

Levi Garrison: The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 1041

On the other side, Levi had no idea that the Garrisons were in the heat of a discussion because of him.

Even Tyrone and Kenny were informed of his existence.

Busy with his wedding, Levi was not aware that Damien was getting ready to deal with him.

The couple's new house in North Hampton was completed, and Levi was very satisfied with it.

Hence, he was in an excellent mood.

On top of that, Jason had also reached North Hampton.

It had been six years since Levi had last seen his good friend, so naturally, he was excited to see Jason again.

"Levi, I'm very happy for you, but... "

Jason seemed hesitant.

"What is it, Jason? Come on. Out with it!"

"I just came from Oakland City, and everyone there knows of your existence, including the Garrisons! So it's only a matter of time before they come for you, especially Damien. You wouldn't want the Garrisons to be your enemy. I suggest that you should beg them for mercy," advised Jason.

Bad things happen to those in Damien's crosshairs.

Levi got lucky because he had the Paragon Seal.

"Beg the Garrisons?" Levi chuckled.

"Yes. Just kneel before them and say something pleasant. I'm sure that they won't make it hard on you. After all, they can't do anything to you, now that everyone knows of your existence."

"I have no problem kneeling before them, but do they seriously think that they're worth it?" asked Levi coldly.

The God of War bows to no one, not even to the Garrisons.

"Levi, you're a good man, but you're just too damn stubborn! You never listen to anyone. I should talk to Emma. Maybe she'll do it," relented Jason.

Jason only wanted what was best for his good friend.

He believed that the Garrisons would let Levi go if the man would submit himself to them.

"Save it. I know how to deal with the Garrisons."

Levi decided to bring his mother with him to meet the Garrisons after his wedding.

He needed to know why Tyrone had abandoned him and his mother.

"Come, let's go and visit Morris."

Afterward, Levi and Jason arrived before Morris' grave, which had already been well-refurbished by Nueve and his men.

"Now, we're merely short of Warren. It's good to be reunited again." Jason sighed before toasting to Morris' grave.

"I've been looking for Warren, and I'm sure that I'll find him soon," assured Levi.

Warren had disappeared, and Phoenix had been searching for him for a long time. Unfortunately, it was to no avail.

“You’ve been searching for a while, haven’t you? You should just give up. You’re not going to find him because he’s changed his identity.”

“Wait, you know where he is?” asked Levi.

“Yes. I think that I might be able to find him.”

“The three of you were close, so when Warren found out that he couldn’t help the both of you, he felt useless. In low spirits, Warren changed his identity and led a different life,” explained Jason.

“Take me there, Jason! I need to see Warren!”

“Okay. I didn’t want to bother him, but I think that you two should meet. Perhaps he’ll be able to convince you to submit to the Garrisons. He’s a good friend of yours, after all. Maybe you’ll listen to him,” agreed Jason.

Levi Garrison: The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 1042

Jason only wanted Levi to see Warren again because he was hoping that Warren could convince Levi to submit to the Garrisons.

He did not want his friend’s wedding to turn into a funeral.

I know that the Garrisons will spare Levi if he kneels before them.

Levi knew what Jason’s intention was, but he saw no need to bow to the Garrisons.

I'll destroy anyone who dares to stir up trouble at my wedding!

With Jason's help, Levi was finally reunited with Warren.

His friend had settled down and even had himself a daughter. He was living a good life.

When Warren heard that Levi was getting married again, he was more than happy to be part of the celebration as he wanted to make up for his past regret.

Three days before his wedding, Levi finally got everyone important to him to accept his invitation.

Meanwhile, at the Oakland City Airport, a private plane took off with dozens of other planes escorting it.

On the ground was a convoy made up of hundreds of vehicles on their way to North Hampton.

As heir to the most powerful ancient family in Erudia, such an occurrence was normal to Damien.

He was always surrounded by tens of thousands of men to make sure that he was safe.

Even though the movement was extremely large-scale, no one knew about it because the Garrisons were powerful enough to control the flow of information.

On top of that, the Garrisons' allies arrived in North Hampton early to pave the way for Damien, for they had to ensure that nothing would go wrong.

"Levi, you'll realize just how insignificant you are when you meet me," whispered Damien to himself on the plane.

Glancing out of the window, Damien wondered if there was anyone in Erudia who could outmatch him.

There's only one person, the God of War.

All Damien could ever do was keep up with the God of War because the man's achievements were far too great.

One of his achievements was beating the elites of the Eighteen-Nation Alliance with only his iron fists and quelling the alliance.

He was certainly the only person who had ever achieved such a feat, and it was enough to make Damien feel hopeless in his pursuit to match the God of War.

I guess that being number two isn't that bad.

"Perhaps the God of War views me in the manner that I view Levi," muttered Damien to himself.

"No, that's not right. The bastard's not even worthy of being compared to me!" shouted Damien suddenly.

