

Lycan Prince Matteo by Lovella Chapter 56a-60

Chapter 56 (a)

Matteo

Dad and I talked in his office while Freya was with Calvin and her friends. I'm sure that they wanted to be together now that they were done with their training. Giving my mate time for her friends made me jealous, especially when it was about Clay. But no one can blame me since I caught them kissing. Well, it may have been before we were together. However, the fact that she was aware that she was mine and still thought of having a chosen mate made me feel this way. But I wanted her to be happy and I knew that being with her family and friends would do the trick, so I had to be understanding. Plus, I already knew she loved me.

Dad and I agreed to organize an event for the entire kingdom where everyone must attend. We wanted Freya to meet everyone in the palace. We wanted to see if she could remember the person who entertained her and her parents when they visited the palace. I would like to know who it was so I can punish him. They prevented me from seeing my mate. What if I never ventured into the Midnight Pack? How would I know that Freya is mine? Especially when she has no scent.

I proceeded to my mini library after that to check if everything was ready for transfer. I wanted to renovate it so Freya and I could use it comfortably. She likes to read too and I would like her to continue her studies and that's where her class will take place. She didn't want to come back with me in the midnight pack for a valid reason. Having promised to let her finish school, I had to keep my promise. It's because she's smart that I feel so proud of her.

I was checking the shelves when I smelled a familiar scent and when I turned, Eunice was already there.

"I miss you so much, Matteo," she said. I feel sorry and guilty for her. If I hadn'

t entertained her, she wouldn't act like that. In order to prevent a negative impression of our relationship from her, I should not have tolerated her for her misdeeds.

"I already told you to call me by my title, Eunice," I replied.

"Let's talk, please," she said.

"There's nothing to discuss. Things are clear between us, don't make it difficult for yourself," I replied. Freya will definitely get mad at me if she finds out I am talking to her. As much as possible, I didn't want her to think that I was still seeing other women. She's so insecure since she was hurt before, even though it wasn't intentional. "Leave now, I still need to check on some things." I replied and was about to turn my back on her when the door opened. I was shocked and, for a moment, I didn't know what to do when I saw Freya.

She's pissed and angry. I could see that. She was about to jump at Eunice but I had to stop her since she's the luna of the palace and a princess. I didn't want her to do something that tarnished her reputation and I was glad she listened and calmed herself down.

Eunice talking back to her was really irritating and then she told me about rejecting her mate, which I didn't ask her to do. It was true what I said about being happy for her. My destined mate gives me so much happiness. I would love to have her experience that in his privilege as his prince, for the sake of old times. Since she didn't want to stop and I think Freya had thought of a solution for us not to be troubled by her anymore, I decided to banish her. It will be difficult, but if it makes my relationship with Freya peaceful, I will have to do it.

Eunice got mad and it was a good thing that I had already mind linked Calvin so he could take her away. I'm sure he swears by me in his mind since he constantly reminds me of her. He asked me several times. not to get intimate with her but I didn't listen to him and now, I had to trouble him. "You had better compensate me for this," he mind linked me as he pulled Eunice away.

‘Will do, my friend.’ I replied before Freya and I headed to my dad’s office. She was still not talking to me and I felt scared. I know how she is when angry and I prepared myself for that.

“We just talked, why are you back?” Dad asked as we entered his office. “How are you dear? Why the long face?” she asked Freya this time.

My mate glared at me before answering, “Someone rekindled their old flame.” Dad looked at me asking for an explanation.

“It’s nothing like that,” I said, and told them what had happened.

“He just left here and I am not saying this because he is my son, but because it’s the truth.” Freya sat quietly and glanced at him.

“His highness, I can see Eunice as a threat to our relationship. I am not the type to be over-jealous, but no matter how much I trust Matteo, I couldn’t find it in my heart to trust her,” she admitted. “I didn’t want to be always on my guard when it comes to my mate, and I can’t help but feel that way.”

“What do you suggest I do?” Dad asked.

“I told her I would banish her,” I said. “But I know it is not my call. I needed your permission to do that,” I added.

“Banishing her will be a very hard decision because we all know that she’s the daughter of one of our royal advisors.” he replied, “But I am going to look at this closer and talk to Ronaldo and give them an ultimatum to make sure that she’s not going to make any more unnecessary claims or actions.”

“I appreciate that, his highness.”

