

Primordial 86

Chapter 86 Wanyuan Town

Looking at the ninety Spirit Gathering Pills in his hand that still held some residual heat, Lin Chen could hardly believe that this was real.

Unlike the Body Tempering Pill, the Spirit Gathering Pill was a Second-grade Elixir. Even Second Grade Pharmacists couldn't achieve a 90% success rate in pill creation, let alone a Third Grade Pharmacist.

Yet Lin Chen's Pill Spirit Array had done just that, and in a single night no less.

An alchemist who could produce fifty elixirs in one night would already be considered highly efficient, but Lin Chen's Pill Spirit Array had produced ninety, nearly double that efficiency.

If news of Lin Chen's Pill Spirit Array were to spread, it would likely shock the entire Great Flame Dynasty, and even the whole Mysterious Heaven Continent.

That was precisely why Lin Chen frowned in secrecy, dispersing his Spiritual Power and causing the effects of the Pill Spirit Array to vanish as it seemed no more than various trinkets to an onlooker.

Lin Chen was not planning to reveal this secret to Xu Lianyu or Yang Yuemin just yet.

After all, the Spiritual Pill Formation was too heaven-defying, with a pill creation success rate of ninety percent. Lin Chen felt that if he could get some higher quality materials and improve the Pill Spirit Array a bit more, the success rate might go up even further, possibly reaching one hundred percent.

This was merely for refining the Second Grade Elixir, the Spirit Gathering Pill, which wasn't even the most powerful among its grade, but merely the most widely used by martial artists to absorb and enhance their strength. However, with frequent use, one could develop a resistance, and the body would need a period of adjustment to refine and expel the impurities within.

Though Lin Chen's practice of the Primordial Transformation Art could ignore this, other martial artists couldn't.

But what if Lin Chen could refine other types of elixirs, such as the Second Grade Elixir Frenzy Pill, which could temporarily boost a martial artist's cultivation without any side effects, unlike the Bloodthirsty Pill that Lin Liang had taken, which greatly harmed the body?

The Frenzy Pill was one of the most difficult Second-grade Elixirs to refine, as it required one to condense the berserk demonic power into a pill in a gentle manner. Its value far exceeded that of the Spirit Gathering Pill.

If Lin Chen were to use the Pill Spirit Array to refine it, a success rate of ninety percent would be enough to cause an uproar in the entire Alchemy World.

As Lin Chen pondered this, he could barely contain his excitement.

"Not a bad idea, but the priority right now is to gather some materials,"

Lin Chen shook his head and chuckled self-deprecatingly.

In four days, he had exhausted all the materials he had exchanged for six hundred Contribution Points. Now, he only had the ninety high-quality Spirit Gathering Pills and ten Second-grade Talisman Inscriptions he had written.

The Jade Cauldron Sect was different from Desolate Sky City. In Desolate Sky City, Lin Chen's Second Grade Talismans had sold for the price of 30,000 Low-grade Spirit Stones at the auction.

Within the Jade Cauldron Sect, without the hype and sales methods of an auction house, it was naturally impossible to achieve such a high price.

But now, the batch of elixirs and talismans Lin Chen held was already a significant fortune.

This time, Lin Chen did not plan to keep them for himself but intended to sell them first, then buy materials, and use the Pill Spirit Array to refine more elixirs, turning money into more money.

With the Pill Spirit Array at his disposal, Lin Chen wouldn't feel too exhausted. Eventually, he would have an endless supply of elixirs to consume.

To sell the elixirs and talismans he was holding, Lin Chen did not intend to go to the Spiritual Treasure Pavilion of the sect.

The Spiritual Treasure Pavilion allowed for the purchase of any cultivation resource a martial artist might need using Contribution Points; naturally, one could also sell items in exchange for sect Contribution Points or Spirit Stones.

However, the handling fee was three percent of the sales price, and while that might not seem like much, three out of a thousand Spirit Stones amounted to thirty, and the sect's purchasing prices for materials and elixirs were already quite low, which many lower-level martial artists simply couldn't accept.

Therefore, Lin Chen planned to go to Wanyuan Town at the foot of the Jade Cauldron Sect to sell his elixirs and talismans.

Although it was called a town, it was larger than the entire Desolate Sky City, and it had everything one could imagine. It was a very complex place built on the reliance of the Jade Cauldron Sect. Some disciples and even elders of the Jade Cauldron Sect had their own shops there, and besides, there were other forces from the Great Flame Dynasty present.

Wanyuan Town did not inquire about the origin and history of the items for sale, and some goods there were illicit; in theory, this place should not have been allowed by the Jade Cauldron Sect, yet it had persisted, and because of its existence, the Jade Cauldron Sect even sometimes sourced certain items from there.

Lin Chen donned a black robe and concealed his features, then left Jade Bird Peak and headed towards Wanyuan Town.

Upon leaving Jade Bird Peak, Lin Chen took out a two-meter-large Green Bird from the space within the Primordial Myriad Transformation Cauldron, a replica he had made of Xu Lianyu's Green Bird Boat after his last return.

But Lin Chen's Green Bird could not be considered a real Flying Boat; it merely had a few flying spiritual formations imposed on it, barely capable of flight, and had not been truly refined.

A Flying Boat was a combination of artifact refining and spiritual formations; the material of the boat itself had to be processed by an artifact refiner, and then a formation master would inscribe spiritual formations onto it.

However, Lin Chen's Green Bird was merely a semi-finished product, missing the artifact refining step.

He stepped onto the Green Bird, powered it with Spirit Stones, and flew towards Wanyuan Town.

Joining the Jade Cauldron Sect meant that unless one had permission from the sect, disciples could not easily leave the mountain, except for those on missions or True Disciples.

As a True Disciple like Lin Chen, there were no restrictions, and since Wanyuan Town was at the foot of the Jade Cauldron Sect's mountain, it didn't count as leaving the sect, and even Outer Sect Disciples could go there.

"Look there, what's that? Such a compact flying boat, seems like another big shot has arrived."

"Who knows, that might be a True Disciple from one of the Jade Cauldron Sect's peaks."

"Be careful what you say, didn't you notice that the person deliberately covered his identity? Be cautious, lest misfortune comes from your words."

After Lin Chen arrived in Wanyuan Town, he immediately caught the attention of some people.

Among those people were ones like Lin Chen, who had purposefully covered their identities with their garments, as well as those who showed their true faces.

It was Lin Chen's first visit to Wanyuan Town, though he had already heard about it from the other Outer Sect Disciples.

Seeing the reactions of those people, Lin Chen thought to himself that he still hadn't been cautious enough. Next time, he should collect the Green Bird from a considerable distance away and walk to the town; that way, he could avoid being targeted by others.

Even though the crowd currently regarded Lin Chen as a figure of significance and held some reverence, it's always better to err on the side of caution. If he encountered someone with ill intentions, it wouldn't be good.