

President 1671

Chapter 1671

Bella could see Charlie standing on the lawn through the window.

"His indifference sobered me up completely. When he took my mother to the hospital, I thought he would stay in the hospital with me. I panicked at the thought of my mother covered in blood."

"However, he told me that he did it out of kindness and that he would not stay there with me, after all, he was neither my boyfriend nor my husband. He also said that even if I fainted in the hospital because of fear, it had nothing to do with him. I tried in vain to beg him to stay..."

"I had figured these things out..." Bella added, "You may not know about my family. My parents have many brothers and sisters, but we have an uneasy relationship with those relatives. They look down on us because our family is poor."

"My parents would be ridiculed when they went to borrow money from those relatives. My mother often cried and told me that I had to win honor for our family and then astonish those who looked down on us."

Grace had never experienced this. Although she grew up in a single-parent family, she never worried about money.

"Every girl believed that she was different when she was young and had fantasies about her future husband. I was no exception. I firmly believed that the man who would marry me must be a prince charming of noble birth, with perfect height, handsome appearance, and good cultivation." "I fell in love with Mr. Morgan when he helped me out over and over again at the nightclub. Frankly, he fulfilled all my fantasies about a husband."

"My mother was very fond of him too and used to show off her 'future son-in-law' to relatives with photos of Mr. Morgan. They were shocked and became friendly to my mother, and I felt so proud..."

Bella managed a sad smile, "In such fantasy and pride, I became more and more infatuated with him, unable to extricate myself, and even went insane."

Grace raised her eyebrows without saying a word. Eaton became hungry, crying for food. Then, Grace unbuttoned her clothes and started feeding him as if Bella wasn't there.

"Maybe I was too young to resist those temptations. All in all, I'm not here to defend Mr. Morgan but to apologize for what I've done. I'm really sorry, Ms. Livingston. Well, time's up. I have booked a flight to Santabaca, bye."

Bella thought. Mom was right. If I kill Grace, I'll get nothing but jail!"

Bella's mother was old, and her legs had some problems. The family would be destroyed if she went insane. Even for her mother, she had to sober up.

How could she let her mother die in front of her? As her mother said, if Charlie had any feelings for her, he wouldn't have said those horrible things!

She would definitely stay with him if he had some feelings for her, but he was actually ruthless...

Bella then left Grace's villa. When > Charlie saw her coming out, he rushed forward and fixed her with a decidedly hostile look, "What did you say to her?" -

Bella looked at him in the eye, "If you really want to know, you can ask her."

"I'm completely out of patience, Bella. I'm warning you, enough is enough!"

Bella said nothing. Her heart ached so that she could hardly breathe.

Then, she left, disappointed

She couldn't have Charlie. Even if she went out of her way, he would never fall in love with her.

Charlie looked anxiously at the villa, wondering what Bella had said to Grace and what Grace was thinking.

After a while. Grace came out to water the plants.

Charlie walked up to her to take her, watering can, but she bypassed him and said, 'Aren't you going to go after her?' Swnovel.net

'I have nothing to do with her. ~N Really.' Charlie hastened to explain, "The other day, she came to me" covered in blood and told me that her mother had slit her wrist

She didn't seem to be lying, so I went with her. Her mother really slit her wrist. That was true."

"I swear to God I had nothing to do with it."

Chapter 1672

"How can I persuade you to trust me, Grace? I'm not putting you on. Is it only when I kneel that you can forgive me?" Grace ignored him and watered the plants instead.

Out of the corner of her eye, Grace noticed Charlie kneeling. "Men do not bend their knees easily. The more they do it, the cheaper they look," Grace showed no emotion and said coldly.

Charlie went rigid and said bitterly, "I don't care that! If you can forgive me, I can kneel for a month!" Grace said icily. "Listen, it's no use for you to kneel here. Go away and do not come here again! I will not trust you anymore."

"I swear I won't make the same mistake again, Grace!"

"Come on, I'm not a little girl! Do you expect me to believe that? When a man pursues a woman, he can say lots of sweet words, even willing to give his life. But as long as he has his eyes on another woman, he will forget his promises. You once said that you couldn't live without me. But you lived well after you fell in love with another woman, didn't you?"

Charlie hastened to explain, "No, no! I didn't fall in love with her. I love you only, Grace. At that time, I was so confused that I lost myself for a while to relax. My brain just misted over for a moment."

Grace shrugged, said nothing, and continued to water the plants.