“I didn’t want you two to have such a problem. I can’t continue to blame Matteo for this because I know it will not solve the problem.” Dad said, “But promise me this, dear.” He added and looked intently at my mate. “Don’t let your emotions cloud your judgment. Remember that our enemy wants you and Matteo to separate. Don’t give him that happiness.”

“I understand his highness,” she replied and I sighed in relief.

“I love you baby, please believe that.” I said to assure her and I hope it was enough. We left dad’s office and headed back to our bedroom. Later, the Omega called us for dinner. We ate in our bedroom since she was not in the mood to go out, maybe because of the incident earlier.

“I’m sorry if I doubt you again,” she said. I sighed and even if I wanted to get mad at her because of that, I understood her thinking she had a reason for it. Eunice doesn’t want to give up and I hope that after dad talks to her and her dad, she will come to her senses and move on.

“You have nothing to be sorry about. But I want you to know that you are the only woman for me and no one else. King will never agree with me if I ever look for another, since he was doing that before I found you.”

“Yeah, Pi too. She doesn’t like anyone but you and King,” she replied. We ended the night knowing we would talk first before we jumped to any conclusion. I asked her to confront me and be rational just in case someone plotted something to separate us.

It had been a week since that day and we were together all the time. I showed her the new library design and its purpose. She was very happy and thankful and I could see it. She looked excited and looked forward to the continuation of he r college. Tomorrow the renovation will start and I hope that after our pack visit to the Crimson Pack, everything is done and ready for her. We are ready to leave with Calvin and other warriors since we have to investigate a series of kidnappings. Does my uncle have anything to do with it?

They arrive at the Crimson Pack the same way they did at the Midnight Pack before. But Matteo reminded the Alpha not to exert so much effort, since they are not spending time there for pleasure. They will have a meeting about the kidnapping case in their region and an extravagant welcome for them is unnecessary.

Calvin, Matteo and Freya were in the same SUV and discussed the incident as they traveled. 3 other vehicles followed them with the palace warriors. They wanted to be prepared so they would know what they would tell the Alphas and be prepared for the action they would take to solve it. "We will stay there for at least 2 weeks, depending on our investigation," Matteo told Freya.

"It's OK, they need us so we have to be there for them," she replied.

"The Alpha with a son was very worried. They were thinking that their sons could be next." Calvin informed them.

"They are the future of their pack, so it was natural." Matteo replied, "But what if uncle has something to do with it, just what dad thought?" he added, asking

"Then we really need to find him. He is really dangerous," Calvin replied. They continued driving and made some stops since it would take hours to reach t he pack. The neighboring packs' alphas were already there when they arrived. Matteo requested it before they arrived there and started the meeting without resting.

“His Highness, I'm sorry to interrupt, but we can't let this thing slide.

The kidnapped pups came from an excellent lineage of warriors and fighters. And it will not be a shock if someone from an Alpha or Beta blood or even from a Gamma blood is reported missing too.” Alpha Jake of the Crimson Pack said. It worried Matteo and the palace, thinking his uncle was behind it.

“Surely this is very alarming. Our pups are our future. That's why we try to teach them how to become a responsible wolf. We make sure not to lead them astray, since negative forces may blind them to the truth. Since they were involved in this and, as you have said, they were pups who came from a strong lineage of warriors and fighters, something was definitely brewing against us.” Matteo said, and all the alphas agreed

“That's why we worry about our pups. I have a son and we all know he will be an alpha in the future. What if he was next?” one of the alphas said worriedly, and Freya was too. She knew someone wanted to end King Marco's reign. If his kidnapping was part of their plan, she realized that their enemy was stronger than they thought. Even if he was the supposed king, the fact that his younger brother, who was now the king, defeated him made her think they had a huge chance of winning.

“I understand your concern and I know everyone worries too. But I want all of you to calm down so we will be able to come up with a better solution. This is not something we can solve in one sitting. Our enemy might have planned this for a long time and already had an advantage,” Freya said as she saw fear in everyone's eyes. Not for themselves, but for their pups.

“How will we calm down, her highness? In my pack, 3 pups are missing and they were all from our finest warriors.”

"I know that this is frightening but all we can do is think of every possible way to capture whoever it was who did this. We have to think of our possible enemy who will do this and for what purpose."

"And what are we going to do?" the other Alpha asked.

"For now, we have to ensure pack member safety. We never know, they might need others as well and we are too focused on the pups." Mastteo said, "I assume that everyone in your pack was well trained, even omegas." He added and they all nodded.

