Chapter 971

Sherman pursed her lips, smiling, "You're not as fat as Lee." "Are you urging Lee to lose weight by saying that? OK, I'll take a message for you." Kingsley chuckled. "No. I'm just kidding. You are really going to tell Lee, huh?"

The two enjoyed the conversation a lot, talking and laughing. There were at ease when getting along with each other, and they could joke at will.

When Sherman went to the department store the other day, she happened to see Natalie there, who was full of the joys of the spring. It was true that something good was happening to her.

It seemed that Natalie was shopping for curtains or something else.

Sherman only took one look at her and then left. There were many people there shopping for New Year gifts. Sherman bought a down jacket and a trench coat.

Sherman met Billy at the company once. Billy seemed to come to the company for something. He was in a suit and walked in a gentle manner.

Sherman and Billy passed each other without greeting as if they were strangers. And they didn't even make eye contact.

Sherman had been pretty cool. She was even colder than Billy. It had been quite a few days since Kingsley left. Sherman missed him.

They talked on the phone again in the afternoon. And Kingsley said he would come back as soon as possible.

Billy and Natalie were getting married tomorrow, which had been all over the news in the Santabaca. Everyone knew about it. In the evening.

In a coat, Billy walked out of the Day family's villa.

Though reluctant, Moriah helped with the preparations, while Sarah was quite willing to.

Billy's father was neither happy or unhappy. Anyway, to him, everything must be decent.

Sarah went out to stop Billy, but failed. Billy said he wanted to get a drink and he would return later at night.

Billy had a drink with Charlie at the bar. The wedding was approaching, but Billy didn't feel happy at all. Charlie did not say anything.

In the past, Charlie had thought that Billy and Sherman would be together till the last second of their life, while it was unexpected that they divorced.

When Sherman was about to go to bed, the doorbell rang. She went to open the door, and she was surprised to see Kingsley was back.

Sherman's eyes widened with surprise and delight. She leaned over and hugged him.

Kingsley pushed her away gently and said, "Wait a second. My body was cold all over. like the way you show your true feelings

Sherman looked at him, "You have been away for five days."

"Yes, and that's why come back. It is this late, but I've insisted on taking this flight." "It must be a tiresome trip. Let me prepare warm water for you to take a bath."

When Sherman was just about to turn around, Kingsley elutched ary tig toxied Bt her and thenat her belly, "I'll do it."

Sherman nodded and went to her room. Grace texted Sherman, "I'm going to Billy's wedding tomorrow. Will you go with me?" After thinking for a while, Sherman texted her back, "N o, I'll go with him."

Grace sent a series of emojis of bleeding knives, "You're dumping me for a guy."

"Isn't Summer going?" Sherman asked.

Summer felt that those two were revolting, so she worried that she could not eat. 'I'll just aojayerahal "laughgtthéin. r task is to eclipse that little bitch. Does she really think that she is an achiever as longas she wears a wedding dress?

Sherman was chatting when Kingsley came out of the bathroom in a nightgown beavered Ni eyes, and that content of Sherman's conversation with Grace came into his view.

Chapter 972

Natalie's wedding photos were already taken. She shared a few of them on Instagram and chose one of their wedding photos as her profile photo on Instagram.

Sherman didn't follow her, so she didn't see them. Grace sent all the photos and commented on them. "She looks out of shape in this photo. Oh, look at her long face."

"The photos are not good, and she dares to share them on Instagram to embarrass herself."

Sherman just sent a series of dots, indicating that she was helpless.

"I'll go with you tomorrow." Kingsley lifted the quilt and said, "Now turn off the computer and have a rest."

Sherman and Grace said goodnight, and then she turned off the computer. She snuggled into his warm arms and slept comfortably.

The next day.

Natalie had been looking forward to this wedding for a long time, so she woke up very early in the morning. Makeup and wedding dresses were taken care of by special personnel.

The wedding dress was from the most famous brand abroad, which was expensive and gorgeous. It could even be described as an exceptional and splendid wedding dress.