She sprayed the flowering shrubs in front of Charlie with the hose, and his suit pants got wet.

But he remained on his knees and did not move

Grace took a look at him and let him be. After watering the plants, she returned to the villa and left him kneeling outside. Charlie then realized that it would be a long -term task, and he had to make some preparations.

He looked around and found that the villa opposite Grace's was just for rent. Then he walked over to ask for the details. After deciding to stay there, he soon signed the contract and paid the deposit.

He planned to go back to Santabaca until he won back Grace and Eaton.

Grace held Eaton in her arms at her villa.

Bella's words actually meant nothing to Grace. Besides, she didn't care about Bella's apology at all.

How could Bella be delusional if Charlie wasn't giving any hints of affection?

Most of the time, it was men who I gave women the possibility and <* opportunity to imagine that they could have a relationship. Content

>

As the old saying went, there was no smoke without fire.

Over time Grace didn't hate Charlie as much as she used to, but she no longer trusted him.

After all, betrayal would happen only once or countless times, and he might even be as addicted as Billy.

She had no confidence that he would do such a thing only once. Anyway, he did have a crush on another woman once! Grace needed neither an assistant nor a driver.

Charlie could only wait outside her villa all day. Once he had a chance, he would creep in.

Fortunately, Grace had a large and . aggressive Samoyed dog. As long” as it noted Charlie, it would bark to keep Charlie outside. Content >~

Then, Charlie noticed their villas’ balconies were connected. So he probably could get to her villa by going over the balcony. Content ~~

Chapter 1673

One evening Charlie stepped on the narrow balcony, which was high that standing on it was a little disconcerting because there was nothing to hold on to.

Charlie took a deep breath and held it, moving little by little on it.

It was actually dangerous. If he wouldn't be careful, he might even fall to death.

But that was his only way to see Grace, so he had to try!

Coincidentally, Andrew stood by the window with a glass of wine to get some air.

Suddenly, he was aware of a light coming on and looked over with a frown.

He stared for a long time and found Charlie was moving on the balcony. Then he shouted, "Hey! What are you doing? Andrew's sudden voice made Charlie miss his footing and fall in a cold sweat!

Then Grace woke up to her Samoyed dog's barks and other noises.

When she came out of the villa and turned on the lights. she saw Charlie lying on the ground miserably and gripping his teeth tightly. He clung to his legs in pain and could not move. There was no doubt that his legs must have been broken.

At the outset, Grace tended to ignore him. Yet, she finally called a doctor because he seemed to be badly hurt.

The doctor frowned after the examination and said, "Lucky you! It's all right except that you broke your leg. How could you be so careless? You have to stay in bed for at least a month."

When Charlie heard about that, his face changed immediately.

'Stay in bed for a month? Then how can I see Grace?'

'God, now, it's impossible for me to stand up, let alone anything else.' His face took on a ghastly expression!

Then, Andrew came in with a glass of wine, swirling wine in the glass and looking at the ripples in it. "Does that hurt?" Andrew asked in a sarcastic tone.

Charlie frowned and stared at him, "You did that on purpose, didn't you?" "Oh, how can you say that. Mr. Morgan? Do you know what time it is? You sneaked on my house's balcony! I thought it was the thief. Anyway, I just shouted casually. How could you fall? You were guilty, weren't you?"

Charlie couldn't refute. He was incandescent with rage that his chest heaved "Your legs must be hurting you." Andrew maintained a sarcastic tone, squinting with some glee Charlie ignored him.

The doctor packed up his things to leave. Leaning against the door, Grace looked at Charlie and said, "I think you'd better hire a nurse to take care of you."

Looking at his legs, Charlie thought Grace's advice was exactly right. It was inconvenient for him to be alone in the villa. Thinking for a while, he looked up at Grace.

Although he said nothing, it was clear that he wanted Grace to help him find a nurse.

"Why should I help you?" Grace asked indifferently, "I 'Charlie, we' re not related, if anything, you are just a stain. want to erase from my life! Is that-olear? I don't see any reason for me-to help you."

-

Hearing that, Andrew kept nodding and echoed, "I won't help you, too."

Charlie kept silent and his adam's apple bobbed in his throat.

Grace and Andrew then turned to leave.

After they left, Charlie and the doctor were the only ones left in his villa

Charlie had to ask the doctor to find a nurse for him.

After all, he was a stranger there, and he had no friends who could help him.

