

Predestined 941

Chapter 941

This is something that she has always wanted to know after waking up.

When she woke up, her spirit was so bad that she didn't have time to ask him this.

And Karl said that everything was resolved.

Although Alyssa had doubts in her heart, she had no time to care about these things because she was anxious to see Grace.

Later, she returned home.

Karl avoided these questions intentionally or unintentionally, not giving Alyssa a chance to ask these things.

Karl was silent for a moment, and said, "Clifford surrendered, Robert died without rescue."

Robert died without rescue?

Alyssa's eyes widened in surprise.

She was sitting in the back row, not badly injured.

Robert drove in front, and it was possible that he was seriously injured.

What surprised Alyssa was that Clifford turned himself in.

"Clifford surrendered?"

Alyssa shook her head: "Impossible, it is impossible for Clifford to surrender."

Clifford was scheming and did so many things unscrupulously, how could he surrender himself?

She doesn't believe it.

Karl seemed to have anticipated her unbelief, and said calmly: "If you don't believe it, you can ask Tina and Peter."

Alyssa was taken aback.

Karl would say this, it means that Clifford really surrendered.

Alyssa asked, "Why did he surrender?"

"I don't bother to worry about these trivial matters, I hope we can stay together in the future."

Karl pulled out the phone in her hand and put it aside, holding her hand in his palm.

While Karl was going to take a bath, Alyssa searched the Internet for news about Clifford.

But she did not find relevant news.

When Karl came out, seeing Alyssa leaning on the bedside with a pensive face holding her mobile phone, she understood.

Karl sat down beside her: "Clifford's case has not been made public on the Internet, you can't find it."

For a moment, Alyssa felt that she might not wake up in her dream.

She had been in a coma for only a week, and when she woke up, she found that the whole world was turned upside down.

Karl came back, and Robert was dead.

What is incredible is that Clifford turned himself in.

After Clifford and Karl had been fighting for so long, they turned themselves in like this.

Karl lowered his head and said in a negotiating tone: "Let's take a shower."

Alyssa nodded and put the phone aside.

Alyssa's spirit was still very poor, and she fell asleep after taking a shower.

Karl sat by the bed, and after watching her fall asleep, he got up and went to Grace's room.

Grace had just taken a bath and was lying on the bed with a storybook reading.

When she heard the door opening, she turned her head and saw that it was Karl, and immediately smiled, "Dad."

Karl walked over and faintly said, "It's time to sleep."

Grace glanced at her storybook, and obviously wanted to read it for a while.

But under Karl's gaze, she obediently put the storybook aside and pulled the thin cover over her body.

Karl turned off the headlights in the room, leaving only one night light still on.

Grace hid half of her face under the quilt and asked in a low voice, "Is mom asleep?"

Karl said, "Sleepy."

"Oh."

Grace pulled the quilt: "Then I'm asleep too."

She closed her eyes and fell asleep shortly.

Half of her face was covered in the quilt, only a pair of closed eyes were exposed outside.

Karl leaned over and pulled down the quilt for Grace.

It's still summer at this time, and covering too tightly is not good.

After confirming that Grace was really asleep, he turned around and went out.

Chapter 942

The next day.

When Alyssa woke up, it was already nine o'clock in the morning.

She habitually looked for the phone, but found that the phone was not at the bedside.

At this moment, Karl just came out of the bathroom.

Seeing Alyssa was flipping through the pillow looking for something, he asked, "What's wrong?"

What are you looking for?"

"Mobile phone."

Hearing this, Alyssa looked back at Karl: "Did you see my phone?"

Karl came over: "I'll help you find it."

He looked for it on the bed, then looked for it on the ground in front of the bed, but didn't see it.

Then he raised his head and asked Alyssa: "Do you remember where you put your phone last night?"

Where did she put phone last night?

Alyssa thought about it carefully, but found that she couldn't remember where she put the phone.

She was at a loss for a moment.

Then she raised her head and asked Karl, "You just asked where I put my phone last night?"

Karl twisted his eyebrows slightly, and said, "Yeah."

Alyssa looked at him and murmured: "I can't remember."

After she finished speaking, she paused, then shook her head, and repeated: "I really can't remember where I put my phone."

Moreover, what did she say to Karl last night?

Why doesn't she remember?

Alyssa stretched out her hand to support her head, her expression a little flustered: "Why can't I remember it?"