"It's encouraging to hear that. At least we know that they are able to buy themselves some time before help arrives. Now, I want to know if you know someone from your pack that could do this." Matteo said, but they just looked at each other. Just as his dad thought, he realized that only his uncle was capable of doing this. "Since we are all clueless about the culprit, I will leave a few palace warriors in this region to further investigate. You will have to report to them whatever you find out about kidnappings or any other incidents that we can connect to this case."

“We will stay here for a couple of weeks to conduct an initial investigation. We want some of each pack’s warriors and trackers to add to our team,” Freya said. “They will be assigned solely to our investigations to make sure they are reliable and trustworthy.”

“Yes, her highness,” they all replied. They felt relieved knowing that the royals would stay with them and would help them find their missing pups.

“Since the Crimson Pack is the center pack in this region, we will use this as our headquarters for your alliance. You have the same enemy that threatens your pack, so it is mandatory to form allies in your neighboring pack,” Matteo said in a commanding tone. He didn’t want anyone to disobey because he was doing this for their sake and for easy communication.

“Calvin will train your warriors and fighters while we are here and there will be times that I will be able to join them too. The palace will financially support the team with food and everything they will need. So no matter how poor your pack is, you don’t need to think about whether you need to support them while they’re here,” he added.

“Thank you, his highness,” Alpha Jake said.

“We are already at war, so we need everyone’s cooperation. Please refrain from looking after the other pack’s lifestyle or whatever. Just focus on what we need to do.” Freya reminded them. She couldn’t deny the fact that packs sometimes had animosity towards each other -because of financial differences. She didn’t want that to hinder their plans

“One thing I can be proud of in this region is that we considered each other as allies even if we didn’t do it in writing. We help and support each other in any way we can.” Alpha Jake informed them, which made Freya and Matteo proud of them. They both smiled and showed how happy they were after hearing that.

"Then that concludes our meeting for today." Matteo said, "I will expect the trackers and warriors of everyone's pack the day after tomorrow, so that we can begin the investigation and training. We need to find out what this kidnapping is all about and end it." He added, and they all stood up and returned to their respective packs.

Calvin, Matteo and Freya were left in Alpha's office to continue discussing their plan. They thought of the most convenient and efficient way of conducting the investigation and at the same time, training Matteo kept his line open for easy communication in the palace. As required by the king, they had to report everything. He was too concerned, and if he could get there himself, he would go there himself. "The number of missing pups has increased since two weeks ago," Calvin said.

"If it was because of my uncle, I think he wanted to use the pups in his war against us. He might have thought we would hesitate to do anything when they showed up in front of us," Matteo said.

"They were just kids. What can they do against the Lycans?" Freya asked. "No matter what, they will never stand a chance against the palace. Unless your uncle does something about it," she added.

"I will inform dad about this, so he will be able to do some investigation there as well," he replied. He ended the day with a plan to start training with the Crimson Pack members while they wait for the others. They didn't want to waste any more time since Matteo's coronation as king was approaching too. He wanted to end the war that was about to start between his dad and uncle. He wished for the entire kingdom to be safe for everyone once he and Freya reigned. And he intends to do it with her, even if she still tries to remember the man who welcomed her and her parents 9 years ago.

Before they retired to bed, he called the king and told him about their plan and what they had found out. They stayed in the pac k house since he prevented them from unnecessary preparation. After his conversation with his father, he is ready to face whatever comes the next day.

Freya

This is going to be difficult. I never thought the royals would have had this kind of dispute for decades. How would we defeat Matteo's uncle when he was supposed to be king? Even if he loses to the current king, it doesn't mean that it was all that happened in the past. I also know that the king will never tell me more than what he has told us. I hope that it was all right though. But I understand his anger at King Marco. We can't deny the fact that he is the first born and has the qualities in terms of strength and power necessary to be a king. We have to think and discern what he needs with the pups if he was really behind the kidnappings.

Who wouldn't be furious since his throne has been taken away from him? Even though the king fought for it fairly, it was still enough reason for him to feel angry. I'm pretty sure that he was told he was going to be king when he was a pup. And that will definitely drive everyone to do something beyond what is right.

Matteo was worried as well and I knew that he had a lot of things on his mind and on his plate. He was probably thinking about the person my parents and I met when we visited the palace and I felt so stupid that I couldn't identify who he or she was. I had a feeling that once I saw him or her, I would definitely remember. But I had been in the palace for months and none of the palace people were familiar to me. I have to remember, but because of these occurrences, I couldn't concentrate.