After returning to the villa, Grace and Andrew began to have dinner, which was delicious mushroom soup and mince pie. Grace ate her soup absently, thinking about something else.

And Andrew immersed himself in the mobile games, swiping the screen quickly.

A few minutes later, Grace looked up and accidentally caught a glimpse of Charlie's phone on her balcony._>

'Why is his cell phone here? Alas, that's a real eyesore! I'll bring it to him.' I

"I'll give him..." Andrew said, "I'm going to throw it in his face and let him know the end of being a thief!"

"Er, you play the game for me. If you help me pass a level, I'll reward you with a hug." Grace said, "Also, I'll warn him to move away!" Andrew made an "OK" gesture with his fingers and then concentrated on playing the game.

Grace went to Charlie's villa with his phone. His door was unlocked, so she stepped in without ringing the doorbell.

It seemed that Charlie was not the only one in the villa because she heard a woman's voice. She then walked in with a frown. Charlie was flipping through magazines. When he heard a footstep, he looked up and said excitedly, "You've come. Grace! "

He wanted to sit up, but he gave up after considering his situation. Yet, the way he looked at her remained affectionate.

'I'm not here to visit you but to drop off your phone. You left it on my balcony when you stepped over the balcony." Grace's expression remained glacial. Content, belongs to it) -

"Would you like something to drink or eat? I'll ask the nurse to prepare," Charlie asked with joy.

"You already have a nurse?" Grace leaned back slightly and saw a figure in the kitchen.

The nurse seemed to hear them and came out with a smile, "What would you like to have for dinner? I'm a good cook, honestly." Grace looked narrowly at the woman in front of them.

She was a well-preserved woman of thirty. Plus, she was in great shape, and she didn't have a nurse's vibe at all.

Grace remained silent. and then Charlie said, "Mashed potato, grilled salmon, vegetable salad, and some dessert..."

Chapter 1674

All the dishes Charlie ordered were Grace's favorite

"I have a cook. Okay? I've already had dinner."

Grace casually threw his phone on the bed, "Well, I'm here to make myself clear. It's useless to stay here, so you'd better go back to Santabaca." "That's my business. I'm not going back until I win you back!"

Grace smiled, "Come on, what if I never forgive you? You are famous for your filial piety! Are you going to leave your mother alone in Santabaca?"

Charlie replied in his deep voice, "I'll figure it out." "Since you insist, I have nothing to say. Oh, let me remind you, you don't know anyone here, and maybe no one will know if you die here."

Charlie looked at her in the eye, "That's no concern of yours!"

"Well, I guess I'm sticking my nose in it."

Grace turned to leave after she finished.

Charlie remained in his previous position and watched her back disappear.

The nurse also stood her ground and asked, "Shall I prepare dinner as you just ordered, Mr. Morgan?"

"No, just make a quick meal." Since Grace didn't want to have dinner with him, he didn't care what to eat. The nurse stared at Charlie, and her eyes were sparkling with something.

Yet Charlie didn't pay any attention to her.

Charlie would call Mckenzie, who was still in Santabaca, every night to catch up.

When Grace returned to her villa, Andrew showed her the new record and opened his arms wide to hug her. Grace hugged him with a smile.

Andrew seized the chance to kiss her head. All of a sudden, he seemed to remember something and then squinted at her, "How is Charlie?"

"He has already hired a nurse."

"Well, female nurse? Er. woulda male nurse be better? You know,

men. can't undress casually in front of strange women. Content belongs -

Grace asked in a wondering tone, "Why do you care so much about him?" "Anyway, I have something to do with his fracture. I should help him." "Well, whatever," Grace then went upstairs to see Eaton.

When she passed the french window, she accidentally saw Charlie eating with his nurse.

'I can't believe that you found a nurse on such short notice, and she's Estainish.

Good for you, Charlie.'

When Grace entered the room, Eaton just woke up. He waved his~ little hands i in the air, and his ruddy cheeks looked so cute. Content >

Grace took him in her arms and kissed him fondly.

Although he slept during the day, he had to sleep with Grace during her breaks.

Grace had been so tense these days because of the catwalk that she was finally. able to relax when it was-Over. She felt so sleepy that could hardly keep her eyes open. Content ~

In Charlie's villa.

Charlie was wide awake, flipping through a magazine.

After cleaning, the nurse went into Charlie's room, "Mr. Morgan."