Karl's expression changed slightly, and he took out his cell phone and called Smith.

Alyssa was still immersed in her own world, she didn't even know what Karl said to the phone.

After Karl finished the phone call, he was still sitting on the bed when he looked back at Alyssa.

Look dazed, like a lost child.

Karl clenched the phone in his hand, then put the phone aside, and sat down by the bed.

"It's okay if I can't remember, we won't look for it anymore, buy a new phone, okay?"

He lowered his body, reached out his hand to support Alyssa's shoulders, his eyes were level with her, and he spoke in a negotiating tone.

Alyssa stared at Karl blankly for a few seconds, then smiled and said, "I don't need to buy a new one, I should be able to remember where it is."

But she laughed too reluctantly, uglier than crying.

Karl looked at her with a look she couldn't understand, and his voice was soft: "Then look for it another day. Today is the day to go to the hospital for review. We will go out."

Alyssa asked: "Why don't I remember that you said you want to review today?"

Without waiting for Karl to speak, she denied herself again: "Did I forget this too?"

She held her head in her hand and shook her head in disbelief.

Why has her memory suddenly become so bad?

Karl looked at Alyssa's appearance, and his heart felt uncomfortable as if being plucked out.

His throat slid twice with difficulty, and his voice was a little dumb: "I didn't tell you, not you forgot."

Alyssa asked uncertainly: "You didn't tell me?"

"Ok."

Karl nodded and stretched out his hand to tidy her messy hair: "wash up first, then have breakfast."

Alyssa nodded obediently: "Yeah."

After breakfast, he took her out.

When he reached the gate, Alyssa saw Smith waiting at the gate.

Smith nodded slightly at her.

It seems to be back to the past.

Karl would tell Smith to do anything.

Often when she and Karl go out, they can see Smith at the door.

Smith opened the car door, Karl took Alyssa into the car.

Chapter 943

In the car.

Karl held Alyssa's hand in his hand: "The distance is a bit far, you can sleep for a while."

Alyssa leaned on the back of the chair, with a look of wilt and lack of energy.

She also ignored Karl, just leaning back like that.

Karl pressed her lips tightly, stared at her silently for two seconds, and then stretched out his hand to embrace her.

Alyssa shook her head and stretched out her hand to push him away.

She wants to sit by herself.

Karl maintained the posture of being pushed away by Alyssa, watching her deeply.

But Alyssa just looked out the window dreamily, not at him.

Although Smith drove the car intently in front, he could feel the change in the atmosphere in the compartment.

He saw the scene behind in the rearview mirror, and took his gaze away with just one glance.

In this way, they went all the way to the hospital in silence.

“The advantage of private hospitals is that whoever spends more money can enjoy better services.

What’s more, this private hospital is still invested by Adams’.

Karl brought Alyssa to check and naturally opened the green channel.

Alyssa was pushed in by Karl, except for the medical staff, no one else was seen along the way.

The folding wheelchair is placed in the trunk of the car when you go out.

When entering the elevator, Alyssa turned around and asked Karl: “Why are there no patients in this hospital?”

Karl explained: “We are going through the VIP channel, which is different.”

There is also a VIP channel for medical treatment.

Alyssa smiled without speaking.

“When they arrived at the examination room, there were already doctors and nurses waiting.

One of the doctors greeted them: “Mr. Adams, Mrs. Adams.”

Karl asked, “Are you all ready?”

The doctor nodded: “Mr. Smith called before, and we are all ready.”

At this moment, she heard from the doctor that everything was ready, she had no idea.

But when she checked, she understood what the doctor meant when she was ready.

Don’t talk about patients along the way, even the redundant medical staff did not see them.

It should be Karl who told him not to have extra people present.

It is almost noon after finishing all inspections.

Alyssa remembered that she had been in and out of the hospital frequently throughout the year.

I was not very tired at first, but suddenly she felt a little tired physically and mentally.

“Let’s go to the lounge and rest for a while, the results of the examination cannot come out immediately.”

Karl squatted in front of Alyssa and spoke to her softly.

Whenever she is in a wheelchair, Karl always likes to squat in front of her and talk to her.

In this way, Alyssa didn’t need to look up at him, as long as she lowered her head, she could see him.

Karl is not a person who can speak smart words, and being gentle and careful is not what he is good at.

But after being with Alyssa, he seemed to be able to understand without a teacher.

Alyssa responded, “OK.”