"I wouldn't be so sure if I were you," chuckled Dexter, who was tied to his seat.

"Huh?"

Damien was stunned. "What did you say?"

"Given the same resources and advantages, Levi might just be better than you. Look at what he's achieved growing up on the streets. If he had the same upbringing as you, it's not hard to imagine that he could do a whole lot better."

Dexter's words were like knives to Damien's heart.

Furious, the man stared at the butler in utter disbelief. "Did you just say that Levi is better than me?"

"That's right. If he had grown up in the same environment that you had, I believe that he would've been a lot more powerful than you are." Dexter cackled.

"You think that he's more powerful than me?"

Raw anger shot through Damien.

“Say that Levi can’t compare to me! Say it! Say it now!”

Damien grabbed Dexter by the throat and forced the butler to say the words.

“Master Levi is stronger than you!” Dexter cackled again as he stared at his perpetrator.

Levi Garrison: The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 1043

Huffing and puffing, Damien grabbed a fork and stabbed Dexter with it, causing blood to squirt out from the butler.

Dexter’s mouth was gurgling with blood, and his body twitched.

“Now, let’s try this again. Who’s stronger?”

Damien was acting like a mad man.

“Master Levi is stronger, and I’ll always support him!” insisted Dexter.

The people around them quickly stopped Damien when he was about to murder the butler.

“You can’t kill him yet, Mr. Damien! You still need him, remember?”

Only then did Damien calm down, and before long, he arrived in North Hampton.

“Is this what the outside world is like? How pathetic! These people must not know what a paradise looks like. To me, Oakland City is the only true paradise!” mocked Damien.

"Of course, Mr. Damien. This place is a far cry from Oakland City," agreed a lackey beside Damien.

"I can now see why Levi is so arrogant. He thinks that he's seen it all when he'd merely achieved a minor success in this pathetic environment. He probably still has no idea of how insignificant he is. Wait till he sees what I have in store for his wedding."

The wedding was only a few days away, and Levi was just as nervous as he was before.

After all, he had promised to reveal his true identity to Zoey, the Lopezes, and the Blacks.

"Levi, your wedding venue has been arranged. As instructed, it is not unnecessarily extravagant, but you can be sure it'll be grand nonetheless," assured Azure Dragon and his men.

"Good!"

Levi nodded in satisfaction.

This time, I want Zoey to have a wedding that she'll never forget.

However, Levi did not want to achieve that with a ludicrous amount of money, so he took the time to make a ring and a necklace out of bullet shells as gifts to Zoey.

"Boss, Ezra will be here tonight! It's been a while since I'd last seen the Commanders-In-Chief of the Nine Warzones and the Four Guardians."

Levi smiled in response. "I'll pick them up myself tonight."

Family members and friends had already arrived at the venue because the wedding would be held on the next day.

Although Meredith and the other Blacks were not happy about the wedding, they came anyway since Levi promised to reveal secrets at the occasion.

They were curious about what the man had to offer.

"We didn't come here to give you our blessings. Rather, we merely wanted to see the surprise that you have in store for us. You won't be marrying Zoey if we're dissatisfied with your reveal," threatened Meredith.

"That's right. If you lie to us, the child will never take your last name. He or she will be a Lopez or even a Black," chimed in Aaron.

The couple was well-prepared in case Levi was planning to lie to them.

"You two should ready yourselves. I'm worried that you might faint when I reveal my secrets. After all, you're not as young as you used to be." Levi chuckled.

Meredith then glared daggers at Levi. "You're worried that I'll faint? We'll see how big of a deal your identity is."

Nobody took Levi seriously, but he could already imagine how half of the crowd would kneel while the other half would pass out.

Levi Garrison: The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 1044

Zoey gazed at Levi expectantly.

The day had finally come for her to marry the love of her life.

Bursting with joy for her son, Emma was easily the happiest person in the crowd.

She never imagined that she would be able to attend her son's wedding.

"Huh? Not only are you attending the wedding, but you also have to give a speech?" asked Meredith after checking the itinerary.

"That's right."

Emma nodded.

"We can't have you doing that! What will people think of Zoey when they see you? Do you know how many will be watching you tomorrow? Many are trying to dig for dirt on Zoey."

"Do you know how much trouble it will cause if people find out that Levi has a mother like you?"

"You don't want to cause problems for Zoey, do you?"

Meredith, Robert, and the others all ganged up on Emma.

"I... I don't, so what should I do?"

Naturally, Emma would not want anything bad to happen to Zoey.

"It'll be better for you to forego the wedding tomorrow," advised Meredith.

"What?"

Emma hesitated because she really wanted to be a part of her son's wedding.

"If you insist on going, then your son will never marry Zoey!" threatened Meredith.

"I won't go then."

Emma had no choice but to listen to Meredith.

"Good! We have an agreement then. You can't appear at the wedding, and you can't tell Levi or Zoey about this."

