

DEAR PRISCHELLE

Chapter 6 No.6

Dear Prischelle,

It's Sunday and my parents have something to do so I'm going to church alone. Few meters away from the place, I saw you with two middle aged man and woman. They must be your parents. You look so good in your dress.

I choose the seat behind you so I am free to glance at you anytime. And when we fall in line, I smiled when I was standing behind you. I heard some teenagers at my back giggled while talking to something and accidentally pushed me. My eyes winden in surprise but immediately hide it when you turn around with an irritated face.

You look shocked after seeing me and I badly want to approach you and say 'hi' but I pull myself together so

I won't look like a stupid dumbass in front of you during that situation.

And when your father also turned around and asked you a question, I apologize even though it's not my fault. After talking to him a little, you went back to line and until the mass is over, I couldn't help but to smile.

Seeing you today lights up my mood. Honestly, I was kinda upset to my parents for they couldn't come to church with me but I feel happy after seeing you today. I mean, there's a lot of churches but our path still crossed. I want to thank destiny for it.

And since tomorrow is Monday again, I'm looking forward to seeing you. I do hope that I'll have a chance to talk to you.