“There is coffee and fruit in the lounge.”

Someone came in to pour water for them, but Karl made a look.

Then Karl poured water for her himself.

Alyssa had no reason to remember that long dream she had had.

When she was in dream, she felt everything was so clear.

But after waking up, only Karl was vivid and three-dimensional.

Karl poured the water and brought it over, and he heard Alyssa say, “I had a long dream when I was lying in the hospital.”

Karl put the water in her hand, and then said, “OKay.”

“I dreamed of being a kid.”

Alyssa held the water in her hand, but stared at him straight.

Chapter 944

Karl was taken aback when he heard the words, and then sat down on the chair next to her.

“What happened when you were young?”

He seemed to be very interested in what Alyssa dreamed about.

Alyssa nodded, her face gentle: “Well, I dreamt of being a very young child.”

Then, Alyssa said in a relaxed tone: “I studied very well when I was young.”

Karl looked up: “Really?”

Alyssa could feel that Karl was in a bad mood, but he still spoke with her patiently.

Alyssa looked at him, and suddenly smiled: “I also dreamed about what happened to you in that old street.”

Karl's eyes had a subtle change.

Alyssa asked him: "Did you really ran away from home that day?"

"Yes."

"Because of your mother?"

Alyssa remembered that it happened not long after the accident happened to Karl's mother.

Although the current Karl seemed to be omnipotent, at that time Karl was only an eleven-year-old child.

His mother's affairs should have had a great impact on him, so that his current personality is somewhat different from ordinary people's paranoia.

The sole of the shoe was silent, seeming to be considering how to speak.

After a while, he said in a hurry, "It was more sad at the time, but then I was comforted by the little girl who said that her mother was so bad to her."

A serious joke.

Alyssa pretended to be angry and stretched out her hand to push him: "Did you talk like that? Don't think about my mood."

Karl curled his lips, showing a less obvious smile: "But in fact, I was really comforted by your words."

If it weren't for Alyssa, he would probably not go back alive that day.

But the psychological pressure he was under was too great to bear.

No one understood his pain, and no one wanted to understand.

At that time, in Alyssa's narrative, he concluded that Rachel was a mother who did not fulfill a little responsibility.

But Alyssa was making excuses for Rachel.

And his mother protected him till death. If she died like that, he would have failed her mother.

His mother loved him deeply.

"I didn't expect that you would keep that pen there. I had forgotten about it. Later when I saw that pen with you, I didn't remember it at all."

Karl squinted at her slightly.

Alyssa immediately pleased and smiled, and then said: "When I married you for Isabel, you didn't recognize me!"

Karl was silent for a moment, his expression serious.

Alyssa asked uncertainly: "No, you recognized me the first time you saw me?"

"No."

Karl said calmly, "The main reason is that you were too ugly."

Alyssa's face collapsed, and she called his name every word: "Karl!"

Karl held her hand: "You are the one who wants to talk about this."

Alyssa snorted, her expression unkind: "Then your taste is quite heavy, and you can even k!ss me with that too ugly face."

Karl did not refute, leaning forward, "Is that right?"

You have to k!ss yourself.

At this time, the door of the lounge was gently pushed open, making a slight "creak" sound.

Karl paused slightly, straightened up and looked back at the door.

It was a bit awkward when Smith opened the door and came in.

He touched his forehead and nodded slightly: "Sir, Madam's examination results are out."

Chapter 945

The relaxed atmosphere in the lounge suddenly disappeared.

Although Alyssa tried to control her expression, she couldn't help but smiled.

Karl frowned and turned to look at her: "You wait for me here, I'll go and see."

After he finished speaking, he just looked at Alyssa and waited for her answer.

Karl said, let her wait for him here.

Meaning, he still wouldn't tell her about her physical condition.

In fact, it is very difficult for people to be deceived by others.

Karl is like this now.

Does he think that as long as he doesn't tell her the true condition of her body, she can live as before?

Alyssa smiled and said, "But I also want to know my physical condition."

Karl is a cautious and introverted person. He can definitely hide everything he wants to hide without leaving a trace.

He said slowly: "You are not in good health, just wait for me here."

The tone is strong.

Alyssa sighed helplessly and turned her head to one side.

Karl reached out and touched her head: "Wait for me."

The door of the lounge opened and closed.

Alyssa thought, it can't go on like this.

At this moment, the door of the lounge was opened again from the outside.