Natalie asked the makeup artist to make her makeup light but perfect.

Two hours later, Natalie finished her makeup and started doing her hair.

After it was all done, what appeared in the mirror was a perfect bride with crystal high heels on her feet.

All those friends from the past came to the wedding, and all they said were flattering words, but Natalie was happy to hear them. The crowd surrounded her in the middle. They constantly said words of praise and compliments.

Who would have thought that the ugly woman Billy hated the most would be able to beat Sherman and marry Billy today?

Who would not envy such a fate?

As for Sherman, people shook their heads, thinking that Sherman could not compare with Natalie.

So, a short-lived love couldn't prove anything. What was the point of Billy and Sherman being so in love with each other at that time?

But after hearing that Sherman would also come to Natalie's wedding, the crowd began to look forward to it. Would Sherman really come to her ex-husband's wedding? She was just asking for trouble and upset, so why bother?

In fact, Natalie was also looking forward to Sherman's arrival. Now, she finally found a sense of accomplishment in front of Sherman. That sense of accomplishment was incomparable to any feeling.

She had been looking forward to marrying Billy for seven years! After so many months and hours, her dream eventually came true.

Sherman came a little late because Kingsley asked Lee to bring her dress and she had a big breakfast.

Kingsley picked a long black strapless dress with gold wel upper bo Langhlayerafem ines, revealih her charming figure, her fair and beautiful neck, especially her charming collarbone.

This dress perfectly set off Sherman's elegance and charm.

She didn't wear makeup. Although she hadn't decided whether to keep! helaciincg wartddtto eep the baby safe as long as she had it in her belly.

She casually tied up her hair, and some hair draped right her OWT) @ laerschenivte er look even ole eautiful and eye-catching.

Sarah was annoyed, wondering why on earth Sherman was here.

Then her gaze swept over the man walking beside Sherman. Sarah couldn't help but be stunned and enchanted.

Chapter 973

Amature and elegant man was destined to be dazzling, let alone he had that facial features and stereoscopic face. Some men were bor to be different.

But to Sarah, he was no more than dazzling.

The two of them standing in the hall attracted many people's eyes. They looked so charming.

Sherman's classmates came out and saw her standing in the hall.

They weren't sure if she was Sherman, because she was so beautiful and elegant.

She spoke and behaved more gracefully than before.

Rumor had it she was having a hard time, but she didn't look like that. The man next to her was even more attractive. They were more glamorous than the bride and groom, and their charm was absolutely overwhelming.

Sherman greeted them with a faint smile, and she vaguely remembered their names. Kingsley was always by her side, his hand on her waist, the smile on his lips just like hers.

The wedding was about to start, and the first to come out was Billy, wearing a black suit, with a melancholy look on his face.

When Billy saw Kingsley was standing next to Sherman, his hand clenched by his side and his veins bulged, though no one noticed.

He looked away quickly.

Grace arrived even later, and when she saw what Sherman was wearing, she narrowed her eyes, smiled and gave Sherman a thumbs-up.

Her prince charming did have a good aesthetic, just like her.

Soon, Natalie came out. The white veil on her head floated gently in the breeze.

Because Natalie's dress was a knockout, she was content. But when she saw Sherman, who was smiling, she got angry. "Sherman's outfit draws so much attention. It's my wedding, and she's ruining it!"

Natalie was no match for Sherman, and Billy was no match for Kingsley either. The wedding was about Natalie and Billy, but they were upstaged.

Natalie didn't like that feeling, but her heart skipped a beat when she saw Kingsley.

A moment later, Natalie walked down the aisle and stopped next to Billy.

Anyway, she was going to be Mrs. Day.

‘Sherman looks beautiful with such a good man beside her, so what? will have a place in Santabaca as long as become Mrs. Day.’

Sherman wasn't thrilled, and Kingsley wasn't either.

Bored, Sherman whispered to Kingsley to leave together.

Kingsley smiled at her. He shook his head and told her by his eyes, ‘Just a moment, it's not polite to leave now.’ Sherman also felt it was a bit abrupt to leave. ‘Fine. It's just ten minutes. can bear it.’