“Baby,” my mate called my attention. We are in the bedroom Alpha Jake lent us. One thing about Matteo is that he is not the kind of royal who would demand extravagant things from his people. He was always down to earth and very humble. He grew up being taught that he had to serve the supernatural creatures and maintain balance in the world. “You’re overthinking again,” he said, and I smiled at him.

“I was worried. You know about everything else?” I replied as he sat down beside me. There is a two-seater couch in the bedroom and it was comfortable talking and not sitting on the bed since we only ended up making love.

“Please do not worry. The moon goddess will definitely lead us to the solution of our problem. She didn’t want her children to be miserable,” he said.

“But we still need to do something about it. We can’t just sit down and wait.”

“Baby, I know that. I am not sure what I should do after finding out about my uncle. He is my relative no matter what. Fighting him is not something royals should do.”

“It’s difficult and challenging for you but it was more for your father, King Marco. He was his brother and I know that he was broken thinking about how his family had to fight.”

“Alpha Jake asked me whether I had any idea who it might be. Of course, I didn’t tell him anything, since we still didn’t know whether it was really my uncle. Even if it was from my dad, I still needed to make sure that it was accurate.”

“Yes, and I just hope that we find out soon. Innocent pups and pack members were being affected by it.”

We will soon,” he replied. “Anyway, Calvin is on the pack training ground. Let’s go and give him a hand.” And I got up and followed him out of the bedroom

Our beta was with Alpha Jake when we arrived at the training ground. I noticed that the Crimson Pack had many warriors and fighters. “His highness, her highness.” The alpha greeted us and we nodded our heads in acknowledgement. “10 warriors from the Eclipse Pack have already arrived, so they can join in the training.” he told us.

“Are they the team for the investigation?” Matteo asked.

“Yes, his highness. I know them personally, since we do regular training every week,” he answered.

“Calvin, what do you think?” My mate asked.

“They are all ready. It will be easier to train them since they have previous collaborations with each other,” he replied.

“I admire this region for being cooperative with each other. In this situation, it’s not bad to rely on a neighboring pack since the palace can’t get there and back you up immediately, since we have to consider travel time. Having each other’s backs will save pack members in need,” Matteo said. “How come the palace didn’t hear about this?” he asked curiously. That’s what I thought too. They should have informed the palace since this is for security purposes.

“We did, his highness. But we never got any response, so we decided to just do it.” Alpha Jake replied, which made Calvin, Matteo and I look at each other. “As we formed the alliance, I was appointed as the council and the other alphas are the members. Before we decide to do something, we see to it that we talk about it and discuss everything to know the pros and cons of our actions,” he added.

“I don’t know, but I don’t think it came to the palace that you formed such a group. If we did, I would have attended or the palace might have sent someone as a representative to ensure that the alliance is doing fine.” Matteo replied. Now we have something to report to the king. I’m sure that he will be shocked as well. If there was something the king wanted, it was to ensure the safety of every pack in the kingdom. In order to ensure their safety and security, forming an alliance is a wise move.

“How did you inform the palace?” Matteo continued asking.

“We sent an email since we received a notice that we can inform the palace about everything or ask for help through mail.” Alpha Jake replied. I know that we are in modern times already, but the king never wants to use emails when meeting any of the alphas or ranking officials from any pack. He wanted to discuss things personally as he was sure to ask questions about their requests, demands, or even reports.

“I don’t think we have issued a notice of such.” Calvin couldn’t help but say. Just as I thought.

“What do you mean?” Alpha Jake asked curiously, so our beta explained what and how the king wanted to speak to them.

“If it was a ceremony or something like that, he accepted invitations through e-mails or even mail. But not when it was for security and safety,” he added.

“Then who sent us that notice?”

“That’s what we’re going to find out,” Matteo answered. “Do you still have a copy of that?”

“Yes, his highness.”

“I want to see it. Let’s go to your office and talk. We just let Calvin lead the training.” Then we went back to the palace where the Alpha’s office was and discussed how the mails came to them. It was very alarming that there was a possible additional traitor in the palace. What worries me more is the fact of the possibility that they were from high-ranking officials.

Since it has happened previously to me and my parents, it isn’t far from the truth. I looked at Matteo and found him in deep thought as well. I know that he is starting to think of anyone that could possibly do this in the palace.