She thought it was Karl who was back again.

When she turned her head, her eyes widened when she saw the person coming.

After the woman was dressed in neat black clothes and locked the door of the lounge, she walked towards Alyssa.

The woman walked up to Alyssa, her smile didn't reach her eyes: "Miss Alyssa, long time no see."

Alyssa said in surprise: "Daisy."

"Remember me."

Daisy seemed very happy and sat down beside her.

Daisy looked at Alyssa, her eyes finally fell on Alyssa's legs: "You can't move your legs, it's very inconvenient, right?"

The tone sounds very concerned.

But Alyssa knew that Daisy came to her, not just to care about her legs.

Daisy is loyal to Clifford, and her purpose for this trip must be for Clifford.

Alyssa just looked at her without making a sound.

There is no need to answer such questions.

Seeing Alyssa's speechlessness, Daisy stopped babbling, "You should be able to guess the purpose of my trip."

Alyssa asked coldly: "Are you going to catch me and threaten Karl?"

"Do not."

Daisy shook her head and explained patiently: "You look like this. I take you away but it is a burden. Of course I won't be so stupid to take you away. I just come to see you, and I will see Karl by the way."

Daisy has a gentle tone from beginning to end.

As if it was really just coming to see old friends.

With Alyssa's understanding of Daisy, Daisy is also a powerful character, and she will not fight an unprepared battle.

She said that she would meet Karl, and she must have made enough preparations.

Alyssa loosened her hand on the wheelchair armrest slightly: "How is Clifford?"

Daisy, who had always been calm, her expression suddenly became cold: "Is he okay, don't you know?"

Alyssa smiled: "It looks like he's not so good."

Don't know why Clifford surrendered, but Daisy will come to the door, there should be no way to rescue Clifford.

Daisy looked at her with a mocking look: "It's hard to decide whether to win or lose before the end, so you should be more worried about Karl."

Look, when it comes to Clifford, Daisy couldn't help but collapse.

Women are always emotional.

Of course, if it is for the beloved man, women can be more cruel than anyone else.

Chapter 946

Alyssa just smiled at what Daisy said.

Seeing her so calm, Daisy looked slightly straight, staring at her without speaking.

Fruits and snacks were placed on the small coffee table next to Alyssa.

She stretched out her hand for a small snack, then looked up at Daisy: "Would you like to eat some?"

Daisy snorted and turned her head aside.

Alyssa pushed another plate of dim sum to Daisy's side.

Daisy did not move the plate of dim sum, Alyssa stared at her with interest while eating the snack.

The two were silent like this.

When Karl and Smith came in, Alyssa was almost full.

"Alyssa!" Karl walked in front and pushed the door in, only to say a word and then he fell silent, his face suddenly changed.

Alyssa looked at him with a smile: "You're back."

"Yes."

Karl sullenly walked towards Alyssa's direction.

Alyssa smiled gently: "Daisy said that she came to meet you."

"is it."

Hearing this, Karl turned his head and looked at Daisy, Alyssa's eyes flashed cold, his awe-inspiring existence, not angered or threatened.

Daisy is also a very talkative person for Clifford, and he has also dealt with many well-known characters.

This was the first time to come to Karl alone.

If you don't panic at all, you can't

She followed Clifford from birth to death and had seen Clifford's methods.

But in the end, Clifford was still defeated in front of this man named Karl.

As Karl approached, Daisy stood up unconsciously and looked at Karl with alertness.

Karl's face was as cold as frost, and his eyes were filled with murderous intent.

Daisy stepped back subconsciously, but behind her was the seat, there was no way to go back.

Before Karl approached, Daisy first said, "I'm here to negotiate terms with you!"

Being shocked by Karl's aura, she could only maintain her composure.

"condition?"

The corner of Karl's lips conjured a sharp arc: "Clifford also wanted to give me conditions."

Daisy turned to look at Alyssa, and then looked back at Karl, meaning: "If I was not sure, do you think I will come to you?"

Karl looked at Daisy blankly.

Afterwards, he turned his head to look at Alyssa: "You are here to wait for me, and I will let Smith stay outside."

After he finished speaking, without giving Alyssa a chance to refuse, he turned and walked outside.

When he passed Smith, Karl said, "Stay here."

Smith slightly nodded.

When Karl and Daisy went out, Alyssa asked Smith: "Mr. Smith, can you say, what is Daisy's bargaining chip?"

