

Lycan Prince Matteo

Thirty-Two

Freya

It's going to be a full moon later tonight and Pi told me that we would be transforming into a Lycan. She said that it was going to be very painful and we would want our mate to be with us if that happened. But what can I do? Matteo had not come back and even if I wanted to worry about him, what Eunice had told me was repeatedly playing in my head. I think it was more painful than our transformation.

"Princess, Lord Rapha told me that you will not be training today. He needs to attend a very important meeting with the king," Camila said. I was in our bedroom getting ready. I was actually not in the mood today and I don't know why that is. I don't feel like doing anything and even if I am excited doing the training every day, I guess there always comes a time when I don't feel like doing it or anything at all.

"I see, thank you." I replied and went back to the walk-in closet and thought about whether I should change or not. It was very early in the morning and I wondered what it was they needed to talk about. Did something happen around the kingdom or with Matteo? I dismissed the latter because I thought that I would be able to know if something really happened to him.

'Relax, Frey. Nothing happened to mate.' Pi said, she's the only one who knows exactly what I am feeling. I cannot hide that from her because we share the same body. I was glad that she understood me and had been trying to ease my worries.

'I hope so, but thinking that no one wanted me to know about what was really going on, it made me think that I don't really belong here.' I replied,

'That's not true, King wanted us. I'm sure that they were OK, he will let us know if not.' she replied,

'Then, has he talked to you ever since they left?' I asked, 'Are you hiding something from me too?'

'No, of course not. He had not contacted me ever since they left and I also had no idea about what was going on with him. They were probably really far from the palace and were having a hard time connecting with me. But believe me, the king wanted us and really cared about us. If there was something he hid from us, it is the fact that he might harm us,' she answered. I sighed heavily. She had been very calm ever since and would always want to see things in a different light.

'Alright, let's not talk about them. I didn't want to completely ruin everything today.'" I said, sadly. A few runs would definitely ease all the tension in my body, so I decided to leave my room and totally forget about Camila who was now following me.

"Princess, where are you going?" I heard her say from behind.

"Oh, I'm sorry, I forgot about you. I will just run around since training has been canceled." I told her, smiling. I didn't want to worry about her either.

"Then let me follow you."

"No need, Camila. I'm afraid that you won't be able to keep up with me."

"You will only run in your human form, so why won't I be able to keep up with you?"

"I'm quite fast, you know," I replied.

"Still, I should still be able to at least come."

"You will only get tired."

"Please, princess,," she pleaded, couldn't say no to that.

"Alright, come on." I said and started to run. I had to match her pace, so even if I was thinking that I was really slow, I didn't complain. I didn't want her to think that I was mocking her or whatever.

The kingdom was big. I mean all that surrounds the palace. All packs included in the kingdom are even those that are miles away from where I am right now. We only have one kingdom and wherever the royals go, anyone receiving them knows that they need to bow to them whichever country they are from. The Lycans led the werewolves and it was clear to all of us that the royals had duties and responsibilities to the werewolves. Witches, faes and other species bow to them as well, even if they have their own king and queen.

Vampires is another story. They didn't want to be led by the Lycans. That's why they were mortal enemies. But even if it was like that, they still tried to make peace and live in harmony. They got into a treaty that would protect humans and others. Whoever breaks the treaty means starting a war against the other.

"Are you alright, Camila?" I asked when I noticed that she was already exhausted. We are in the woods and I don't know if I will be able to go back from where we came from.

"Yes, princess. I was just a little tired." she replied, panting, so I decided to come closer to her to help her sit.

"We will rest first and we will call this a day." I told her, smiling and planning to go back after she regained her strength from all the running that we had. She was smiling as she nodded her head, so I guess she's not mad at me for bringing her this far. "I hope you still know our way back," I said after,

"What?" she asked, confused, which confused me as well. Doesn't she know our way back? "I just followed you and didn't bother looking around. All my attention was focused on you alone, thinking you knew where we were heading," she said,

"Great," I said, laughing. "Then I think it's good to say that we are lost." I added,

"Oh goddess,"

"Don't worry, we will be able to find our way back to the palace. We are already adults and still in the palace's territory."

"Are we?" she asked worriedly as she looked around.

"Don't scare yourself. If anything, I wouldn't let anything harm you or me."

"That's comforting, princess," she replied. We didn't bring water or anything to keep us hydrated and I was worried about her. I didn't think that she would be able to continue to run or walk back to the palace.

"Can you mind link someone to get us here?" I asked,

"I already did princess."

"Thank you," I replied and sat beside her and waited for whoever she mind linked to come and get us. If it was just me, I'm sure that I would be able to go back in one piece. But I am worried about her. I think she can't afford to take another step. We were both exchanging our stories when we heard the sound of a broken tree branch. We looked behind us and found four rogues. Since when did they start walking around in fours? Why would I think about that when I had to think about how I was going to take Camila with me and run? Surely, they will be able to catch us in no time and that is not good.