"I understand."

Emma was aggrieved but she did not want to ruin her son's wedding.

"Phew! Can you imagine how humiliating it would've been if Levi's filthy mother were to show up at the wedding?" The Blacks cackled.

That night, Levi went to the airport with Azure Dragon and the others to pick his friends up personally.

Logan and Jennie were also there to pick up their big-shot relatives, who only decided to attend Zoey's wedding when they heard of Zoey's net worth.

Before long, the Blacks appeared out of the arrival gate, and every one of them was well-dressed.

Logan then glanced at Levi. "Take a good look, Levi. Notice how all the Lopezes and Blacks are all big shots? What about your family and friends? Anyone worth mentioning?"

Compared to the Lopezes and Blacks, Azure Dragon and others were dressed quite casually.

"I'm guessing that the friends whom you're waiting for will fare no better than the ones beside you now," mocked Jennie.

"Boss!" cried Ezra and others excitedly when they appeared out of the arrival gate.

"Weren't these people on the same flight as us? They were in the economy class," ridiculed one of Logan's relatives.

"Hahaha!"

Logan and Jennie joined in on the laughter.

It's evident that we're on a different level from Levi's friends.

We were in first class while they were stuck in economy class.

Without their uniforms, Ezra and the others were no different from ordinary people.

They had even bought economy class tickets, so it was only natural that people would misunderstand.

Little did Logan, Jennie, and the others know that they were standing before the renowned Commanders-In-Chief of the Nine Warzones and the Four Guardians of Erudia.

These men were the ones who shaped Erudia's destiny and they were revered both locally and abroad.

Levi Garrison: The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 1045

Out of their uniforms, the men could not look more ordinary than they were, currently.

They had paid for the economy class tickets out of their own pockets and had boarded the plane just like everyone else.

They wanted nothing extravagant and had no interest in abusing their privileges because they had the intention of attending Levi's wedding as friends.

"You can determine how successful a person is by looking at the people who have surrounded him. By the looks of it, you seem way out of Zoey's league," mocked Logan's relatives.

"I bet that you didn't even get a single big shot to attend your wedding."

Amongst the relatives and friends that Levi had invited to his wedding, Jason was the only one that Meredith had considered important; the Lopezes and the Blacks wanted nothing more than to drive the rest away.

Ezra was displeased when he realized how Levi's relatives treated the man.

Neither Ezra nor the others thought that the God of War should receive such treatment.

“Don’t worry, I’ll tell them everything tomorrow,” assured Levi with a smile, for he was looking forward to it himself.

When they reached home, Levi excitedly introduced Ezra and others to Zoey.

“Hello, everyone. I’m Ezra Williamson from the West.”

“Todd Greenwood from the North.”

“Wilfrid Harrett from the East.”

“Darton Rogier from the South.”

“Siegfried Adkins from the Central.”

After the Commanders-In-Chief of the Nine Warzones introduced themselves, the Four Guardians did the same.

“Manfred Reyes of the East Gate.”

“Howell Dinwiddie of the West Gate.”

“Geoffrey Meskill of the South Gate.”

“Benjamin Dickinson of the North Gate.”

Other than the Nine Warzones, Erudia also had the Four National Gates, which had consisted of the North Gate, South Gate, East Gate, and West Gate.

Those gates had guarded the borders of Erudia for thousands of years, preventing countless invasions.

The Four Guardians were the ones who would watch over the gates as they guarded the nation against attacks.

Levi's other friends also introduced themselves one by one.

Nevertheless, only those who were in the military knew what they were talking about.

"What's a North Warzone, and what's a West Gate? I have no idea what you guys are talking about!" exclaimed Aaron in confusion.

Aaron was not the only one who was confused. Rather, Zoey was confused as well.

"Your friends are just the same as you, Levi. A bunch of weirdos!" remarked Caitlyn.

"If you ask me, they sound like a bunch of hooligans!"

The Lopezes and the Blacks had nothing but contempt for Levi's friends.

What kind of friends does Levi surround himself with?

And it's not just a few of them.

There are dozens of these hooligans!

In the end, only Zoey and Emma welcomed Ezra and the others.

That night, Benny merely congratulated Levi through a video call because he was too occupied at the moment.

"I'll visit Oakland City soon, Mr. Quinton. See you then."

After Benny's video call, Abigail also called to congratulate Levi.

Abigail was supposed to attend the wedding, but she had suddenly changed her mind when she thought of what happened previously.

"Where are you?" asked Levi.

"I'm in Oakland City," answered Abigail honestly, for she was in South Hampton when she heard that Levi was in North Hampton.

To avoid Levi, Abigail left South Hampton and went to Oakland City.

"I see. Maybe I'll head over visit you some day."

Afterward, Levi received one congratulation after the other, and that was how he had spent the remainder of the night before his wedding.

The next day, the wedding finally commenced.