Smith glanced at the door and said, "Since she dared to come to the door, she must be holding a card that can fight back."

Are the cards for the counterattack?

Alyssa remembered that when Daisy was talking to Karl, he gave her a pointed look.

Is she the trump card that Daisy used to negotiate terms with Karl?

Alyssa suddenly understood what Karl had done before.

Because Karl regarded her too importantly, she became his weakness.

If she is Karl and she is in Karl's position, how can she handle these things?

Alyssa laughed silently.

Smith felt that Alyssa had a weird smile, and asked carefully: "Young lady, you're?" "I'm fine."

Although Alyssa said she was okay, she seemed to think of something funny and couldn't stop laughing.

Chapter 947

Smith vaguely understood why Alyssa laughed, and could vaguely guess what she was thinking.

He didn't say anything, but walked forward to pour Alyssa a glass of water.

â€¦ Karl and Daisy went to the reception room next door.

Most of the powerful people who come to private hospitals for medical examinations are naturally different from ordinary public hospitals.

Daisy followed behind Karl and closed the door of the reception room with her backhand.

Karl turned his head and stared at Daisy with a gloomy expression.

“Say.”

The tone did not entrain any emotions, but it sounded with a deep chill.

Daisy's expression on the surface is still very calm: “Alyssa looks like this, you should be very anxious?”

Karl just looked at her gloomily without making a sound.

But his slightly raised eyebrows indicate that his patience is running out.

Daisy is used to observing his words, and immediately said: “Ms. Alyssa was seriously injured in the accident four years ago and fell asleep for three years. This incident should not have been forgotten.”

She was talking about when Gerald wanted to die with Karl and Alyssa on the small island.

Daisy continued: “Back then, Clifford spent so much effort to save Miss Alyssa, mainly to save his sister. You should know this too.”

Having said that, a smile appeared on Daisy's face: “But what you didn't know was that when Miss Alyssa was seriously injured, Clifford asked the doctor to try to use Miss Alyssa's organs to save his sister.

It is a pity that Ms. Alyssa was so seriously injured that they could not do a transplant. “

“What did Clifford do?”

Karl was so smart, he had vaguely understood something at this moment, and looked at Daisy with a gloomy face.

“Mr. Adams is very knowledgeable and should know that many medical research organizations in the world are secretly developing many drugs with amazing therapeutic effects, but because of unknown side effects, mass production is not allowed.”

“Clifford had no other choice at the time. In order to save Ms. Alyssa's life, he asked the doctor to give her the newly developed drug at that time. don't know what the drug is called, but I know the same batch of experimental drugs. Among the people, only Miss Alyssa survived.”

Seeing Karl's increasingly gloomy face, Daisy felt a sense of excitement in her heart.

She finally understood why Clifford had never confronted Karl when he was dealing with Karl, instead he had to start with Alyssa.

She hooked her lips: "Mr. Adams, although don't know what the medicine is called, Clifford knows it, but he is still waiting for trial in the detention center."

The meaning couldn't be more obvious. If Karl wanted to know what the medicine was, he had to go to Clifford.

And Clifford's condition was naturally for Karl to get him out.

"Mr. Adams, you have to think carefully. If you know the formula of that medicine with your abilities, you will be able to find the world's most advanced research team and prescribe the right medicine. In this way, Miss Alyssa will have a chance to live."

Before coming, she went to meet Clifford.

He said that as long as she came to Karl and talked about the medication, Karl would definitely agree to her condition.

However, when Daisy saw that Karl had not spoken all the time, she felt a little confused.

Karl curled his eyebrows with a gloomy expression: "You can roll."

Daisy didn't realize what Karl's words meant.

After a few seconds, she smiled.

Chapter 948

Daisy thought, it was exactly the same as Clifford said.

Although Karl's words were not polite, what they meant was that he would talk to Clifford in person.

"Mr. Adams, goodbye."

Daisy turned and left after speaking.

"boom!"

The door was closed.

Karl stood motionless.

After an unknown period of time, he turned around and kicked the half-high green plant next to him.

With a "clang", the ceramic flowerpot fell to the ground and shattered.

Karl let out a sigh of relief slowly, his face was extremely gloomy, and his brows and eyes were hostile.

Click.

Someone opened the door from the outside, and the next moment the door was pushed open.

Then there are the slight movements of the wheels rolling on the ground.