“His highness, I am not making any suspicion, but I couldn’t help but think that there was someone in the palace that prevented us from seeking help in the palace. This is if you really didn’t know about the email notice.”

“I am not going to hide it from you, but that is exactly what I’m thinking right now. I’m afraid that we have to be careful in sending information to the palace until we find the traitor.” He replied. We couldn’t hide it anymore and we are thankful we found out this time. This incident changed our beliefs and enabled us to make appropriate preparations and plans given the fact that we thought there was only one traitor.

“I think Freya and I need to head back to the palace. I am going to leave Beta Calvin here to continue training and guiding the team for the kidnapping incident. While we are there, I am forming a technical team that will monitor the emails and report directly to me all your concerns for a faster response.”

“Yes, his highness.” Alpha Jake replied.

“I expect you to report everything regarding the security of every pack around yours to Beta Calvin. He is going to do a very good job, I’m sure of it,” he said, and I saw his eyes dilated. He must have sent a message to Calvin through the mind link informing him of our plans. Then we prepared to leave and took 2 warriors with us. Calvin wouldn’t let us if we didn’t do it, so we just agreed so he could feel at ease.

Back in the palace, King Marco was very worried when we arrived. “What happened, dad?” Matteo asked.

“Camilla has been kidnapped!” he said.

Matteo

This is bad. Camilla has been kidnapped and Alec is furious. Freya was quiet but I had a feeling that she was blaming herself. This is because she wanted to go with us but my mate said no and wanted her and her mate to spend time together. They were both close to her and Freya only wanted them to be more intimate while we’re away since they won’t be able to do that once we return. They were both assigned to assist and protect their pr incess so they will have to be on their guard all the time. This was supposed to be their mating time and we are excited to return thinking they will have their pup after.

“Freya, dear. Please don’t be anxious, it’s not your fault,” Dad said. He was there when Camilla insisted on coming with us.

“Yes, her highness. It’s not your fault.” Rapha continues.

“But, if only I brought her with us, she would be here now.” My mate replied in a low voice. I hugged her and rubbed her back. I didn’t want to see her like this. “Where is Alec?”

“He is with Clay. They were friends and he tried to calm him. He was so worried that for a moment I thought he wanted to just wander and look for Camilla alone.” Rapha replied.

“Dad, is there any news about it?” I asked.

“The culprit left a note saying it had already started.”

“What started?”

“Maybe his return.” He wanted to take back what he thought was rightfully his.” Now, that’s a big problem. I don’t know if many knew about their dispute or were aware of what transpired decades ago. But this thing will never stop unless we do something about it.

“Technically speaking he has a point,” I told him.

“Yes, but I fought for the throne. I didn’t take it from him like a piece of cake,” he replied. I grew up in the palace taught to become a responsible, fair and just king. I admire my dad for being such an excellent king and father. I look up to him and promise to be like him when I reign. Now, with my uncle in the scene that tries to destroy what my dad worked hard for. How will I help him settle our family issues?

“Let’s not think about that. What we need to talk about is how we are able to get Camilla back.” Freya said impatiently.

“Yes dad, what’s the plan?” I asked.

It is possible they took her because of a traitor in the palace. There’s no way that they will be able to get into the palace without us knowing,” he said.

“Where was she last seen? And who last saw her?” It was Freya.

“Alec said that they got separated when she went to your room to get all your laundry. But after she left, he didn’t see her anymore.” Rapha replied.

“Then she was kidnapped inside the palace?” I asked furiously. Who wouldn’t want that when it was clear that our enemy had infiltrated us and we had no idea until they took one of ours? “This is not acceptable, dad.” We have to find out who he or she is. No one will be safe inside the palace if we never get him or her.” I added.

“I know and I have thought about it already. That’s why I asked Rapha to come here and we haven’t left my office since this morning,” he replied.

“Let’s start by going to our room.” Freya said and I looked at both dad and Rapha and they shook their heads. I got up and so did my mate hoping we would be able to find some clues in there.

“Will you be able to find anything in there?” Rapha asked.

“We won’t know unless we try. Camilla and Freya are good friends too and I’m pretty sure she will try to let her know what has happened to her.” I replied. I can’t believe that they started to think of a solution when they never tried to find out where the incident happened?