Natalie wanted Sherman to make a fool of herself so that the classmates would regret her. But the result she finally got was not what she had expected.

The priest asked the newlyweds a few questions before beginning. “Vows, and then there was Silence. Natalie smiling, but Billy was expressionless.

"Billy Day, do you take this woman, Natalie Moore, to be your lawful wedded wife, to live with her in sickness and in health, and forsaking all others, be true to her, honor her, comfort her and keep her in sickness and in health, and forsaking all others, be true to her as long as you both shall live?"

Chapter 974

"do." Billy said in a low voice. No one saw his expression. After hearing his answer, Billy's father, Moriah and Sarah all let out a long sigh of relief.

“Natalie Moore, do you take this man, Billy Day, to be your lawful wedded husband, to live together in the estate of matrimony? Will you love him, honor him, comfort him and keep him in sickness and in health, and forsaking all others, be true to him as long as you both shall live?"

Naturally, Natalie had no hesitation in answering such a question. But just as she was about to say "I do, " the door of the church was pushed open.

Afterward, there was a chaotic sound of footsteps and talking.

The wedding had reached such a sacred moment, but it was interrupted. No matter who it was, one would be angry and pissed off.

Natalie was very angry. However, who was coming in?

Everyone looked at the door, only to see a large group of reporters holding microphones and cameras.

Obviously, that group of reporters didn't come for the wedding, nor for Natalie and Billy, but all for Kingsley.

"Mr. Wright, what are your plans for the development of CH Corporation in the coming quarter?"

"Mr. Wright, your company operates in Norwood, Lanechett, and Athana, but why do you stay in Santabaca all the time?"

Kingsley didn't answer the first question. As for the second question, he smiled, put his arm around Sherman's waist, and asked back, "What do you think?"

The reporters' gazes had shifted from Kingsley to Sherman.

The sudden shift in the reporters' gazes made Sherman a little anxious.

She took a deep breath and then smiled lightly.

"Also, isn't today Mr. Aaron Wright's birthday? As his younger son, why are you here on such an important day, Mr. Wright?" The wedding turned into a personal interview with Kingsley. The guests were puzzled.

However, they all knew about CH Corporation, which was listed in Athana and had a great reputation.

The businesses of CH Corporation covered many industries, such as hotels, catering, software development, and automotive manufacturing, among which its hotels were best known. It had hotels in some of the largest cities in the world.

The only difference between CH Corporation and other companies was that it was well-rounded. It thrived in every industry it was involved in.

Billy naturally knew about CH Corporation. Natalie knew well because she was in this business. It was the dream of many people to join that company which was particularly famous in the world.

But she did not expect that Kingsley would be the president of CH Corporation.

Natalie gasped, and she felt resentful. Her heart hurt a little, and she covered her chest with her hand and pretended to be calm, although her face was already pale.

Billy's face was pale too. He had never thought that was Kingsley's real identity. "Mr. Wright, you're not at your father's birthday party. Will he have complaints?" The reporter asked again.

"It's naturally not appropriate for me to be absent on his birthday," Kingsley said.

it for area sign and that Ferguson can keep her elated," Kingsley said tenderly, his deep eyes fixed on Sherman.

The others, however, were overwhelmed by his family background. They could often see Aaron on TV, so few people didn't know him.

"By the way, is this your girlfriend beside you? A few days ago, a reporter went to the hospital and saw Halperger on the gynecology department for a checkup. You don't seem to be engaged. What are you going to do about unmarried pregnancy?"

When such a question came out, Sherman was stunned and frozen in place. It felt as if bees were stinging her ears. Being a little anxious, she cast a sideways glance at Kingsley quickly.

She had never thought that he would know the news of her pregnancy in this way.

Chapter 975

Kingsley caught her eye, looking vaguely surprised. Then, he smiled, "I'm delighted to accept it. This is good news for me." Anyone would be angry if their wedding ended up like this.