Karl frowned slightly, and when he turned his head, the hostility in his eyes had completely disappeared. He returned to his usual indifferent expression.

“Why so angry?”

Alyssa was sitting in a wheelchair, her gaze swept across a fragment of a broken ceramic flowerpot behind Karl, and then her gaze returned to Karl’s body.

Smith followed Alyssa without saying a word.

Karl turned his head and glanced at the mess on the ground, with a calm tone: “I accidentally knocked it down.”

Alyssa didn’t expose him: “We’ll go home if it’s okay.”

When Karl heard the words, there was a soft flash in his eyes.

“Ok.”

On the way back, Alyssa didn’t speak to Karl either.

She stared slightly and closed her eyes to rest.

She could feel Karl watching her all the time.

Alyssa opened her eyes and met Karl’s eyes.

There are complicated emotions in the eyes.

Alyssa looked at him for a while, and finally couldn’t help but ask: “What did Daisy say to you?”

Karl’s expression did not change, and he said, “Probably after trying her best, she didn’t get Clifford out, so she wanted to come to negotiate terms with me.”

Alyssa was a little surprised, she thought that Karl would not answer her question.

However, even if Karl answered, it was the same as he did not say.

Daisy came to the door and naturally wanted to negotiate terms with Karl.

As for negotiating terms, Karl would definitely not tell her.

Alyssa changed her questioning method: “Will you agree to her terms?”

Karl curled his lips and looked at Alyssa with a smile but a meaningful smile: “My words?”

“If you don’t want to say anything, what can I say to you?”

Alyssa took a deep breath and turned to look out the car window.

Still a little angry.

Angry Karl insisted on going his own way.

He still hasn’t learned to share with her.

Always thinking alone.

Karl stretched out his hand and squeezed her face. She couldn't tell whether he was joking or serious: "You have lost weight after going home for a few days. Why not go to the hospital for a few more days?"

The expression on Alyssa's face froze for an instant.

Karl said, go to the hospital for a few more days.

He is okay not to make such jokes.

It should be that her physical condition is not very optimistic, so the doctor recommended to go back to the hospital for hospitalization.

When Alyssa heard Smith talking about her physical condition, although she was a little shocked and unacceptable, she only heard it from others.

Therefore, it is not very realistic.

However, even Karl had no choice but to accept the reality and sent her back to the hospital.

Alyssa couldn't control her expression.

"I don't want to be hospitalized." She said several "I" in a row before reorganizing her language: "I don't want to be hospitalized."

Karl did not speak, just shook her hand.

Chapter 949

After returning home, Alyssa said she wanted to stay in the lobby for a while.

Karl took Smith upstairs to the study.

Grace was with Alyssa in the hall.

When it was time to eat, Karl and Smith didn't come down.

Karl left Smith to eat.

During the meal, Smith was very quiet and did not speak aloud.

Grace curiously caught Smith.

Smith smiled and accepted: "Thank you."

Grace smiled and said, "Hehe, no thanks."

At this moment, a bodyguard came in from outside, hurriedly.

The bodyguard hurriedly called: "Sir."

"what's up?"

Karl asked Alyssa warmly without looking up.

The bodyguard hesitated and said, "A visitor is coming from outside."

The guests?

Hearing this, Alyssa looked up at the bodyguard.

Peter and Tina should know the bodyguards at home.

If they come over, the bodyguards don't need to ask questions.

The person here is definitely not Peter or Tina.

But besides them, who else?

Karl should have thought of a place with Alyssa.

He put down his chopsticks and stood up: "I'll go take a look."

He said, then looked back at Alyssa: "You eat first."

Alyssa nodded.

After watching Karl went out, Alyssa only ate a few more meals.

Alyssa hesitated and turned on the electric wheelchair.

After stepping back some distance, he started walking towards the door.

Seeing this Smith called out: "Young lady."

"I gonna go see."

Alyssa went out after speaking.

Because Alyssa's legs were not good, many adjustments were made in the villa.

She can go out in an electric wheelchair without hindrance.

The greening in the yard is well done, and it is midsummer again at this time, and green plants are prosperous.

As a result, the line of sight will be reduced.

Alyssa couldn't see the scene at the door.

Can only sit in a wheelchair and slowly walk towards the door.

When she approached, the bodyguard at the door had already seen her.

But she hadn't seen Karl yet, Karl was outside.