"Yes?" He looked up but didn't put down the magazine. The page he looked at was jewelry designed by Grace. "It's dark. It's raining outside, and it's hard to get a taxi. Are there any rooms to lodge me in, I wonder?"

Charlie looked outside and found that it was raining heavily, "There are many rooms on the first floor. Take your pick."

Chapter 1675

The female nurse said, "Thank you, Mr. Morgan. It's so nice of you. Is there anything else that I can do for you?"

Charlie said, "No, thank you. You can go to take a rest."

The nurse walked out of his room. Charlie turned on his laptop and worked for a while.

It was 11 p.m. when he raised his head. He closed his eyes and took a rest.

He slept for a long time. He felt that something was on his body suddenly. He felt cold as if someone was touching his chest. He opened his eyes suddenly and saw the nurse's face

The nurse bestrode his body. She wore a silk nightgown and stroked his smooth chest with a smile.

Charlie said coldly, "What are you doing? Get down!"

She smiled faintly, "Don't be so serious.

You are in good shape. Your abdominal muscle is strong. It seems that you often do exercise."

Charlie said, "Get out of here!"

The nurse didn't leave. She bestrode his waist and twisted. Charlie was furious and pushed the nurse down.

She was unprepared and fell to the ground. She stood up and said, "I won't tell the woman you like. It's a secret between us." "Get out of the room! The nurse ignored what he had said and smiled, "You're a patient. You're no match for me. It's free. Drop the act."

She said as she walked towards him again. She put her arms around his neck and said, "I haven't met such a young, handsome and strong man like you for a long time. I like you!"

Charlie didn't allow her to get close to him. He pushed her to the ground again. She sat on her heels. Her knees hurt. She was angered finally. She stood up, bestrode his body forcibly and touched him.

He had never hit a woman before, but today was an exception. He warned the nurse many times and ran out of his patience, but she ignored his warns totally.

Charlie had no other choice but to grapple with her. Although his legs were hurt, he could use his arms. Usually, men were stronger than women. After a while, the nurse was hurt seriously.

Her face was swollen. She couldn't move her arms. She was in a sorry State. She sat on the ground and didn't have the guts to move. It hurt. Charlie said in a deep voice, 'Get out of here!' -

"You have beat me up. I won't let you off easily!" The nurse gritted her teeth, took out her phone and called the police

Grace was woken up by the bark at midnight. She rubbed her eyes and saw that the lights in Charlie's villa were turned on. She pulled open the curtains.

Many police cars were in the yard.

Seeing that, she was worried. 'Does something happen to Charlie?'

Soon, the doors of the villa were opened.

The nurse walked out. She was wiping tears. Her silk nightgown had slipped, and her fair shoulder was exposed. Then Charlie was wheeled out in the wheelchair. He was in a bad mood.

They got in a police car one by one. The sirens wailed. The police cars left.

Grace went downstairs. Andrew was also woken up just now. He was at a loss and said, "A thief?"

Grace said, "I don't know what has happened. Charlie and his nurse have been taken to the police station."

Andrew said, "His villa must have been stolen. They go to the police station-to report. It's not safe here. I asked you not to buy the villafiere, but you didn't listen to me!" "Content belongs to ~"

Grace frowned in doubt. Andrew felt sleepy and almost couldn't open his eyes. He said, "The thief must have left. Don't worry. We can continue to sleep."

Grace asked again. "A thief?"

"I'm sure." Andrew put his hands on her shoulders and pushed her to go upstairs. He said, "Good night."

Grace lay on the bed but couldn't fall asleep. Eaton woke up and pooped. She changed the diaper for him and nursed him. It took her a long time to do these things. Then he fell asleep again. ite) -

She tossed and turned in bed for a while. Then she fell asleep gradually.

Chapter 1676

The next morning.

Grace always jogged in the morning. She got up at 6 a.m. and jogged along the street nearby.

However, the doors of Charlie's villa were still closed

"Hasn't he come back?"

After she pruned the flowers and ate breakfast, the doors were still closed. Grace asked Andrew, "Will it take a long time to report?" Andrew shrugged and said, "I'm not clear about that. Hasn't he come back?"

Grace shook her head, "The doors are still closed."

Andrew frowned and said, "Anyway, we're available now. Let's go to the police station."

They got in the car and went to the police station. Someone took them to see Charlie.

Charlie hadn't slept for the whole night. He was unshaven and looked gaunt. What was worse, his legs were hurt. He was totally different from before. Andrew asked, "What has happened?"