Maybe because the wedding was interrupted, or maybe because of Kingsley's real identity, or maybe because Sherman and Kingsley attracted the attention of the guests, Billy had a stern face.

Billy was just about to remind them it was his wedding, but was stopped by his father, "Stay there. I'll go!"

Since Kingsley had such a good background, Billy's father would be sensible about what to say.

"Mr. Wright, today is Billy's wedding. But it's inappropriate to make such a scene." Billy's father said.

"I'm sorry." Kingsley apologized, rubbing his eyebrows with his long fingers, "I didn't know they would suddenly come over..." "They" referred to the reporters.

At the same time, a reporter said, "I'm sorry that we shouldn't have come here and made trouble for you.

We'd like to offer our most sincere apologies. We're really sorry. We'll leave immediately."

As the saying goes, "We'd better not argue with people who apologize to us." Since the reporter apologized and was clear about what was going on, Billy's father didn't want to say anything.

Besides, this was Billy's wedding. Many guests were of high status in Santabaca. If the atmosphere was too awkward, the Day family would be ashamed.

Billy's father nodded but didn't say anything. He had a stern face. Nobody wanted the wedding of their children to be interrupted. Kingsley hooked his lips slightly, reached out to wrap Sherman's waist, and led her outside.

The reporters flocked over like bees. The cameras kept flashing with blinding white light.

"Mr. Wright, since you've stayed in Santabaca for so long, do you want to develop your business here?"

"Mr. Wright, do you like children?"

Kingsley smiled, and his black eyes were bright, "I like children very much..."

"Mr. Wright..."

The reporters kept asking Kingsley questions even though they were heading outside. They walked past the red carpet and kept asking him.

It took a long time before the auditorium finally quieted down and the voices died away.

But people's enthusiasm for the wedding was also interrupted.

No one knew the anger in Natalie's heart. She had a deep well of anger. Her heart was full of dissatisfaction.

'Why does Sherman keep living better than me? I now finally get together with Billy and become Mrs. Day!

But Sherman has met Kingsley and carried his baby, who turns out to be the president of CH Corporation. Why is Sherman so lucky?"

The classmates hadn't left yet. They didn't expect this to happen.

The rest of the process was ordinary without any passion. But when Natalie held their young ones touch other and that He exchanged rings.

Near the end of the wedding, Mark went there with Charlotte Hewast\ wearing @ black shiny leather shoes. Summer didn't go there.

Chapter 976

Grace reached out to hold Charlotte in her arms, but Charlotte was unwilling. She wrapped her small fair hands around Mark's neck tightly. She wasn't feeling well and wanted to be with Mark. Grace patted her back gently and then looked at the scene expressionlessly.

Charlie told Mark about Kingsley's identity. Sherman lived a better life than before. Billy was inferior to Kingsley.

Kingsley had his arm around Sherman and they walked out of the auditorium. Her heart was beating quickly, and she was too nervous to look at Kingsley.

The news of her pregnancy was exposed so suddenly. She was very shocked and couldn't calm down till now.

The reporters chased after Kingsley and asked him questions, but he just smiled and didn't say anything. He shielded Sherman and opened the car door to let her in. And then he got in the car and left with Sherman.

The car was quiet, as if they could hear the sound when a pin dropped on the ground.

Sherman looked out the window. At this moment, she was distracted.

She hadn't decided whether to have the child, and this news was exposed. She was very upset. Kingsley's eyes swept over her. Then Kingsley narrowed his eyes without saying anything. When the banquet at the hotel was over, Mark wanted to leave.

Billy, who was in the groom's suit, chased him and wanted to retain him.

Looking at Charlotte in his arms, Mark felt so heartbroken and said, "Charlotte isn't feeling well. She wants to be with me these days. I'll treat you a drink when I'm free."

Billy twitched his thin lips and didn't retain him. Charlie and Grace also walked out. Charlie shrugged his shoulders helplessly, indicating that he had to leave. Grace hugged her chest with both hands. She didn't want Charlie to stay.