One of the bodyguards probably reminded Karl aloud.

Alyssa quickly saw Karl coming from outside the door.

When he saw her, he walked towards her: "How come you're out?"

"Iâ€¦!" Alyssa was about to speak, and there was another movement at the door.

“Alyssa!”

A familiar voice was calling her name.

Alyssa was stunned for a moment, and looked up, just in time to see Alvin who was being pushed out by the bodyguards.

“Alvin?”

Alyssa was a little surprised, how could he be here, how could he find her house?

Alyssa was about to turn her head to ask Karl, and she saw Karl looking at Alvin with a cold face.

Obviously, he was angry again.

Alyssa stretched out and pulled Karl’s hand.

Karl turned his head, the coldness on his face disappeared in an instant, and his expression returned to his usual indifference.

Alyssa asked him, “What did Alvin do with you?”

Karl said, “It’s okay.”

Then, he raised his hand to signal the bodyguard to blast Alvin out.

The bodyguard meeting directly pushed Alvin out.

Alvin was outnumbered and was naturally pushed far away by the bodyguard.

But Alvin said unwillingly, “Alyssa, I came to see you! Do you think I am a friend?”

Karl supported Alyssa’s wheelchair handle, and was about to push her forward, his face sank after hearing this.

Turned his head and said in a deep voice, “Let him go!”

Chapter 950

Hearing this, Alyssa also looked back at Alvin.

When the bodyguard received Karl’s instructions, the bodyguard was no longer polite, and he started again.

Alyssa looked over there for a moment, and said, “Stop it.”

Karl did not speak when he heard the words, but looked down at Alyssa.

Alyssa looked back at Karl: “You let them stop.”

Karl was obviously reluctant.

Seeing this, Alyssa was about to pass by herself.

Karl stretched out his hand to hold her, turned his head and said to the villa door, “Let him in.”

Alvin tugged at his clothes: "You all let me go, let me in."

The bodyguard immediately let go and let him in.

When Alyssa and Karl took Alvin into the hall, Smith came out from dining room.

Alyssa and Karl hadn't entered so much after they came out, they could feel what had happened with their keenness.

When he saw Alvin, a hint of surprise flashed across his face.

Alvin found this place unexpectedly.

"sit."

Alyssa turned to look at Alvin, and pointed to the sofa.

Alvin nodded and sat down.

The servant went and poured tea.

Alyssa looked in the direction of the restaurant, they all came out, Grace was still eating in the restaurant.

At this time, Grace also ran out.

"Mom!"

Grace hadn't seen Alvin at first.

Alvin saw her first.

He didn't say anything immediately, but looked at Grace with a smile.

Grace felt that someone was looking at her, so she turned her head and looked at him, and she just happened to see Alvin.

"Uncle Alvin!"

Grace liked him before, and was naturally very happy to see him.

She happily ran to Alvin: "Uncle Alvin, why are you here?"

"I came to see you."

Alvin said, he was about to reach out to touch Grace's little head.

At this moment, Karl called out Grace: "Grace, come here."

She could sense that Karl's tone was a little unhappy.

She smiled at Alvin, turned around and ran to sit down next to Karl. Next to Karl was Alyssa.

Alyssa turned to look at Grace: "Have you eaten enough?"

Grace shook his head: "Not yet."

She saw that everyone had gone, and followed them out curiously.

“Then go eat some more. Mom and Dad will chat with Uncle for a while, and come and play after you have eaten.”

Alyssa tilted her head slightly and spoke to Grace gently.

wanna chat?

Grace glanced at Karl.

Dad’s expression looked like he wanted to throw Uncle Alvin out anytime, so he could sit down and chat?

But Grace was a good obedient child, and her mother asked her to eat, and she nodded obediently.

She got off the sofa, and while walking towards the dining room, she looked back at Karl.

She suddenly remembered that when she used to live with her mother, Uncle Alvin often went to her house.

Therefore, father is angry that Uncle Alvin often went to her house, so he doesn’t like Uncle Alvin.

Grace’s little head turned fast, and she felt that she knew something extraordinary.

She didn’t understand the complicated love and hatred between adults, but she could feel that Karl did not like Alvin.

I really don’t know if the two people will fight afterwards.

Grace thought, quickly ran back to the restaurant, climbed onto a chair, picked up her rice bowl, and ran to the restaurant door, secretly looking out.

When will it start?
