

The Divorce Prescription

---- Chapter 839 Jonah froze. "Aileen!" "Jonah!" Aileen ran straight into Jonah's arms. Jonah reached out and pulled her into a hug. Aileen burst into tears, choking as she leaned against his chest. "Jonah, is it really you? I recognized you that day. Why didn't you admit who you were?" That day, Jonah pretended to be a cab driver. She recognized him, but he denied it. Jonah could only hold her tighter. He didn't know if his face would scare Aileen. Sometimes, he wished the old version of himself could live forever in Hailey's and Aileen's memories.

He desperately hoped they would never see his disfigured face. "Jonah, where have you been these past three years? Why didn't you come back? Hailey and I missed you so much... Didn't you miss us even a little..." Aileen sobbed uncontrollably. Jonah held her close. "No, Aileen. I missed you both. I thought about you every single day..." Their parents were gone, and in this world, he only had Hailey and Aileen left. One was the woman he loved, and the other was his biological sister. It was two people he couldn't cut from his life, not even if it ---- killed him.

Joanne was completely frozen in place. It felt like she had been struck by lightning, her mind totally blank. She had never imagined that Aileen was Jonah's real sister. She was finished. She had just pulled a stunt on the wrong person. Wallace grinned. "Alright, Aileen, stop crying. Today's a happy day. You two are finally reunited!" Jonah reached out and wiped Aileen's tears. "Aileen, you're all grown up now. Crying doesn't suit you." Aileen wiped her eyes. "Jonah, I almost didn't get to see you today!" Jonah frowned. "What do you mean?" Aileen turned and glared at the receptionist.

"She blocked me. She refused to let me see you! Your receptionist's got quite the attitude for someone so low on the ladder. She spends more time sucking up than doing her job!" The receptionist's legs turned to jelly. The moment she realized Aileen was Jonah's sister, she knew she was done for -she had just offended the CEO's sister. "Mr. Pilsner, let me explain-" Jonah cut her off. "What's there to explain? Someone, throw her out-now!" The security guards immediately stepped in and grabbed the ---- receptionist. The receptionist turned to Joanne. "Ms. Lilton, please help me!

I was just following your orders! I work for you-" Joanne snapped, "Shut up!" Jonah turned to her. "Joanne, what's going on here?" Joanne quickly said, "Jonah, let me explain. I didn't know Aileen was your sister, so there was a bit of friction between us." Aileen sneered. "You call that a bit of friction? Then why were you trying to have me thrown out?" READ LATEST CHAPTERS AT finda*.novel.net

The Divorce Prescription

---- Chapter 840 Joanne tried to explain, "I..." "Jonah!" Aileen looked at Jonah. "Let me ask you something. What's going on between you and Joanne? Is she my sister-in-law?" Jonah stuttered, "Jonah, if you're with this woman, I'll never acknowledge you as my brother again!" Aileen shouted. Justin jumped in. "Aileen, what's wrong with you? Do you have some kind of misunderstanding with Joanne?" + Aileen replied, "There's no misunderstanding .

As far as I'm concerned, I only have one sister-in-law, and that's Hailey!" Justin tried to explain, "Aileen, do you even know what Hailey did to Jonah three years ago? She's the one who walked away from him. For the past three years, Joanne's been the one by his side-" "Enough!" Aileen snapped at Justin. "Stop talking nonsense. Hailey would never abandon Jonah! Even if Joanne was the one by Jonah's side these past three years, what about Hailey? She's the one who raised me! "T lost my mom and my brother, and Hailey gave me a home.

She took me from Janesburg to the Capitol, sent me to school, picked me up, and dropped me off. -- -- "For three years, she spent every moment taking care of me. Additionally, her parents treated me like one of their own. Hailey isn't just my big sister. She's my sister-in-law. "people say a good sister-in-law is like a second mom. I respect her, I love her, and I won't let any of you speak badly about her!" Justin fell silent. What Hailey had done for Aileen was undeniable. Without Hailey, there would be no Aileen today. Jonah placed his hands on Aileen's shoulders. "Aileen, you misunderstood.

Joanne and I are just friends." Aileen pressed, "Really? You don't have feelings for her?" Jonah didn't even hesitate for a second. "She's just a friend. I don't like her." Joanne's hands at her sides curled into fists. She had always known Jonah didn't like her. In all three years, he had never once given her any hope. But she liked him. She couldn't help it. Aileen continued, "If you don't like Joanne, then why did you break Hailey's heart?" A flicker of pain crossed Jonah's eyes. It wasn't he who had broken Hailey's heart—it was Hailey who had broken his.

"Aileen, I know you love Hailey, but Hailey doesn't love me anymore. She can't be your sister-in-law," Jonah said. "Who says Hailey doesn't love you? She came to see you today, ----" Aileen responded. Jonah was stunned. "Hailey came to see me?" Aileen nodded. "Yeah, but she didn't even get to see you. Joanne and the receptionist blocked her at the door. They even humiliated her!" Jonah's expression darkened, and he turned to Joanne. "Did Hailey come here? Why didn't you tell me?" Joanne's face went pale. "Jonah, let me explain.

Hailey did come, but you were in a meeting at the time, so I didn't let her see you." Jonah shot back, "Do you get to decide whether I see her or not?" Joanne saw the cold warning in Jonah's eyes, and she curled her fingers in fear. Then, Jonah turned to Jeremy. "Where's my phone?" Jeremy immediately handed it over. "Here it is, Mr. Pilsner." Jonah unlocked it and saw a missed call from Hailey. He had been in a meeting and didn't have the phone on him, so he missed it. Then, Jeremy added, "Mr. Pilsner, I heard there's been some trouble at Lambert Group. I'm sure Ms.

Hailey came to ask for your help." Aileen urgently said, "Jonah, back when our family was struggling, Hailey and her dad were the only ones who ever ---- helped us. Have you forgotten how much that meant to us? Now that Hailey's in trouble, how could you not be there for her?" Find the newest release on find—novel.net