Billy's two best friends left. The others were just fair-weather friends or acquaintances of Billy. They didn't put much enthusiasm into the celebration and left very early.

This was the wedding Natalie had long looked forward to. But she wasn't satisfied with it.

Sherman appeared first. Then the reporters barged in. At last, Kingsley's real identity was revealed.

Those people made such a scene at her wedding. How could she not be angry? What made her more angry was that Billy didn't touch her on that night...

The two of them slept in the same bed. Billy slept on the left side and she on the right side. Nothing happened.

It was late when Sherman and Kingsley got back to the apartment! Sherman didn't speak from the time

Yoh ;

she got in the car, and neither did

Kingsley.

Kingsley went to the bathroom to take a shower. Sherman poured a glass of warm water and drank it while lost in thought. Suddenly, the phone rang, which startled her. She looked over. The phone on the table was Kingsley's.

She looked at the phone and found it was a call from a stranger. She didn't answer it, but the phone kept ringing.

She picked up the phone and knocked on the bathroom door, "Someone is calling you."

The water in the bathroom was loud and the bathroom was misty. After a while, Kingsley asked her in a deep voice to answer the phone.

Sherman hesitated for a moment, and then she answered the phone. The man on the other side of the phone was very respectful and called "Mr. Wright" first.

She tried to speak, but the man didn't give her a chance. He started to speak again. Sherman's body stiffened as she heard what he said.

The man was talking about what happened today at the wedding. But what he said was the inside information...

He said in such a respectful way about how he had organized the reporters at Mr. Wright's behest and how he had gone to the wedding...

At this point, Sherman realized that Kingsley had let the reporters in on purpose. It was all part of his plan. So did he know about her pregnancy early on?

Holding her glass tightly, she thought he had such sharp eyes to see through it all, and then she remembered that he had asked Lee to bring her soup every day.

Sherman thought he had known it for a long time, but he had kept it to himself. Her heart was full of anger...

After a while, Kingsley came out. When he turned around, he found Sherman staring at him. He smiled and then said, "Are you finally talking?"

"Did you know that thing long ago?" Sherman asked.

Kingsley's deep eyes flickered and then he looked up, "Which one?"

After a pause, Sherman said slowly, "My pregnancy."

Kingsley didn't want to hide anything from her. He didn't hesitate and nodded, "Yes."

After she had heard it, Sherman's heart trembled a little and her body slightly quivered. She asked, "Why haven't you told me this? Are you hiding it from me?"

She wondered when he knew about it and how long he had kept it from her.

"What's on your mind? You've been hiding it from me. You know everything, but you don't tell me, and am like a clown." She was more agitated than excited.

With Sherman's words, the warmth on Kingsley's face faded. There was some obvious emotion in his deep voice. He said, "It seems that you hid this from me first, Sherman..."

He didn't like the way she spoke. Was he so deliberately trying to embarrass her in her mind?

Sherman took a deep breath, but she was in a violent agitation. She said, "But you set me up."

"Set you up?"

For the first time, Kingsley's face became grim. His expression was more serious than ever. He asked, "Are you sure set you up?"

Sherman's chest moved slightly from gasping, but she said nothing.

"When first learned that you were pregnant, was so happy that couldn't Ne Since wa responsible for you and the baby. Tell me how to set you up."

This was the first time he had been so angry. His eyes narrowed and darkened as he said this.

Chapter 978

Sherman had never seen him like this before. She knew she had just said something wrong. "Why do you think I set you up?"

Kingsley rarely got angry. He looked at her with deep eyes, with mockery on his lips. He immediately pushed open the bedroom door and walked straight in, ignoring her.

It was the first time he was angry at her, and the first time he had lost his temper.

Sherman stood in place with the glass of water in her hand. In fact, those words weren't what she really wanted to say. What she wanted to express was different from what he thought...

He had always been good to her and had never cheated her. However, this time he had deceived her for so long! Besides, she was in a bad mood, so she said those words.

She was still flustered till now. She didn't know how to express herself. He had forced her into a dead end.

She knew that all those words he said at the wedding with a smile actually had deep meaning.

