

The Divorce Prescription

#Chapter 751 –

The Divorce Prescription Chapter 751

---- Chapter 751 Carly stared at Adam, asking, "Adam, are you really this heartless toward me?" Adam responded, "Leave. If you have even a shred of self- respect, stop clinging to me." He drove her out without hesitation. Carly felt her heart sink. No matter how hard she tried, it was clear that Adam's heart belonged to Celine. There was no turning back now. "I'm going to see Celine. We're registering our marriage today." Adam grabbed his car keys and headed for the door.

Just then, Carly lunged forward , throwing her arms around his neck. "Adam!" He froze for a split second, then quickly shoved her off. "Don't touch me!" Caught off balance , Carly fell to the floor. She landed hard, looking disheveled and defeated. + Adam adjusted his collar calmly and said, "Don't come to Alvarez Group again!" ---- With that, he walked away. Carly stayed on the floor, her gaze cold and full of hatred as she watched him disappear. Just then, her phone rang.

It was a call from Anne. She pressed the button to answer. "Hello, Ms. Warwick." "How did it go? Did you plant the Heartstring venom in Adam?" Anne asked. 2 Carly smiled as she replied , "Don't worry, Ms. Warwick. It's already done." "Good. Once the Heartstring venom takes hold, Adam will feel unbearable pain whenever he gets too close to another woman. Only you can ease it. You'll be his cure, so he won't be able to leave you now." Carly was more than satisfied.

When she had thrown her arms around Adam just moments ago, she had quietly planted the venom without him ever noticing. 1 He wanted to marry Celine? There was not a chance now. "Ms. Warwick, where did you even get this Heartstring venom?" 4 Anne chuckled. "Well, since we're in this together, I might as well tell you. When I was young, I met a mentor from Yoruzen. She was a master of venomcraft , and I became her student. I ---- learned everything she knew about venomcraft." Carly beamed.

The more powerful Anne was, the better it was for her. "Ms. Warwick, with the two of us working together , we can take down both the Hampton and the Alvarez families." "I believe that too." After ending the call, Carly got up from the floor. She wasn't afraid anymore, for the real show was just getting started. Adam left Alvarez Group and stepped into his luxury car. Just as he was about to start the engine, his phone rang. It was a call from Celine. He answered immediately. "Hey, Celine.

Where are you now?" Celine replied, "I'm already at city hall." "I'll be there soon... my future wife." Celine smiled. "Alright, I'll wait for you." Adam's heart swelled with joy, mixed with a flicker of nervousness. After all this time, he was finally remarrying Celine. He just hoped nothing would go wrong. ---- Fortunately, everything seemed to be going smoothly. Celine was already waiting for him outside the city hall. He reached for the gear shift, ready to drive over.

Suddenly, a sharp pain pierced the back of his neck. Then came the headache. It hit like a wave, splitting through his skull. Adam winced, clutching his head with one hand. What the hell was happening? His temples throbbed violently, as if his brain were about to explode. He grabbed his phone, trying to call Celine. The moment he saw her name on the screen, a sudden jolt of agony shot through his head. 2 He groaned, pressing his palm against his forehead.

---- Chapter 752. Celine was already waiting at city hall. Since Adam had said he would be there soon, she took a queue number. There were still several couples ahead of her in line. As she waited, her phone rang. It was Hailey calling. When Celine answered, Hailey said happily, "Celine! You're still in Kinthorne, right? Let's meet up!" "Hey, Hailey. Not today... I'm at city hall right now." Hailey was surprised. "City hall?" Celine said, "Yeah. Adam and [are here to register our marriage.

We're getting remarried." Hailey was very shocked. "Wait, what? Why didn't you tell me? You're really marrying my cousin again? Oh my God- I'm so happy for you! I always knew you two would find your way back to each other." Celine chuckled. "Let's meet up another day, okay?" As she ended the call, a staff member called out, "Number 18! Number 18, please come forward." Celine glanced at the slip in her hand-number 18. It was their turn.

She turned to look outside, hoping to see Adam's tall, familiar figure walking through the doors. However, there was no one. ---- He said he was on his way. So where was he? "Number 18! Is number 18 here?" the staff member called again. Celine stepped forward quickly. "Hi, that's me." "You're alone? Where's your fiancé?" "I'm sorry. He's running late. Please let the next couple go ahead of us." The staff member said, "Marriage is a big milestone in life.

Being late for this kind of thing-it's not a great sign, you know." Upon hearing that, Celine trembled slightly. She didn't know what had happened to Adam or why he was late. "He's probably caught up with work. It's alright, I'll wait for him." The staff nodded. "Alright, sweetheart. Just have a seat for now. Number 19, please come forward." Celine stepped outside the city hall and pulled out her phone. She dialed Adam's number. The melodic ringtone rang again and again, but no one picked up.

He wasn't answering! She tried calling again, but he wasn't picking up the phone. What could he possibly be doing? ---- Just then, her phone buzzed. It was a message from the group chat. Robin texted, "Celine, is it true that you're getting remarried to Mr. Alvarez?" Hailey responded, "Yes! She's already at city hall. I bet they've already signed the papers by now." Robin still held some resentment toward Adam. "Mr. Alvarez is very lucky that he met Celine.