A policeman said, "He assaulted the servant sexually and beat her up. He will be imprisoned for several months."

Hearing that, Grace looked at Charlie.

Charlie looked at her and said, "You believe me, right?"

She kept silent and looked away as if she didn't hear what he had said

Andrew made a phone call. The police chief came over and ordered to free Charlie Charlie was released. The plaster on his legs was distorted. He was hurt seriously last night.

Charlie walked out of the police and thanked Andrew sincerely, "Thank you."

Andrew said, "I'm happy to hear that. What happened? Why did you get yourself into the police station?"

Charlie thought about it and said, "She assaulted me sexually."

Andrew burst into laughter, "Why - didn't you give in to her? There was no need for you to struggle. You didn't get the beauty but got yourself into the police station." ~

Charlie kept silent.

Dominick called Andrew and asked for help. Andrew agreed and left first.

Grace pushed the wheelchair for Charlie coldly. He asked slowly, "You believe me, right?" She kept silent and walked forward

He said, "You still care about me, so you go to the police station early in the morning..."

Grace said coldly, "Don't overthink. I'm not that nice!"

"Grace, put your hand on your heart. Feel it if you're telling the truth or lying..."

He looked into the distance.

He said, "Your subconscious actions and heart won't cheat you. Although made a mistake in the past, I can't accept any other woman to touch me except you. You still have feelings for me..." to "

Grace sneered, "Are you out of mind? It seems that what happened last night is a terrible blow to you. You even haven't calmed down up to now..." "Grace, can't you forgive me?"

Charlie felt bitter. "I'm thinking about how to make you forgive me and how to make you let go of what has happened. I'm trying my best."

'However, {haven't found the way ~

XX

yet. I don't know when I will die. I don't know what I will face in the future. Is it so difficult for you to forgive me?" -

Grace said, "You mean that you have just made a small mistake, right?"

Chapter 1677

Charlie paused and explained, "You have misunderstood me. I know that it's me who have made the mistake, but I have no feelings for her at all. I was exhausted at that time. I felt relaxed when I stayed by her side, so I mistakenly believed that I had feelings for her."

However, Grace didn't say anything else. She wheeled him forward. The car was parked along the road. She helped Charlie get in the car and then started the car.

Charlie said, "Tell me how you will forgive me. I can do anything as long as you forgive me." He didn't know what he could do.

Grace said, "OK." Hearing that, Charlie smiled brightly. Then Grace said indifferently, "Turn back the clock. If all these things didn't happen, I would forgive you."

Hearing that, Charlie became silent.

He didn't say anything else. He couldn't turn back the clock.

They returned to Charlie's villa soon. She wheeled him into the villa. They kept silent along the way.

The nanny called Grace and told her that Eaton was crying.

Grace left. Charlie was left alone in the villa.

Eaton was hungry. Although he was small, he knew how to show his dissatisfaction. The nanny prepared the formula milk for him, but he disliked it.

After Grace nursed Eaton, she started to design the drawings. When she finished work and stood up to stretch, it was 7 p.m. It was dark outside. The nanny called her to have dinner.

Andrew hadn't come back. She had dinner alone. She saw that the lights in Charlie's villa were on, but Charlie had never come out. She remembered that he hadn't found a nurse yet. What was worse, his legs were hurt. He was alone in the villa. How could he take care of himself? Then she realized that she had overthought it. He had nothing to do with her. There was no need for her to care about him.

She went upstairs with Eaton in her arms to take a rest. In the following four days, she stayed in the villa. She had handed the design drawings of the new series of jewelry, so she didn't need to go to the company.

Charlie had never walked out of the villa in the four days.

The doors of his villa had been closed all the time.

Grace watered the flowers absentmindedly.

When the nanny passed by, Grace spilled the water on the nanny's body. The nanny screamed in surprise. Only then did Grace react. She apologized to the nanny and turned off the tap

After she had lunch, she still felt uneasy.

She frowned and hesitated for four minutes. Then she went to Charlie's villa.

Grace could open the doors from outside. She walked in slowly.

The villa inside was airless because it hadn't been ventilated these days. Grace felt depressing somehow. Content belongs to swnevel.net

She passed the living room and went to the bedroom. She saw Charlie lying on the bed

She walked over and pushed his shoulder, but he lay motionless on the bed.

Grace's face turned pale immediately. She took out her phone and called the hospital.