When he opened his mouth, she understood his meaning. He had made it clear to her that he would be responsible for her and the baby.

But she panicked as she hadn't figured out how to deal with her future relationship. Nor had she figured out whether she would have the baby. She was afraid that they would have conflicts in the future...

She thought a lot about it. He had forced her, so she got angry, lost her temper, and said those words.

In fact, it was all her fault. If she had thought about it, she could have understood his intentions.

She didn't have a good figure. Nor did she have money. But Kingsley had both of them. Why did he set her up? However, when he was angry, he looked so scary.

Sherman calmed down. She sat in front of the window and poured another glass of warm water. As she drank the water, she pondered.

After half an hour or so, she came back to her senses.

She was indeed worried about their relationship. She had been hurt so deeply before, so she didn't dare to tell Kingsley about the baby. Moreover, he was excellent, so she had no confidence.

The child was innocent. She was afraid that after the child was born, it would bring him hurt and misery.

So she had been hesitant!

However, his intention at the wedding and his words just now made her suddenly reach a decision.

She was going to try hard one more time. Even if they broke up in the end, having this child would be enough.

The last child was miscarried. She treated this child as a gift from God.

In fact, if she decided to abort the baby again, she was afraid she would be in as much pain as she was last time.

She rummaged through her suitcase and found a scarf that she had knitted before, which was yellow, soft and beautiful.

That child was unfortunate. She had knitted many thin Sifax \that, enhlal blit dq(tused'them. Now, should abort this child?

Thinking about it, Sherman felt heartbroken. In fact, she was softhearted.

Sherman reached out to stroke the scarf and then put it away. Apart from \ m eae the Shorter the only pieces left for that child was this. Now it was useful...

She was suddenly relieved. She looked to the bedroom. The Cagito! hota rAwas elsed' hen Kingsley he ne temper, he looked so scary.

Chapter 979

It was indeed her fault...

Sherman walked over and knocked on the door of the room gently, "Open the door. need to get something."

Sherman continued, "Can you open the door? need to change my shoes."

Then a low but angry male voice came out through the door, "won't open the door. Please leave!"

"I'm sorry... But have to say... This is my apartment and my bedroom. Maybe you should leave..." After a while, Sherman said. There was no sound inside the room. Sherman curiously put her ear to the door, but she couldn't hear any sound.

She thought that he should be more angry.

She stood there for a moment. She was about to say something when the bedroom door suddenly opened from the inside. She didn't expect to stumble forward. Then she immediately withdrew her feet and stood firm.

Kingsley stood in front of her. He had already taken off his bathrobe. At this time he was wearing a black suit, which was angular and straight.

But he wasn't as gentle as usual. He was as indifferent and distant as when they had encountered for the first time. Before she said something, he had already left quickly. She just smelled the faint fragrance of shower gel. The shower gel was selected by Sherman, which had a faint orange aroma.

Sherman came back to her senses and then chased him. But he was tall with long legs. He had already taken the elevator downstairs and sat in the car.

He started the car, turned around, and left...

Sherman thought that he must be really angry.

Her words just now had hurt him.

Half an hour later, Grace went there. She said that she wouldn't go back tonight and would stay there. She seemed to remember something and asked, "Where's my Princess Charming?"

Sherman poured her a glass of water, sat across the sofa, and said honestly, "We had a fight."

The water in Grace's mouth almost spurted out. She frowned, "Are you sure?"

"Yes. He just left." Sherman said. "Gosh, you are so powerful to make him argue with you."

Sherman didn't say anything and propped both hands on the edge of the table, then he rubbed her t les with her fingers, feeling headache.

"He is very gentle and considerate. Moreover, he is older and more mature and-sepeible {Rar your It's imbAbbie for him to argue with you. Tell me, what was going on?"

Grace believed her taste in men. Sherman told her what she and Kingsley had said earlier.

After hearing that, Grace laughed, "Do you think you are more beautiful than Sago Tenens after than Bill bs Why does he set you up?"