Celine's giving him another chance, but this is the last one. If he screws it up again, there's no future for them." Hailey agreed. "Absolutely! Adam better not waste this chance. If he hurts her again, I'll be the first one to call him out." Robin asked, "Wait, why hasn't Celine replied to us?" Hailey sent another message. "She's probably with Adam. right now. Let's not bother the newlyweds today." Robin responded, "Alright then. Celine, Mr.

Alvarez, congratulations on your wedding!" Hailey added, "Wishing you both a beautiful new beginning!" Celine stared at the messages in silence. She didn't reply because she didn't know what to say Adam still hadn't shown up. She walked back into the city hall and sat down again. -- She had agreed to marry him, so no matter what, she would wait for him till he arrived. 2 A few hours passed, and the staff member approached her. "Sweetheart, is your fiancé still not here? We're closing for the day."

---- Chapter 753 "They're already closing?" Celine wondered, rising to her feet. She had been waiting at city hall the entire day. People had come and gone, yet Adam never appeared. She turned to the staff member and asked, "Excuse me, would it be alright if I made one more call?" The staff member nodded. "Sweetheart, you've waited all day. We'll stay a little longer with you. If he truly wants to marry you, he'll come.

If he doesn't, then maybe it's time to stop waiting." Celine blinked lightly. "Alright." She pulled out her phone and dialed Adam's number again. The same familiar ringtone echoed in her ear. It rang a few times, and then a mechanical voice cut in. "The number you have dialed is currently unavailable . Please try again later." Still, Adam didn't pick up the phone. The staff member asked, "He didn't pick up again?" Celine shook her head. "No." Another staff member walked over.

"Sweetheart, we're closing up now. It's time to lock the doors." Celine gave a polite nod. "I understand. Thank you for waiting with me. I'll leave now." ---- With that, she left. Behind her, she heard the two staff members speaking in hushed tones. "That poor girl waited here all day. As soon as I saw he was late, I had a feeling he wasn't going to show. No one will be late for their own wedding registration." "Exactly. Being late for something like this just means he doesn't value her.

He probably never intended to go through with it. She should really think twice about this marriage." "I mean, look at her. She's so beautiful. He has no idea what he's giving up." The two of them felt sorry for Celine and didn't bother hiding it. Celine stepped out of city hall. The cold wind brushed against her face, sending a chill through her body.

She had been ready to let go of the past and start over with Adam, but he had poured ice-cold water over that fragile hope, extinguishing every bit of warmth she had left. Just then, her phone rang. Could it be Adam? She quickly pulled out her phone, but her excitement faded. It wasn't him. It was Hailey. ---- Celine felt a pang of disappointment as she answered the call. "Hello, Hailey." "Celine, did you get your wedding registered?

Congratulations on your wedding!" "Hailey, Adam and I didn't get to register our marriage." Hailey paused. "You didn't? Why not? Where are you now, Celine? I'll meet you!" Adam was still in his luxury car when the splitting pain hit him, sharp enough to make his vision blur. Within moments, everything went black. By the time he opened his eyes again, night had already fallen. He sat up slowly, his face pale. He had no idea what was happening to his body.

Why had that sudden, intense headache hit him? Still, that wasn't what he cared about right now. Today was supposed to be the day he and Celine got their marriage registered. However, the entire day had slipped by. Where was Celine? Was she still waiting for him at city hall? Adam started the engine without hesitation, and the car tore through the streets, heading straight for city hall. Half an hour later, he arrived. He jumped out of the car the ---- moment it stopped.

"Celine?"

Celine!" he called out. She wasn't there. The building was dark and empty, and the doors were already shut. Adam rushed toward the door and knocked. "Is anyone there? Hello?" A moment later, a staff member appeared, eyeing him curiously. "Sir, what are you doing here?" Adam said with an urgent tone, "Have you closed for the day? I was supposed to get married here with my fiancée!" "We've been closed for a while now. Was your fiancée a fair-skinned, pretty young lady?"

---- Chapter 754. The staff member remembered Celine clearly. Adam nodded. "Yes, that's her. She's my wife." "Well then, I've got to say something. Your wife waited here the entire day, and getting your marriage registered is a big deal. How could you stand her up like that?" She had waited the whole day? Adam said anxiously, "Something came up. I didn't mean to." "She left after we closed. If you want to see her, you'll have to find her yourself!" "Alright.

Thanks." Adam turned and rushed back to his car. He climbed in and grabbed his phone -there were dozens of missed calls from Celine. He felt like slapping himself. How could he let her wait all day? How could he miss the moment they were supposed to get married? How could he ignore all her calls? He immediately called her back. The line rang and rang, but no one picked up. "Celine, please... pick up. Pick up the phone!" ---- Still, there was no answer. She wasn't answering him.

He felt his chest tighten up. He had fought so hard for this chance, and now he had thrown it away. He was about to call again when another wave of pain crashed through his skull. The headache was back, just as sharp as before. Just then, Carly appeared beside Adam. "Adam," she called softly. He turned to look at her. "What are you doing here?" Carly gave him a sweet smile. "I came to find you. Wherever you are, I'll be there." "Get lost!" Adam snapped.

