I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1785—Time passed slowly.

Because of the two Lightfoot heirs' deaths, a storm stirred in the Central Sacred Continent.

The center of the storm was West End.

According to the Lightfoot family's clues and the Saint Realm grandmasters' Bloodline Guidance Spell, they found out that Archimedes and Cornelius both died in West End, but their locations were different.

This allowed the Lightfoot family to focus most of their power on West End.

Of course, they could not miss out on the other areas.

The killer would not wait for the Lightfoot family to go to them.

Who knew if they had escaped to somewhere else?

In short, the entire Central Sacred Continent was very solemn.

The big families knew that two heirs from the Lightfoot family had died, and they were the most important first and second-in-line heirs. Therefore, the family was seething.

No one wanted to offend the Lightfoot family right now.

Hence, they were closing one eye toward the surveillance the Lightfoot family placed everywhere.

More than half of the Lightfoot family's power was gathered in West End.

However, this was not enough.

What terrified the civilians of West End was that the Saint Realm grandmaster of the Lightfoot family was here, and he was about to personally look into the deaths of Cornelius and Archimedes, the two heirs.

He swore to find the killer and annihilate their bloodline so that he could protect the Lightfoot family's prestige.

A Saint's destruction was not to be looked down on.

If he found the killer and the killer refused to obey, there would be a battle.

It would be fine if it was a crushing defeat.

The scariest thing would be if they were evenly matched since the battle would affect a huge area, especially the more prosperous ones.

The shockwave of the battle would cause a lot of casualties.

When the powerful people were fighting, the ordinary folk would suffer.

This had happened in Star Kingdom before.

It was recorded in the history of Star Kingdom.

Back then, the battle between Saints broke a continent into pieces.

Hundreds of millions died in that battle, let alone in other countless smaller battles.

The number of deaths was too many to enumerate.

After that battle, Star Kingdom established the Saints Association and assigned rules to all Saints so that they would not attack at will in Star Kingdom.

Everyone living in West End was in danger.

They were worried that the killer that killed the two heirs was hiding among them and would implicate them, making them suffer an undeserved calamity.

At the same time, they also hoped the Saint Association would monitor the Lightfoot family's Saint so that he would not act recklessly in West End.

West End in the Central Sacred Continent was where Treasure Trove was. In other words, it was the Fellowes family's territory.

The Fellowes family could not do anything about the Lightfoot family deploying more than half of their power here to find the killer and causing everyone to live in fear.

After all, the Fellowes family could not stop them from doing that.

If not, a battle between the families would arise.

To the Lightfoot family, they had already confirmed that the killer was doing this on purpose to provoke the Lightfoot family.

If not, how would the heirs, Cornelius and Archimedes, die one after another in such a short period?

Moreover, they both died in West End.

The killer was very powerful too.

None of the two late Sovereign Rankers, more than twenty beginner and mid-Sovereign Rankers, and ten Immortal Rankers could escape from him.

If there was only one killer, it would be impossible if they were only a peak Sovereign Ranker. They would at least be a partial Saint.