The ambulance arrived soon. It was. about twenty minutes. The LS ambulance was parked outside the villas The doctors and nurse carried Charlie to the ambulance. Content ~

Grace waited outside the emergency room alone. The lights in the emergency room had been on for the whole afternoon.

Grace stood up and sat down again and again

She leaned against the wall and crossed her arms across her chest.

she frowned and was worried about him.

She didn't know his condition in the emergency room. Her heart beat fast.

'What kind of operation is it? Why does it take so long?'

Chapter 1678

Grace waited outside the operation room. 'Need I call McKenzie and tell her Charlie's condition?'

Grace thought about it and gave up. They were abroad. If she called McKenzie and told her Charlie's condition, McKenzie would be anxious. The operation door wasn't opened until 8 p.m.

When the attending doctor walked out and took off the mask, Grace walked towards him in heels.

The doctor shook his head and said. "He has stomach disorders all the time. What was worse, he had only eaten instant noodles in the past four days. He was close to death!"

Hearing that, Grace frowned and asked, "How is he?"

"The operation is successful, but his stomach is fragile. He needs to pay attention to his health. Otherwise, his condition will be worse."

Charlie was sent to a general ward. Grace sat beside the window. Charlie lay on the bed. He was still in a coma.

One or two hours had passed by.

Finally, Charlie woke up and opened his eyes slowly.

Grace's gaze became sharp. She breathed heavily and said, "You only ate instant noodles in the past four days? Why didn't you die in the villa?" Charlie was weak. His lips looked pale. He was speechless with weakness and coughed feebly.

Grace said, "If you have a death wish, go back to Santabaca. Do not stay here in case your mother thinks that I cause your death.

I can't afford it!"

What Gracé had said was sharp and unpleasant to hear. "After you go back to Santabaca, I won't stop } you. Do: fot die here! Swnovel.net =

He said with difficulty, "I'm... sorry..." His lips were pale and cracked.

"Do not say sorry to me. I dislike it. Please do not get me into trouble again!

Charlie could say nothing in such a situation. He could only apologize to her. Grace's gaze was cold. What she said was brutally frank and sharp.

She scolded him for several minutes and didn't stop until she gave vent to her anger.

Charlie stared fixedly at her. He said in a deep and weak voice, "Would you like to drink some more water?"

He bore all blame and didn't refute it. He lay on the bed quietly. Suddenly, Grace ran out of her energy.

Looking at the cautious Charlie, she didn't know what she could say and didn't want to scold him anymore.

It was quiet in the ward again. He. didn't eat Pmeals these days and Aad an operation just now. He sain a haaise voice, "I'm sorry..." " =

Grace raised her hand to support her forehead and said, "It's your life. You don't need to say sorry to me."

'I'm sorry...sCharlie's eyes were filled with hope.' 'I stayed in the operation room for so long. Were you worried about me?" Grace said decisively, "No: not at all!" -

Chapter 1679

"Really? You don't worry about me at all?" Charlie couldn't accept the fact and asked her again, "Are you sure about this?"

"You are really annoying!" Grace said directly, but she still avoided answering his question. At this moment, her phone rang and it was a call from Sherman

She went out of the ward and answered the phone. Sherman's voice came from the other end of the line. "I heard that Charlie followed you to France. Really?"

"Yes" "What's your real thought? Do you intend to forgive him?"

Grace remained silent. and when Sherman was about to say something, her mobile phone was snatched away. Kingsley's soft voice sounded, "It's me. "I can tell." Grace laughed and raised her eyebrows. "I used to admire you a lot."

"Thanks for that..." Kingsley's voice sounded calm, but it was quite convincing." I've heard all about what happened between you and Charlie."

"Sherman really likes to gossip!" Grace said with a helpless smile.

With a faint smile, Kingsley continued, " From my standpoint, I don't think Charlie has much affection for that girl. As he said, he was just too tired and wanted to find someone to release his pressure."

"You have to believe and admit one thing that all men are lascivious. When Charlie was with that girl, he never did something that betrayed you. Actually, he even refused to hold hands with that girl. which shows that he has no deep affection for her..."

"Are you also lascivious?" Grace asked in curiosity.

"Yes, I have to admit that..." Kingsley continued in a calm voice, "When a man loves woman, it's natural for him to have a strong desire to touch and kiss her. Love is not just a kind of feeling, and the greatest pleasure can only be achieved when you two are combined both physically and mentally. Sex and love cannot be separated."