He tried to shove her away, but a sharp stab of pain shot through his head. Carly hadn't expected Anne's Heartstring Venom to be this powerful. It was even more intense than poison. She quickly reached out to steady him. With her voice full of concern, she asked, "Adam, what's wrong? Are you feeling sick?" "Don't touch me. Stay away from me!" Adam tried again to push her off, but the moment she got close, the pain in his head suddenly vanished.

---- It was as if her presence somehow brought him relief. While looking at him, Carly said, "Adam, your face is so pale. You're definitely not well. Let me take you to the hospital." Adam shoved her aside. "I don't need your help! I'm going to find Celine!" He took two steps forward, but the blinding pain slammed into his head again. Every time he tried to go after Celine, it hurt. However, when Carly was near, the pain disappeared.

Caly wore a faint smile, but the smile vanished after a brief moment. "Adam, you have to look after yourself. Don't go looking for Celine. Let me take you to the hospital." His eyes reddened with frustration. "No! I have to find her!" He had to see Celine right away! He needed to explain everything. He hadn't shown up at city hall today, so Celine must have been heartbroken, and he couldn't let her carry that pain alone. He had to find her.

Adam gritted his teeth and forced himself forward through the pain. After just a few steps, the agony surged back, fiercer than before. It felt like his skull was being torn apart. His vision ---- blurred as darkness closed in. 4 Then, with a dull, heavy thud, his tall frame hit the ground.

---- Chapter 755 Celine met Hailey at a restaurant, and the two of them were seated in a private, upscale dining room. As Hailey handed her the menu, she said, "You must be starving after waiting all day at city hall. Go ahead, order something first." Celine didn't hesitate to do so. She opened the menu and picked a few dishes. Hailey asked, "Celine, what exactly happened today? Why didn't Adam show up at city hall?" Celine shook her head. "I don't know.

I tried calling him, but he never picked up." With a sharp smack, Hailey slapped the table. "How dare he? I couldn't believe he stood you up! I'm calling him right now!" She pulled out her phone and dialed Adam's number. The ringtone played softly in the background, repeating over and over. However, no one answered. Hailey was speechless. "Why isn't he picking up? What on earth is he doing today?" Just then, the waiter brought their food. Celine picked up her cutlery and quietly began to eat.

---- Hailey said, "Celine, don't worry. I'll make sure Adam gives you an explanation!" Celine wasn't sure what to think anymore. Adam was the one who had asked to get married, yet he was also the one who didn't show up. Even if he was busy, he could have at least answered the phone to tell her. Hailey looked at Celine and said, "Celine, I'm not trying to defend him... but this doesn't seem like something he would do.

What if something happened to him?" Celine's hand froze mid-air, still holding her cutlery. Did something happen to Adam? She had waited all day at city hall, crushed with disappointment and weighed down by emotions. Now that she thought about it more carefully, something did seem off. Adam wasn't the type to disappear without a word. Even if he had changed his mind, he would have told her personally. This really wasn't like him at all. Celine looked at Hailey.

"And today, Adam's phone hasn't gone through at all. He's usually not like this." As she spoke, she took out her phone. "Let me call Alvarez Residence to check with Mrs. Alvarez and Bella. Maybe he's home." Hailey nodded. "Okay." ---- Then, Celine dialed the number. Meanwhile, at Alvarez Residence, Grace and Bella were sitting in the living room, playing together. Bella was absolutely delighted. "Grandma, Daddy and Mommy should be married now, right?" Grace kissed Bella lovingly on the cheek.

"Of course, Bella. Your parents will definitely get married, and then the three of you will always be together, never to be apart." Bella pouted and added, "No, it's not just three of us. It's four. "

Grace blinked in surprise. "Four? Has your mommy had another baby?" 1 Bella covered her little mouth and giggled. "Grandma, Mommy isn't having a baby. I meant a family of four because you're part of it too!" Grace was completely caught off guard for a moment.

She hadn't expected Bella to be talking about her. Bella hugged Grace tightly and said, "With you, Daddy, and Mommy, we'll always be a family of four and will never be apart. When I grow up, I'll take care of you." Grace's heart melted at Bella's words. She had lived such a lonely life. A failed marriage had nearly destroyed her, and that ill-fated engagement had marked the beginning of her downfall. ---- Her patience had been worn down by solitude , and she had grown used to being alone.

Now, however, Bella's small hands and warm body embraced her, promising to care for her in the future. Grace's eyes instantly filled with tears. Healing didn't seem so impossible . After all, she had found love. Grace hugged Bella tightly and said, "I love you so much, Bella." As both of them shared this tender moment, the phone rang in the living room, interrupting the warmth. Grace quickly released Bella. "Bella, the phone's ringing.

Let me pick up the phone first."" Bella asked happily , "Do you think it's Daddy and Mommy calling?" "Let's check it out." Grace answered the phone, and soon, Celine's voice came through the line. "Mrs. Alvarez, it's me." "Celine! Did you and Adam get your marriage registered? You'll need to start calling me 'Mom! now!" Grace said joyfully.