hospital that day.

Alyssa curled her lips and smiled reluctantly.

She originally had something to say to Karl, but she couldn't speak up when Luther came.

Karl and Luther sent Alyssa to the door of the hospital.

The bodyguard who sent Alyssa to the hospital was still waiting there.

Karl told the bodyguard with a cold face, "Send the young lady back."

Alyssa still had something to say, so she didn't move.

Luther is a big little ghost, and he also noticed that Alyssa seemed to have something to say to Karl, so he pointed to the hospital, "I'll go up first."

He finished speaking and walked away.

Alyssa looked around, and pulled Karl's arm to the corner.

After making sure that there was no one around, Alyssa got closer and said anxiously, "Karl, on New Year's Eve, I saw aunt and your dad sneaking into the room together, but they soon came out. , I think there must be a secret between them!"

Karl suddenly slammed Alyssa's arm away, and said impatiently, "Enough!"

"Karl! What I said is true." Alyssa stretched out her hand and scratched her hair irritably, "You have to believe me."

"You haven't cleared your suspicion yet, why should I believe you?" Karl's face was very cold: "Also, those are my aunt and biological father. You mean they conspired to harm Grandpa. Then are you framing them? It's ridiculous!"

"I didn't say it." Although she meant it just now, she didn't say it.

Karl's complexion became stiff, but he quickly recovered.

He fixedly stared at Alyssa, his tone full of threats: "Isn't this what you want to say? My aunt and father are both grandfather's biological. They will harm Grandpa? You think I will believe it?"

"Didn't you still say that your mother's affairs have something to do with Adams' family, you?"

Karl didn't give her a chance to continue speaking, so he bends down and hugs her horizontally, hugs her into the car, and says without a trace of emotion, "Don't let me hear this again."

Immediately, he fell on the door with a cold face, turned and left.

Through the car window, Alyssa watched him enter the hospital without looking back.

She leaned against the back of the chair discouragedly, squeezing her fist and hammering the cushion next to her.

It's too hard to guess.

Karl's mind was too hard to guess.

Even Luther said that Karl would protect her.

However, what she wanted to know most now was what Karl was thinking.

Otherwise, she always feels uneasy.

And Karl's attitude was always so cold, hiding everything.

He couldn't guess what he was thinking, and his attitude was so cold, Alyssa really didn't know how to believe him.

“Girl!”

The car stopped at the entrance of the villa.

“Girl!”

Alyssa sat in the car listlessly, and heard a cold voice.

Turning her head, she saw Tina standing outside the car.

After Tina left the hospital, she still couldn't rest assured after thinking about it, so she simply went to the door of the villa and waited for Alyssa.

Seeing that she saw her, Tina opened the car door for Alyssa: “How is it? The big boss didn't do anything to you, right?”

Alyssa got out of the car, shook her head and sighed, “I hope Karl treats me like that.”

Tina frowned when she heard this.

“Come in, it's cold outside.” Alyssa pulled Tina into the villa.

She took Tina directly into the bedroom, and told her the conversation between herself and Karl and the thoughts in her heart.

After Tina listened, the whole person was frightened.

“No, isn't it? How could it be possible? Father Adams treated his sons and daughters pretty well. When his daughter got married, the dowry was hundreds of millions, which was more than 20 years ago.”

Tina analyzed it by herself and said, “Not to mention the father of the big boss. Elder Adams is also very good to Trevor. He took Trevor into work very early and waited until he was old. , Mr. Adams also handed over the power in his hand, and the two brothers and sisters didn't need to join forces to harm him.”

Alyssa didn't refute Tina's words, but nodded in agreement: “Yes, they don't need to harm the old man. If they just don't understand me, they can use any means to deal with me. There is no need for such a laborious use. The old man's matter came to frame me.”

Speaking of it, it seems to have returned to the origin.

It makes sense, but it makes no sense.

It seems that these are inextricably linked, but they can't be linked together, it's a mess.

When analyzing it carefully, it can't stand scrutiny at all.

Tina saw Alyssa looking helpless and comforted her aloud: "Don't think too much about it. I believe the big boss will handle all this. He won't make you trouble. The most important thing for you now. It's a good fetus."

Alyssa pursed her lips and said nothing.

Everyone said that Karl would handle this matter.

And Karl didn't tell her anything.

She was like a headless fly at the moment, she had no idea what to do.

She remembered Luther's words and asked Tina, "Do you know Karl's twin sister?"

"I know." Tina walked to Alyssa and sat down: "Her name is Claire. It is said that she is pretty and she has been living abroad. She is also a strong woman."

After Tina finished speaking, she felt that she was too general.

She scratched her head and added: "That's all I know, after all, she acts very low-key."

Alyssa nodded: "I see."

Tina's mind turned quickly: "What are you asking about this? She is coming back?"

"She should be here in these two days."

"This is a powerful character, you have to deal with it carefully." Tina was a little worried: "Now the people in the Adams' family think it is the old man you pushed. If Claire comes back, she will definitely come to you."

"I see, don't worry about it so much. Didn't you say that Karl will solve everything for me?" Alyssa smiled and stood up: "I'll send you out. It's finally a few days for the Chinese New Year. When you have time, you should take a good rest at home and spend time with your uncles and aunts!"

Tina was moved by her, and then stood up: "Well, well, then I will go back. If there is anything, you can call me. If I don't answer you, you can call Peter. He is very idle. , Despite calling him."