Freya and I returned to our bedroom and looked for anything that Camilla may have left for us. “If she goes and gets our laundry, she will only go straight to the bin.” my mate said and I nodded as we walked together.

We looked around after we got into the room and inhaled trying to get her scent. “She’s been here.” It was really faint and could only be noticed if someone concentrated. We followed the scent and found the bin where the laundry was still sitting. How come she’s been here when our clothes were right there as if it was not touched at all?

“No other scent,” Freya said.

“Yes.” If there was someone here other than her, then we could tell that her or his scent was masked. Our attention was drawn to the windows, especially as we looked around. I opened them one by one and looked down to see if there was a possibility that they went through there but nothing. It will be difficult for anyone to get out of the window since we are on the highest floor of the palace.

“I don’t think they passed through here. There was no landing down there and it would be too risky since they had Camilla with them.”

“I agree. The only way they could enter was through the door,” I replied. She walked to the walk-in closet and after turning on the lights, I saw her roam her eyes around.

“There was nothing unusual here either. All the closet doors were closed and everything was in order.” She said and walked around as she ran her hands through every closet. Then she stopped and looked at me.

“What’s wrong?” I asked and she opened the closet door and sniffed. I came closer to her and did the same. We looked at each other because we had found another scent.

“Eunice?” she asked and I nodded. “Why would her scent linger here?” These are all my clothes.” she added and I wondered too. I would understand it if the clothes were mine because of her obsession with me. But why would she get through Freya’s clothes?

check her clothes. She was trying to figure out which clothes Eunice’s scent stayed in so I helped her. I mind linked James to come because I wanted to ask him about the incident. “Where is Eunice again?” she asked.

“The last time I know she was back in the dungeon as dad tried to talk to her and Ronaldo about our issues.” I replied.

“That’s what I know too, so why would her scent linger here?”

“That’s what we will find out when James comes up here.” And we didn’t wait long because he already mind linked me that he was already here so I told him to get in.

“His highness,” he said.

“Where is Eunice?” I asked which confused him.

“Isn’t she in the dungeon?”

Who would let her? He replied, asking.

“Check on her and do it discreetly. I didn’t want to alarm anyone,” I told him.

May I know the reason why?" he asked so I gave her Freya's dress with Eunice's scent.

"It's her," he said after, "I didn't want to jump into any conclusion but her scent being here means she got the chance to get out of the dungeon or someone intentionally put her scent in there," he added.

"If she came in here herself, why does her scent only stay on my clothes and not in another part of the room? If someone intentionally left her scent in here, why would they do that?" Freya asked.

"What if someone tried to use Eunice? I mean, we are looking for the traitor and it is possible that our enemy has found out about it. So to hide his identity, he decided to use her instead?" James asked and whether I admit it or not, he has a point. "But let's not lower our guard against her. There's also a possibility that she did it willingly," he added.

"Where is Alec now?" Freya asked.

"Still with Clay. I saw them earlier fighting and trying to intervene but Clay told me not to. He said Alec wanted to go and search for his mate" he replied.

"And once they know that we are back, I am sure that they will look for me and ask me to give them permission to seek out and find Camilla," Freya said. That's possible too. They knew how much my mate cared for them and would surely use that to get permission. "Of course I am not an idiot to tell them that. We have to think of another way to find her and we have to do it fast. She's an omega and even if she undergoes regular training, her strength is nothing compared to those who have their beast," she added.

"Nothing will happen to her." We have to see Alec. They already marked each other so

I'm sure he already felt it if she was harmed." I said and we walked out of our bedroom. I wanted to go to dad's office to talk to him more but I had to talk to Alec first. Camilla is a close friend of mine as well and I know how much Rapha is in so much worry now.

Chapter 60

Matteo

“No! I have to do something and find her. I can’t sit still without seeing her safe and sound.” Alec shouted. I know how he feels and I also know that there’s nothing that I can do to ease his pain. Being away from your mate is like a death sentence. You won’t be able to manage and function well . Our beast will surely go feral if we don’t do anything about it.

“Frey, Clay, please let me go after her,” he pleaded, and my mate looked really worried about him.

“We will find her, Alec. Just give us some time. We can’t just go out and search recklessly.” Freya said, trying to calm him down.

“You don’t understand, what if something happened to her? What if she’s already in so much pain and I am here waiting for that to happen?” he replied, “No I can’t just sit here and wait. I had to do something to find her.”

