

Lycan Prince Matteo

Seventeen

Matteo

Freya has a point and it calmed my beast. I admit that I felt hurt when she told me that she had not told her parents about us yet. Thinking about how surprised the pack was earlier, she has a good reason not to rush things between us. She had been bullied and even if she was not a pushover, I still need to consider that she was hesitant towards me at first because of the fact that she had no scent and none of us could smell her.

She was adopted. Calvin told me after he asked about her around the pack. That may be the reason why the others didn't care about her, plus the fact that she had no scent. What made me think was, why can't she just tell them that she has her wolf? When she fought with Britney, she indirectly told Jack about that, but I don't think he took it seriously or that any of them believed her.

"She left?" Calvin asked, "I told Kevin to follow her." he added and I nodded. "What happened?" he asked again. I sighed before I sat back in bed and told him what had happened.

"You cannot blame her, you know," he said, "She found out about you the moment we arrived and she had no idea what she was going to tell you because she knew that you wouldn't be able to smell her scent. Let's be real, you know well that when she confronted you while you were with Eunice announcing you were hers, you would never believe her either."

"But I will be able to know that once I look in her eyes," I replied,

"Something she had no idea about. I doubt if anyone here knew that either." I was silent for a moment and got his point. But the pain I feel because I feel like I was the only one who wanted her.

"She was willing to let me go and considered taking Clay as her chosen mate." I told him, "I saw them kissing, then found out that she was mine later. Do you know how painful it was? I heard them talking. I heard her tell him that she already has a mate and has no intention of saying or claiming it."

"When everything's OK with you two, you know the happiness that awaits you, right?" he reminded me and I smiled at him. Yeah, I had to think about the time when I mark and mate with her. She will be able to feel all of me and I for her. I guess I will only have to think about it and let all that happens here slide.

"Now, let's get down to business." he said, and I looked at him, seriously. We are almost done with the investigation and no matter how much I think about it, I still couldn't believe why a lycan would do that to the pack.

"What did you find out?"

"It was confirmed. Lycans were behind the attack."

"Who?"

"No idea. But I am sure. I had already captured the rogue and I was lucky to find someone who knows a lot about it."

"And?"

"They were trying to prevent you from meeting your mate?"

"What? What do you mean?"

"I guess her highness was from that pack. I saw her and her parents in the territory once but they told me that it was because they were only trying to show her their fighting skills."

"Freya said that her parents might not want to leave the pack either because they wanted to do something first. Finding out about that incident might be their reason, right?"

"I wonder how Lycan knew about her highness being your mate. I mean she was just a child back then." Calvin commented, and I agree with him. Freya won't be able to know I am hers and I don't know if I would, too, but nevertheless, they somehow knew about us.

"What about the scent that I smell in the palace?" I asked, confused.

"Then maybe her highness is your second chance mate?" It was possible. Maybe the one from the howlers pack that went to the palace died in the attack which made Freya my second chance. But, is it possible for a lycan like me to find a second chance? It was already close to zero chance of finding my first mate, but I found the second?

"Let's not talk about that. Now that we have already found some clues, when are you going to bring her highness to the palace and meet the King?"

"We will leave two days from now." I replied and he nodded. I'm sure that he wanted to go back to the palace as well, especially if he didn't find his mate there. The reason why he was willing to come with me was because of the fact that his mate might be somewhere he had never been to. So he joined me here just in case she was just in the pack as well.

"I think the king will have his answer for all of these." and that's what I believe too. I hope that dad had some information about the second chance mates. I also need not forget about the fact that Freya might be in danger.

"I have to go to see Freya and talk to her parents about her coming with us, back to the palace." I said and we stood up. I know that he is with me and will do anything for my mate as well, because of the fact that she is his future queen.

Being the Lycan Prince and future King, I shouldn't feel nervous about anything. But because I know how Freya was, I couldn't help but feel that way. She never invited me to her house even once and even if she came with me to the villa at the end of the day after the tournament, we still didn't get intimate with each other.

Her wolf was in her transformation stage and the last full moon was the fifth one since I came here, so she will only need another one to fully transform into a lycan. I opted to wait for that before I claimed her so it would be less painful. Until then, I have to control myself and my beast and I hope that he will not give me a hard time.