Sherman knew it herself. She twisted her mouth but didn't say anything.

Chapter 980

"But appreciate the difficulty of your position. You get pregnant before labeling your relationship with him. So, your irritation is understandable. But you are largely to be blamed for this matter. You should say something to make your man feel better. Each kind of man needs sweet talk sometimes and a man like Kinglsey is no exception."

Sherman nodded. She had wanted to do so, but Kingsley didn't give her a chance.

Subsequently, Grace told Sherman something about Billy's wedding. Grace said that Billy put on a long face at the wedding and that the wedding ended early.

Grace was speaking and Sherman was listening, during which Sherman was calm, and there was a slight emotional change in her heart. But such a slight change was nothing special. Sherman wasn't surprised at all.

At night, the two went to bed together. Sherman had fallen asleep, while Grace was awake. Grace lay on her side and watched the cold night outside the window.

Being unable to get pregnant was always a scar on Grace's heart, and her relationship with Charlie's mother was getting worse. She really wanted her relationship with Charlie to last, defying others' opinions, gossip and the wishes of Charlie's parents. But she did not know how much longer she could do this... 'Billy has remarried to keep his bloodline, then Charlie..."

But Grace wanted to keep it up till she wouldn't be able to, or till the moment when Charlie didn't want to go on like this. When the time came, she would offer to leave.

Grace appeared to be extroverted and lively and it seemed that she didn't care about anything. But in fact, she was not so.

She was a woman, after all. Beneath her tough appearance, she was also sensitive. Being unable to get pregnant was the biggest pity in her life.

Now, why Grace could hold on like this under so much pressure and criticism was because Charlie told her that he didn't mind it, and he always loved her whether they would have a baby or not.

Bearing these words in mind, Grace would fight with all her strength. But if one day Charlie became fed up with her, Grace thought they then didn't have to keep up their marriage.

She came to Sherman's place to relieve herself and catch her breath. She wanted to relax herself tonight and then went on facing her life.

It was Saturday and Sherman needed not to go to work. In the morning, after dressing up, Sherman took a taxi to Kingsley's villa. Sherman got to the villa soon. She went up and rang the doorbell, but no one answered it, then she rang it again and again.

It seemed that there was no one in the villa. No one answered the door after Sherman rang the bell many times. Sherman frowned. Then she saw Lee get off the car.

"Where is he?" Sherman asked.

Lee told Sherman that Mr. Wight was very busy today and that he left early in the morning. Besides, Lee came back now to get some stuff and he would leave soon.

Sherman sat down on the bench and asked for the newspaper in Lee's hands, having no intention of leaving. Lee frowned and said, "am going to meet Mr. Wright. Do you wanna go with me?"

She shook her head and said, "I will stay here and wait for him."

This stuff Lee got was urgently needed, so he didn't stay any longer. Sherman opened the newspaper to find that Kingsley had made the headline.

Yesterday Billy held the wedding, he would have made the headline, but Kingsley replaced him. Billy and Natalie also saw the news, and naturally, they felt unpleasant. Billy directly threw the newspaper away.

When Natalie was reading the newspaper, there was surge Osi) er in-hepehas She was getting Wie and angrier, but she had no way to vent.

She had thought that Kingsley's background was just s 0 so, but she didn't expect that Kingsley had such a brilliant background. Kingsley and Sherman made the headlines. Natalie's chest was rising and falling rapidly. Then it was time for breakfast. Sarah asked Natalie about her honeymoon with Billy. Natalie replied shyly, "It's up to Billy".

Hearing this, Moriah said directly, "It's almost the end of ene ardBilly is busy with te Wor nthe company. Forget about the honeymoon."

Natalie was unhappy inwardly, but considering she had just got married, she didn't talk more about this. Then she lowed her head and had soup.

Recently, Billy had got busier dealing with businesses in the ompacy! it! Ss at the end ofthe Year and Billy Mes up to the honeymoon, so he agreed in a low voice.

Previously, anger was boiling up in Natalie's heart, but the next second Billy's reply chilled her heart.