“Alec, listen to me. We’re going to get Camilla back. I promise you that.” Clay said. “But Freya is right, we have to think about it first. We can’t just go there blindly. We have to know who, what and how she was captured. Trust me and Freya, we are your friends and you know that we did everything we could for our friend’s happiness, right?” he added

“Camilla is my friend too. I will make sure to get her back at all costs once we find out where she was. An investigation into that was already in motion with Rapha. He is the royal attack and defense advisor, so he is good.”

“What do you want me to do now?” he asked in resignation. He already knew that he couldn't make his friends agree with him.

"Keep calm, and be ready to attack. We will find her, that, I promise you." Freya said with conviction. It was the first time that I saw her this serious. Maybe because it was her friends and I know how much she cares about them. Or maybe because she was already Luna and her instinct had started to work. Either of the two, she looks convincing no wonder Alec agreed immediately.

"James and Rapha were both working on the investigation. Freya and I gave them some places they could search for her whereabouts based on the clues we gathered in our bedroom and all the places that she could possibly be. For now, we have to wait patiently." I told him. He had his head down and I pitied him. But I had to make sure that he was not going to make any hasty actions or decisions.

I looked at my mate and she smiled at me, though I could still worry on her face. For now, all we can do is wait, but once everything's ready we will surely go and get Camilla. And no matter how much I will stop Freya from coming, I'm sure that she will say no and come with us. The threat may be to me, but she's the bait I will certainly take, no matter how risky it is.

The following day, I could still see Alec being so troubled. Rapha and his team have not come back yet and are not reporting on what was happening to them. But I am still hopeful that they will return soon for the good news. From our bedroom, Eunice's scent stops there. But when we talked to her, she said that she had not left the dungeon and was mocking us for asking her, since we were the ones who put her there. She told us that she was disappointed in me because I had become weak ever since I mated with Freya. But she was wrong. I am stronger than ever. I never felt such power until we'd mated. And my Lycan. I found out his name after that as well, and I was never so happy when we became complete one.

‘We’re back.’ It was James. I told him to mind link me as soon as they arrived and had important news about Camilla. I looked at my mate who was standing by the window. We are in dad’s office as he attends an important meeting with the other royal advisors.

‘Let’s go to our usual spot.’ I replied and called out my mate and asked her to come with me. Calvin, James and mine’s usual spot was the place where Rapha trained us when we were kids. We kept it hidden from others and maintained it so we could use it whenever necessary.

“Why are we here?” Freya asked, when we reached the outskirts of the palace, our usual spot. I looked at her and smiled, then I walked ahead.

“Matteo,” James greeted,

“Why are you here?” Freya asked him and Rapha.

“I told them to meet me here when James informed me that they had arrived. I had to know the details first before we let them see Dad.” I replied and sat on a couch as she did too.

“We found Camilla. We don’t know whether she was safe or not though.” Rapha said,

“I think she’s fine since Alec was quiet. When he started to feel any pain, that’s when something surely happened to her.” Freya informed them and he sighed in relief.

“I know how worried you are, and I’m thankful that you keep calm after everything.”

“You know that she’s my only relative and I love her. I treated her as my own daughter and I don’t think that I would be able to take it if something really happened to her.”

“Then tell me where she is,” I said, as Freya was hopeful.

“After a thorough investigation, we found her on the outskirts of the palace. There was this abandoned cabin that I noticed before and when we passed there last night, I noticed that the grass had been parted as if someone had passed by.” James said.

“We passed through there. We didn’t find Camilla’s scent but because of what James had said, we decided to check it out.” Rapha continued. “As we got deeper in the woods, that’s where we noticed her scent. It was very faint, maybe because it had been a day since she went missing.”

“And?” Freya asked impatiently.

“We confirmed it the whole night before we came back and yes, she’s definitely in the cabin. We let the warriors stay in the opening of the passage so they would be able to stop anyone from coming. And they apprehended 3 rogues,” Rapha answered.

“They are in the dungeon now. No one saw us except the guards in there and we had already warned them not to tell anyone,” James said immediately.

“Then, let’s prepare for Camilla’s rescue.”

“Have you questioned the rogues already? We need to find something about the cabin first. It might be a trap or something,” Freya suggested.

“We haven’t asked them anything yet, we reported to you first.” It was James.

“Interrogate them and find everything. Freya and I will go and talk to Alec and Dad. I think his meeting with the royal advisors is about to end.” I said, and we all stood up and started to do our tasks.