Leaning against the window, Grace asked, "Were you asked by someone to persuade me?" "No. I just want to tell you a truth based on my own experience..."

He paused for a moment and then said, "Time endows a man with charm and maturity. No man is born mature, and if he is, he must have experienced something special, and the same is true of marriage."

"A person's life is very long. When two people live together, they are bound to have confrontations and problems. I can't say for sure that there is no smooth marriage, but I am sure that a marriage with twists and turns will be more stable."

Grace also knew this truth

"When a marriage comes to an end, both sides must be at fault, but Charlie will become more mature after this experience, from which he has learned a lot."

"It's because of his experience that he won't repeat the same mistake. I think he will be more careful with your relationship and address any problems existing between you properly. It can also be said that you gave him an opportunity to become mature." -to

"If you are willing, you will be the one who is well taken care of by him in the future. But if you are not, another woman will enjoy that treatment."

"He can't be single all the time, and he will naturally choose to remarry. Even if he doesn't have any love for his future wife, I think he will know his responsibilities as a qualified husband and take good care of her. Are you willing to let others enjoy the results of your efforts?"

Kingsley said faintly, "I have experienced more than you. If he just gets lost for a while. you only need to help him find the right direction, but if he goes the wrong way. he will never turn back."

"You are the one to make the final choice, and I hope you can choose an easy one. I have to tell you that Charlie will become more mature in the future, and a smart man like him will never make the same mistake again."

"If he hadn't had strong determination, he wouldn't have given most of his company shares to you and your child. Not all men can have such determination and courage."

"Your next husband may not be as good as him. and you might encounter various problems again..."

Chapter 1680

Grace still remained silent. Kingsley didn't go on. He said "Good night" to her and hung up the phone.

Men were different from women. Men would become more mature and selfdisciplined after experiencing such kinds of things, and they would handle their relationships more properly.

However, men's betrayal would only bring women psychological trauma, selfimprovement and distrust of love.

When a woman chose another man, how could she know what kind of character and temperament he had?

Perhaps she would get hurt again.

No one could know each other thoroughly from the beginning, and some problems only appeared after marriage.

Women could never guarantee that the next man they met would be better than the present one.

Kingsley didn't say these words to her, for he thought it was no need ta do so.

One just needed to give his own advice when it came to other people's affairs. It was better not to interfere in others' life too much. Everyone needed to grow up through marriage and various life experiences, whether men or women, wives or husbands.

A person had to go through a certain process to be more mentally mature.

It was quite natural to make mistakes, but one should avoid making those irreversible ones. In that case, there was still a chance for self-correction. Kingsley felt that he could handle everything in a proper way now, which benefited from his previous experiences.

It was necessary for people to go through certain things over time. This was the truth of life and the only way to achieve happiness. Back to the ward, Grace was still holding the mobile phone in her hand, but she sat there without saying anything.

Charlie looked at her and frowned in confusion. "What happened? Who called you?"

Grace didn't answer him

Kingsley's words came to her mind from time to time, and she was lost in deep thought now.

She knew that Kingsley's words made sense, for he was a mature man who had experienced so many things.

Since Grace kept quiet, Charlie stopped. asking her. Looking out of the window, he sighed deeply. with a helpless look in his dull eyes.

He wondered when this kind of life would come to an end. What did he need to do to get her to open up to him?. He didn't ask for much. Instead, he just wanted her to be a little more honest with him. Content belongs 7

In the large ward, both of them remained silent, thinking about their own affairs respectively.

Grace was thinking about her future. She knew it was not a problem for her to raise Eaton alone with her current salary. Would she really never get married again?

She had considered this problem very seriously. Perhaps she would stay single and live the rest of her life with Eaton.

She was willing to do so, but at the thought of Eaton, she hesitated.

Since childhood, she grew up in a single-parent family, with only her mother bringing her up. She missed her father a lot and always asked to see him, and she was extremely envious of her friends who had their parents' company. ' 4

She wasn't willing to let Eaton go through the same miserable childhood as her.

Thinking of this, Grace felt her head throbbing painfully. Grace held her head with both hands and slowly kneaded it. Charlie also remained silent.

After a short while, Andrew called Grace.

Grace stood up. After saying goodbye to the nurse, she left directly without taking another look at Charlie.

Although Charlie was overwhelmed with a sense of loss and sadness, he didn't dare to say anything.

Inside the villa, Andrew was holding Eaton in his arms.