I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1818—They could not find David anywhere.

After the Lightfoot family came to their senses, they started searching in another direction.

They began targeting the Fellowes family's Treasure Trove.

They used all kinds of methods to bribe and entice the staff of Treasure Trove so that they would betray the Fellowes family.

If money or women did not work, they would start threatening the staff with their families.

This worked pretty well, and they got the result they wanted very soon.

However, those people who turned against the Fellowes family had no idea where David was

When Alba and David left, they kept this a secret, and they did not bring anyone with them.

Of course, as more and more people turned against the Fellowes family, the Lightfoot family got a piece of very valuable information.

When David first came to Treasure Trove's headquarters, he came here with the third young mistress Miss Alba Fellowes.

Alba also left the headquarters when David vanished after the auction.

Even though it was not confirmed that they had left together, this was still a big possibility.

To the Lightfoot family, this was very useful news

This was the Lightfoot family's most valuable piece of information after issuing the warrant so far.

There was countless other news about David, but after the Lightfoot family checked them, they turned out to be completely useless.

Then, the Lightfoot family began to investigate Alba's whereabouts.

It did not take long for them to find her in a large trade zone in West End.

Alba wanted to develop East League Trading Company for David, so of course, she would not hide just like David.

Therefore, it was still very easy to find her.

After finding Alba, the Lightfoot family quietly began to focus on the large trade zone where Alba was located.

They prepared to conduct a thorough search of the area, including Treasure Trove.

They felt that David might be there.

Meanwhile, the actions of the Lightfoot family immediately alarmed the Fellowes family.

Many staff members of the Treasure Trove headquarters were bought by the Lightfoot family with various despicable means. As a big family that had gained a foothold in Star Kingdom for many years, the Fellowes family would surely find out about this.

However, they just had not responded to it.

The most important thing for the Fellowes family now was to help David complete the task assigned by his master

Everything else was sidelined.

However, while the Lightfoot family gathered strength, the Fellowes family also needed to make a move because David was indeed hiding there.

In order to support Alba, even Roald, the Saint, followed her.

David was the only hope the Fellowes family had now.

Hence, his safety was naturally the top priority.

Even if they knew that David would be safe because of who he was, they still needed to do something.

They needed to show David that the Fellowes family had worked hard for him.

The Fellowes family's actions made the Lightfoot family more confident in their judgment.

The strength of the Lightfoot and Fellowes families, two major families, began to gather in one place.

The other people who were attracted by the arrest warrant also followed the two families in a swarm even though they did not know what the situation was when they saw this situation.

In this way, people from all over West End started to go to the large trading zone where Alba was located.

David had no idea this was happening.

He was still watching the lavish points increase every day in boredom, waiting for the day when his lavish points reached one million.

Before his lavish points exceeded one million and were enough for him to be promoted to True Saint, David could only stay in the room and not go out.

Alba received a notice from the Fellowes family at this time and she realized that her family might be exposed.

Hence, she should speed things up and complete David's mission first at all costs.

With the order of the family, Alba naturally spared no effort to use the resources of Treasure Trove to expand East League Trading Company.

In addition, Anders was already out, and he had successfully broken through to partial Saint Realm.

Alba was also panicking.

Hence, David's lavish points once again had a chance to skyrocket under Alba's crazy manipulation.
